Not So Far Gone.

The last letter he received from wifey conveyed the intelligence that she was quite sick, and of course he was considerably worried. But he was comforted by the fact that she was with her mother. He wrote her an affectionate letter, and told her to be sure and let him know if she grew worse. The next lettr conveyed the intelligence that she was a little worse. though the doctor said it was nothing serious. But he worried a great deal. Yesterday afternoon a Western Union boy sauntered into his office with the usual nonchalance of a mes-senger boy conveying a "rush" mes-sage, and shoved the book under hubby's nose

"Is dis Mr. Black?" asked the boy. "Yes," gasped hubby, cold chills chasing up and down his spine. "Message for you. Sign here. De charges is 60 cents."

Hubby grabbed the futeful manila envelope and hastily tore it open. What he suffered while tremblingly unfolding the bit of yellow paper can be imagined, but not described. He nent in mending his net. Now, the Bible again and again represents Christian workers as fishers of men, and we are all sweeping through the sea of humanity some kind of net. Indeed there have been enough nets out and enough fisher-men busy to have landed the whole hu-unau race in the kingdom of God long be-fore this. What is the matter? The gos-opel is all right, and it has been a good time for extching souls for thousands of years. Why, then, the failures? The trouble is with the nets, and most of them need to be mended. I propose to show you what is the matter with most of the need to be mended. I propose to show you what is the matter with most of the need to be mended. I propose to show you what is the matter with most of the need to be mended. I propose to show you what is the matter with most of the need to be mended. I propose to show you what is the matter with most of the net work, be lears and rends and works his way out, and leaves the place through which he squirmed a tangle of broken threads. In our desire to make everything so casy we relax, we loosen, we wide goopel net escape into the world, and go into indulgences and avim all around Galillee. from north sid+ to south side, and from east side to west side, ex-pecting that they will come back again. We ough to make it easy for them to get into the kingdom of God, and, as far as we can, make it impossible for them to get out. The poor advice nowadays to may is: "Go and do just as you did be-tore you were a Christian do now. wave in our gospel nets when we are mending them. Do you know that the world's heart is bursting with trouble, and if you could make that world believe that the religion of Jeaus Christ is soothing connipotence the whole world would surrender to mor-row—yea, would surrender this hour. The day before James A. Garheld was innug-rated as President 1 was in the cars going from Richmond to Washington. A gentle man seated near to me in the cars going from Richmond to Washington. A gentle man seated near to me in the cars when we, and we were soon in familiar conver-sation. It was just after a hereavement, and I was speaking to him from an over-burdened heart about the sorrow I was suffering. Looking at his cheerful face 1 said: "I guess you have escaped all tron-ble. I should judge from your counte-pance that you have come through free from all misfortune." Then he looked at whispered in my ear. "Sir, you know noth-ing about trouble. My wife has been in an insane asylum for nither years." And then he turned and looked out of the window and into the night with a silence I was too overpowered to break. That was another illustration of the fact that no one exempts trouble. Why, that man sented next to you in was another illustration of the fact that no one excapts trouble. Why, that man scatted next to you in church has on his soul a weight compared with which a mountain is a feather. That woman scatted next to you in church has a grief the recital of which would make your body, usind and soul shudder. When you are mending your net for this your body, mind and soul shudder. When you are mending your net for this wide, deep sea of humanity, take out that wire thread of criticism and that horsehair thread of harshness and put in a soft silken thread of Christian sympathy. Yea, thread of harstness and put in a holt illicen thread of Christian sympathy. Yea, when you are mending your nets tear out those old threads of gruffness and weave in a few threads of politeness and genial-ity. In the house of God let all Christian faces heam with a look that means wel-youne. Say "Good morning" to the stran-ger as he enters your pew, and at the close shake hands with lim and say. "How did you like the music?" Why, you would be to that man a panel of the door of heaven; you would be to him a note of the doxology that scraphs sing when a new soul enters heaven. I have in other days entered a pew in church and the woman at the other end of the pew looked at me as much as to say, "How dare you? This is my pew and I pay the rent for it." Well, I crouched in the other corner and made myself as small as possible and feit as though I had been stealing some-thing.

Thing. So there are people who have a sharp edge to their religion, and they act as though they thought nost people had been elected to be damne, and they were glad of it. Oh, let us brighten up our manner and appear in gentlemanliness or lady-haod.

and appear in gentlemanliness or lady-hood. The object in fly fishing is to throw the fly far out, and then let it drop gently down and keep it gently rising and falling with the waters, and not plunge it like a man-of-war's anchor, and abruptness and harshness of manner must be avoided in our attempt at usefulness. I know a man in New York who is more sunshiny and genial when he has dyspepsia than when he is not suffering from that depressing trouble. I have found out his secret. When he starts out in the morning with such depression he asks for special grace to keep from snap-ping up anybody that day, and puts forth additional determination to be kindly and genial, and hy the help of God he accom-plishes it.

genial, and by the help of God he accomplishes it. Many of our nets need to be mended in those respects, the black threads and the rough threads taken out, and the bright threads and the golden threads of Christian geniality woven in. In addition to this we need to mend our nets with more threads of patience. It is no tare thing for a fisherman to spend one whole day before he can take a St. Lawrence pike, or an Ohio salmon, or a Long Island pickerel, or a Cayuga black bass, or a Delaware catfish and he dots that day after day without any particular discouragement. But what a lack of patience if we do not immediately succeed in sonl a Delawite calculat, and a close the discouragement. But what a lack of patience if we do not immediately succeed in soul catching. We are apt to give it up and say, "I will never try again."

These dear brethren of all denominations, afflicted with theological fidgets, had better go to mending nets instead of breaking them. Before they break up the old religions let them go through some great sacrifice for God that will prove them worthy of such a work, taking the advice of Talleyrand to a man who wanted to upset the religion of Jesus Christ and start a new one, when he said, "Go and be crucified and then raise yourself from the grave the third day!"
Those who propose to mend their nets by secular and skeptical books are like a man who has just one week for fishing for Tront." and then on Saturday morning, his last day out, goes to the river to ply just it but that day the fish will not bite, and late on Saturday night he goes to his hart we have spent our time in the libraries of workly philosophy trying to mend the grave the time day in the saturday night he goes to his hart we have only a few souls to report as brought to God through our instrumentality, while some humble gospel and an almanae, shall come home laden with his ithrary made up of a Bible and an almanae, shall come home laden with the free the soft workley of the great disturbance in Nanke in 166 Maxemile.

Rabbits and Diphtheria.

A recent epidemic of black dlph-theria, which caused a large number of deaths among children in the vicin ity of Grafton, Ill., has been traced by local physicians to wild rabbits caught and caten by the afflicted families. several weeks hunters found large numbers of rabbits dead in the woods and hills around Grafton. Some of the dead animals were brought to the vii lage, and an examination by physi sians revealed the fact that the ani-mals had died from diphtheria. The discovery was not made, however, until several days after the epidemic had got a good foot-hold in the village, and all the efforts to get it under control proved futile. The authorities now think the epidemic was spread in Grafton by people eating the rabbits brought into the market. While they were apparently healthy, "they had evidently been inoculated with the had liphtheria by the dead animals.

Sunday-schools and churches. In such an Atlantic Ocean of opportunity there is room for all the nots and all the boats and all the fishermen and for millions more. There should be no rivalry between churches. Each one does a work peculiar to itself. But there are cities in this coun-try where there is now going on an awful ripping and reading and tearing of fishing nets. Indeed, all over Christendom as this time there is a great war going on be-tween fishermen, ministers against minis-ters. ters. Now, I have noticed a man cannot fish He either ters. Now, I have noticed a man cannot fish and tight at the same time. He either neglects his net or his musket. It is annazing how much time some of the fish-ermen have to look after other fishermen. It is more than I can do to take care of my own net. You see the wind is just right, and it is such a good time for hish-ing, and the fish are coming in so rapidly, that I have to keep my eye and hand busy. There are about 200,000,000 souls wanting to get into the kingdom of God, and it will require all the nets and all the inshermen of Christendom to safely land them. Oh, brethren of the ministry, let us spend our time in fishing instead of fighting. But if I angrily jerk my net across your net, an you jerk your net an-grily across mine, we will soon have two broken nets and no fish. The French revolution nearly destroyed the French revolution marily destroyed the French into the kingdom. My friends, I notice in the text that James, the son of Zebe-dee, and John, his brother, were busy not mending somebody else's nets, but mending their own nets, and I rather think that we who are engaged in Christian work in this opening century will require all our spare time to mend our own nets. God we who are engaged in Christian work in this opening century will require all our spare time to mend our own nets. God help us in the important duty! In this work of regain we need to put into the nets more threads of common sense. When we can present religion as a great practicality we will catch a hun-dred souls where we now catch one. Pre-sent religion as an intellectuality, and we will fail. Out in the fisheries there are will fail. Out in the fisheries there are well across the waters what are called gill nets, and the fish put their heads through the meshes and they cannot withdraw them, because they are caught by the gills. But gill nets cannot, be of any serv-rought for the truth by their heads; it is by the heart or not at all. No argument ever hrought a man into the kingdom of God. Heart work, not head work. Away with your gill nets' formuthy, heinful-within life results, mis tropines and the souls within lifteen miles of his log cabin meet-ing-house. To the time of the great disturbance in Naples in 1649, Massaniello, a harefooted has ing boy, dropped his fishing rod, and by strange magnetism took command of that city of 600,000 souls. He took off his fishing jacket and put on a robe of gold in the presence of howling mobe. He put his hand on his lips as a signal and they were stient. He waved his hand away from him and they retired to their homes. Armies passed in review before him. He became the nation's idol. The rapid rise and complete supremacy of that young fisherman, Massaniello, have no parallel in all history. But something equal to that and botter than that is an everyday occurrence in heaven. God takes some of those who in this world were fishers of men and who toiled very hum-by, but because of the way they mended they nets and employed their nets after they were mended. He suddenly hoists them and robes them, and scepters them and crowns them and makes them rulers of aswad ones before them in review-Massaniellos unhoncred on earth, but ra-diated in heaven. The fisher boy of Na-ples soon lost his power, but those people of God who have kept their nets mended and rightly swung them shall never lose their exalted place, but shall reign for-ver and ever and ever. Keep that reward n sight. n sicht.
