How Russell Sage Beat a Young Imi-tator in a Slow Race.

A young man employed in a down town house had occasion recently to interview Russell Sage immediately in behalf of his employers, and Mr. Sage was not especially desir-ous of submitting to the interview. The young man in question is noted among his fellows for possessing on a small scale Russell Sage's chief characteristic. He went to the millionaire's office and learned that that personage had gone to a directmeeting some distance up Broadway. Arriving there, the young man met Mr. Sage in the hallway and spoke to him. Mr. Sage responded briefly and edged to the door. His interviewer, not having got what he wanted, kept along with him and, following Mr. Sage's lead, boarded a street car, both talking as they went. The car was full, and the two clung to straps, the young man trying to arrive at some understanding regarding the matter upon which his employers had sent him and the millionaire replying in monosyllables. The conductor's outstretched hand was ignored.

"Fares!" he ejaculated finally. Mr. Sage and his companion both talked at once, and the conductor moved up the car to give them a chance.

Returning after having collected from everybody else, the conductor stood again before them and said somewhat sharply, "Fares, gentlemen!"

The free hands of the two slowly sought their respective pockets. Very, very slowly indeed each began to fumble for change. Some of the passengers began to watch the interesting race. Once the millionaire's hand was almost out of his pocket, but other thoughts possessed him, and he began fumbling again.

"As I was saying"- began the young man.

"Yes," said Mr. Sage, "I know, but I don't see how I can"-

"Are you guys going to pay your fares or not?" broke in the conductor angrily.

CUR EX-PRESIC TTS.

The death of General Harrison leaves Mr. Cleveland as the only living ex-president, and there connot be a second until 1905 at the earliest. When Mr. Cleveland became president in 1885, there were three ex-presidents living-Grant, Hayes and Arthur. Two of them died within 20 months. President Hayes lived until 1893 and was for a great part of the time after Mr. Arthur's death the only living ex-president.

At the outbreak of the civil war, in 1861, a remarkable number of ex-presidents were alive-Van Buren, at an advanced age; Tyler, who espoused the cause of the south; Fillmore, Pierce and Buchanan. It spared to witness the dramatic culmination of the events in which they had played so conspicuous a historic part. Tyler and Van Buren both died during the war. The other three lived some years after its close.

When Lafayette revisited this country in 1824, although his friend Washington was no more, he found Adams, Jefferson and Madison, all of Washington's successors in the presidential office, still living. What to do with our ex-presidents" must have seemed to him a serious question.

Of late years our presidents have not, as a rule, long survived their term of service. The strain of their office is tremendous and appears to be increasing with the years.----Youth's Companion.

cane. A very handsome walking Straw Hats from stick of ebony, with a heavy gold head, was procured, and the inside was hollowed out and 100 nickels placed therein. The cane was later sent to Washington, where Mr. Jones happened to be staying, and he carries it with him to this day.----Chicago Chronicle.

Pulling Off a Table Function.

E. W. Howe says in the Atchison Globe that at a recent dinner in Atchison a colored man who formerly worked as a passenger brakeman was employed to call out the different spoons and forks to use.

When the oyster cocktails were served, the colored man appeared at the pantry door and said in the voice he formerly used in calling out stations, "Use the small harpoon Both hands fumbled violently and looking fork to the right." When began to draw out. The young the biscuits were brought in, the Use the butter knife directly in front of your plate, not on the side Don't put your dinner knife in the butter plate." When the escaloped fish came on, the brakeman said: "Here is where the best of them usually fall down. Use the silver affair in front of your plate. It is a cross between a fork and a spoon and looks like a scoop shovel with one corner bent." And so on with Satisfaction is our slogan, to have our patrons satisfied in every particular, in quality of goods and prices is our aim in business. We would rather make no sale, than have a customer dissatisfied with a purchase, from every available supply. We have gathered the biggest and best value possible for any store to offer; a prudent purchaser can not afford to ignore in any instance. You are paying less than other stores pay at wholesale. We go into the market with our great chain of stores behind us prepared to buy any quantity, if the price be right, and quality satisfactory.

Hence we have a distinct advantage over every one who does not buy as largely as we do. That is why we can sell you so cheap. Such a purchase as our buyer made last week, of the entire contents of those immense SHOE and CLOTHING factories at Baltimore, would have staggered any merchant who was not sure of the confidence and indorsement of the people, but CONN BROS. knew what they were doing and they knew that you would uphold them; and how could you help it when they secured you

The conductor snatched it from him and rang up two fares viciously. Mr. Sage heaved a sigh of relief and drew out his hand empty. "As you were saying"- he went on.

The Elixir of Youth.

Murat Halstead, white haired and ruddy, was about to mount the stairs in the White House to call on the president when he was halted by Senator Depew, also white haired, robust and ruddy.

"Stop!" said the senator. "Don't risk climbing. Don't wear yourself out that way. The White House has derricks for old men.

"How about yourself? You are no spring chicken."

"Oh, yes I am! I have found a way to abolish Anno Domini."

"How's that-by getting lots of fresh air?"

"By getting plenty of sleep." "Very good. But I thought you were going to throw that fresh air chestnut at me. I'm sick of it. The less fresh air the better."

The white heads then went up stairs arm in arm, each tenderly helping the other, to see the chief magistrate.

Wants Pension For Substitute.

Congressman Brick of Indiana has a constituent who thinks he should have a pension because he sent a substitute to the civil war. "I am old and feeble," he wrote to Mr. Brick, "and I don't suppose I shall live a great while. But I need money while I do live. I think the government owes me something. I paid a man $300 to take my place in the war when I was drafted, and he was killed in action. Now, I think I am entitled to a pension or should get my $300 back. Will you please see that I do?"

The fastest time made by any railroad, it is said, is on the road between Bordeaux and Bayonne, France, where a run of 128 miles is made every day in 128 minutes. It is to the credit of American mechanics that the honor of making this run is accorded to American locomotives.

the different forks and spoons until the end. "It was a good idea. Even the men got through without trouble,"

The Ubiguitous Irish.

The following obituary, which is published in the Dublin Daily Express, is such a remarkable instance of the dispersion of the Irish all over the world that we make no apology for quoting it as it stands: "Geraghty.-Accidentally killed at Johannesburg, South Africa, John Geraghty, aged 37 years, son of Patrick Geraghty of Roscommon, brother of George and Katie Geraghty, Roscommon, and brother of James Geraghty of Pretoria and of William Geraghty of Galway and of Peter, Patrick and Martin Geraghty of New South Wales and of Annie Corley of Suva, Fiji islands. A Governer's Pledges.

A Tokyo newspaper reports the following to be the three articles of faith which Mr. Onoda, governor of the Miyagi prefecture, has selected for his guidance and rule of conduct while discharging his high functions:

Article I .- Not to fall in love with any woman in the locality under my jurisdiction

Article II.-Not to incur debts. Article III.-Not to buy houses or land in the locality under my jurisdiction.

A curious example of the reward of excessive virtue is the case of certain British pickle manufacturers who have been making their pint bottles hold a little more than a pint, to be on the safe side of the English law. Senator Mason leaned against the weather map in the marble room of the senate one day and wiped off half the weather report for the United States at one swoop. The weather man saw what happened and began to jump about wildly. "What's the matter?" asked Sen-
