Now, at the close of another year in the life of the Fulton County News, is a most opportune time to examine the label on your paper. If you owe for a year or more, pay up. Most of the subscribers to the News pay in advance. It takes a whole lot of money to get to you as good a paper as the News, and you can help us greatly by keeping paid up. Besides, the longer it is left run, the harder it is to pay.

William Parsons, of Shade Valley, Huntingdon county, went with his two horse team on a business trip to Dry Run, Franklin county last Tuesday. As he was leaving, the yoke of the tongue broke and the horses started to run off. Mr. Parsons stopped the horses, but in doing so broke his right arm at the wrist. Dr. Shope was called and reduced the fracture.

A young gentleman who had very kindly accompanied a young lady home from the bush meeting at Gem one evening last week, was surprised when passing through the yard gate on leaving her residence to have a big something like a dog spring at him and with a savage growl grab him by the heel. The young man did not faint, however; for a little investigation proved it to be a wag-gish friend who wanted to have a little fun at his expense.

This issue ends the second year's existence of the Fulton County News. The proprietor is most highly gratified with the success the News has attained, and with the generous support given it by the people both in and outside the county. It has a circulation much greater than that ever attained by any other paper in the county, and subscribers are being added daily to its list. No effort will be spared to keep it what it is now, the people's favorite paper.

Services will be held in the U. B. churches on the Hustontown charge September 15, as follows: Mt. Tabor, 10 a. m.; Oak Grove, 2.30 p. m.; Well's Valley, 7.45 p. m. Subject: "Two things that are absolutely necessary to eternal life and admission to heaven." This being the last service before conference, a large congregation is desired. Brotherliness in Brockton.
Here is a story told by Professor Barrett Wendell about Dr. William Everett. The latter was going out to Brockton one night to deliver an address and ran across Mr. Wendell in the Old Park square station. "Come along, Wendell," he said. "I am going out to Brockton to speak, and I want some one respectable to sit on the platform with me." So the professor went along.

When Everett arose to speak, the hall, which was a large one, was only passably well filled, and even the comparatively small number present began to grow smaller as one by one people slipped away. Mr. Wendell began to think that Brockton must be a singularly cold hearted place when suddenly he noticed people coming in by twos and threes and silently taking seats wherever they could find them. Soon the hall was full, with standing room only, but still they came till the aisles and walls were lined with interested listeners.

The supposed deserters had simply gone out and told the people of Brockton that here was the greatest man they'd ever heard and gathered them in by the score.—Boston Herald.

Woe by His Wit.
A story is told of an English clergyman who owed his appointment to a rich living to a lucky pun. He was tutor to the son of a nobleman and had not long taken orders when he attended the funeral of the rector of the parish in which the nobleman's seat was situated.

The father of his pupil was patron of the living and was also present at the funeral of the deceased rector. There was a young clergyman present also whose grief was so demonstrative that the noble patron was much affected by the sight and asked if the young man was a son of the deceased gentleman.

"Oh, dear, no, my lord—no relation at all," said the tutor.

"No relation?" exclaimed the nobleman in a surprised tone.

"None, my lord; he is the curate, and I think he is not weeping for the dead, but for the living."

His lordship, who was something of a wit and a little himself, was so delighted with the humor that he conferred the living upon the ready punster.

How They Do in China.
In China liquids are sold by weight and grain by measure. John buys soap by the pound and cloth by the foot. A Chinaman never puts his name outside of his shop, but paints instead a motto or a list of his goods on his vertical signboard. Some reassuring remark is frequently added, such as "One word hall," "A chili two feet high would not be cheated." Every single article has to be bargained for and it is usual for the customer to take his own measure and scales with him.

When you engage a servant or make a bargain, it is not considered binding until "the fastening penny" has been paid. Although his bad faith is notorious in some matters, yet, to do him justice, when once this coin has been paid by you he Chinaman, coolly or shoptan will generally stick to his bargain even if the result to him be loss.

Mississippi Annotated.
