ucation, Martin Grove Brumbaugh, A. M. Ph. D., the development of the sunny isle has just received a notable impetus in Andrew Carnegie's gift of $100,000 for a public library. The library will be built in the Plaza Colon at San Juan, and will contain 25,000 English and Spanish volumes. Definite plans will be formulated when Dr. Brumbaugh confers with Mr. Carnegie some time this month. Dr. Brumbaugh is not a stranger to Pittsburgers. He has lectured before local audiences a number of times, and has many ardent admirers here. Endowed with a charming and inspiring in dividuality, he has made himself one of the foremost educators of the country. Less than 25 years ago he was a lad in a mountain village of Huntingdon county, Pa. On the eve of an intended secret departure for the West an uncle happened to offer to aid him in furthering his education. His trunk, already packed, was sent to college instead of to the Rockies. He served as superintendent of schools in his county two terms and afterward pursued his studies in Harvard and the University of Pennsylvania, and later in Germany. In 1898 he was placed in charge of the department of ped agogy at the University of Pennsylvania, and was elected president Juniata college at Huntingdon. He filled both positions acceptably, and has lectured extensively throughout the country. Last year he was granted a leave of absence from his duties to assume a position as one of the Porto Rican commissioners. The schools in the island have developed wonderfully through his organization. Numerous new schools, built with insular funds, have been opened, and about 200 English teachers are employed. Heretofore there had been no school buildings on the island. Commissioner Brumbaugh's "History of the Brethren" (Dunkers) is an authority in American church history. He has also written on phases of Pennsylvania history, where his interest centers; and Old Keystone is proud of her son.

Then we were told that the pretty sister was mara good husband, but somehow family cares were not to her taste and wearied her. The elder sister had not married, and was devoting her life to her younger sister and her family, lifting the cares from her selfish pretty sister's shoulders. But she loved these children as if they were her own, and her influence over them, no doubt, was much better than their mother's, who preferred social pleasures to home duties.
