AN UNEXPECTED CONVERT.

A Good Story of Lord Brougham and Father Mathew.

Lord Brougham told Father Mathew, the celebrated Irish temperance advocate, that he was extremely abstemious in the matter of wine.

"I'll tell you what I'll do," said Brougham, "I'll put it on him."

"I'll tell you what I'll do," said Brougham, "I'll put it on him."

GOOD NIGHT.

Good night. The tiny stars peep out on high; The silver moon, the dark blue sky; The zephyr's whisper; the owl cry.

TASTING OF LIQUORS.

A Good Deal of Humbug in the Expert Palate Claim.

Stories about the delicate "taste" of those who claim to be wine experts are always interesting.

"Your excellency appears to be of a different opinion," said the court marshal.

"The wine," said the poet, "is quite unknown to me, but I do not think that it is burgundy."

"And so, in fact, it is," said the court marshal.

There is a great deal of humbug in this wine tasting and "expert palate" in liquors.

What He Might Do.

The custom of preserving the business name of a firm years after the founders have passed away or disappeared finds its reproach in a story related by the New York Post.

A young man who was sent out to canvass leading lawyers in a certain interest entered the office of a firm of great prominence and said:

"I should like to see Mr. M.," mentioning the first name of the firm.

"Very sorry, sir, but Mr. M. has been dead three years," was the answer.

"Well, in that case I should like to see Mr. N.," the second name of the firm.

"Mr. N. retired from the firm over a year ago," said the clerk, with a smile.

"Indeed; then may I see Mr. O.?" the last name of the three.

"Mr. O.," replied the clerk, "sailed last week for Europe and won't be back for a month yet. Is there anything I can do for you?"

"There is," answered the canvasser with the utmost suavity.

"Some day, when you have time, you might bring the firm name up to date."

Difference in Hair.

The difference between straight and curly hair is very apparent on a microscopical examination.

A hair is a hollow tube, and a straight hair is as sound as a reed, while a curly hair is always flattened on both sides and curls toward one of the flat sides and never toward the edge.

Indian Names.

A station not very far from Pittsburgh on the Baltimore and Ohio railroad has the good old English name of Soho.

As a train neared the town not long ago the word was distinctly shouted, and a passenger was heard to say to the man sharing his seat:

"How many towns in this part of the country have Indian names? Just think of it—Soho, Monongahela and Duquesne all near together."

An attorney with a great deal of self-importance, was cross-examining an aged negro. His dignity suffered from the following: But you are not a young woman? No, honey? I've old enough to be yah mommy, but, thank God, I isn't.

A Unique Demonstration of Euclid's Forty-seventh Proposition.

No mathematical proposition, abstractly considered, is more puzzling to students than Euclid's famous forty-seventh—the square described on the hypotenuse of a right angled triangle is equal to the sum of the squares described on the other two sides.

Of course Euclid demonstrates the proposition mathematically, but a very simple and practical demonstration may be made with dominos.

Now place four dominos on the altitude of the triangle, arranged so that the center square will be blank, and eight dominos on the base, in two rows of four each, placed endwise.

It was while Jack Haverly's fortunes were on the wane and the once great manager was feeling the change in the tide of his affairs that Eugene Field wrote the poem beginning "Jack Haverly, Jack Haverly, I wonder where you are."

Haverly was in New York at the time. Before a copy of the poem reached him by mail a friend rushed into his office and exclaimed: "Jack, Gene Field has written a poem about you. It's great. Read it."

"What do you think of it?" asked the friend.

Haverly replied solemnly, "Thank goodness, it is over."

"What's over?" anxiously inquired the friend.

"Why," replied Haverly, "I have worried all my life as to what I should like to have inscribed on my tombstone. Field has not written merely a poem; he has written my epitaph."—New York Times.

Bad Effects of Tight Collars.

A chapter might be written on the deleterious effects of tight collars, and especially that variety which projects stiffly beneath the neck, to the manifest discomfort of the wearer.

She Hadn't Dropped Off.

"Sarah," said a lady to her servant, "I am very tired and am going to lie down for an hour. If I should happen to drop off, call me at 5."

"Yes, ma'am," replied the dutiful Sarah. The lady reclined on the couch, closed her eyes and was soon in the land of nod.

wasn Your New Socks.

A pair of new socks, fresh from the store, feel very comfortable to the feet, but the man who wears them before they are washed makes a mistake.

Languages and Dialects.

The least learned are aware that there are many languages in the world, but the actual number is probably beyond the dreams of the ordinary people.

Concise.

"You are all the world to me," said the baron.

Many of the Feathered Tribe Are Gifted as Ventriloquists.

Many birds have the gift of ventriloquism. They use their power to a good effect because by it they are often enabled to mislead their enemies, although ornithologists say they do so unconsciously.

The pinnated grouse, or prairie chicken, has this power to a remarkable degree, as its tone when produced but a few rods from the listener often has the effect of a sound originating nearly a mile distant.

The little bird known as the Maryland yellow throat, which lives in low, bushy swamps during the summer, shows considerable ability as a ventriloquist.

Many of the ground birds have a peculiar habit of throwing their voices upward so that they appear to come from treetops.

They delight in telling stories against themselves in Dunedin, which they can afford to do, as they are a generous spirited and jovial folk.

The Canny Scot.

When the visitor was returning to Dunedin, the Irishman saw him down to the steamer, and they went into the saloon to have a parting drink.

The word "cash."

The word "cash" is understood to be derived from the Italian "cassa," the chest where Italian merchants kept their money.

Great mischief has too often arisen, as is well known, in bankrupt trials from misuse of the word "cash," in which large deficiencies often appear, and which would not be the case if the word chest were used, as it ought to be.

Japanese Caution.

Among the characteristics of the Japanese an American at once notices their love for children.

Why Bother Him?

Pat had secured lodgings in the town and gone to bed early. The wind was blowing a terrific gale, and as the house did not stand very securely the landlord was rather anxious about its safety.

Origin of Vegetables.

Celery, it is said, originated in Germany. The onion in Egypt. The parsnip in Arabia. Spinach was also first cultivated there.

The cucumber hails from the East Indies. The radish is a native of China and Japan. Cabbage grew wild in Siberia. Parsley was first known in Sardinia. The garden cress is from Egypt and the east.

Foley's Honey and Tar for children, safe, sure. No opiates.

THE FRUIT CURE.

Of the innumerable "cures" which have from time to time met favor in the eyes of the public the simplest and most agreeable of all is perhaps the "fruit cure."

Fruits are divided into five classes—the astringent, the mealy, the oily, the acid and sweet. Each has an especial value.

The grape is the king cure of all fruits, and is recommended particularly to the consumptive, the anemic and the dyspeptic; also for gout and all liver complaints.

The prescription in each case is very simple, varying, of course, according to the complaint. To begin with, the patient consumes from a half to a pound and a half of grapes daily, increasing gradually to nine or ten pounds.
