

SOWING AND REAPING.

Contributed to the NEWS by D. H. Myers. If we desire to accomplish anything in this world, we must have the courage to attempt hard things. "The slothful man saith there is a lion in the way."

upon those whose memories have been exalted by those who have lived after them? We shall obtain but an imperfect view of this subject, if we limit our thoughts to the period of our existence here. Our actions will travel on in their consequences far beyond the period of our continuance in this world.

Curing A Borrower.

People who are continually borrowing household utensils and neglect to return them are annoying neighbors. The problem of how to cure them of the habit was solved in an effective though somewhat costly way by one long suffering householder.

FOKYO A CITY OF PLEASURE.

In Some Ways Japan's Capital is More Fascinating Than Paris. Of all the lands in the world none exerts the peculiar fascination of Japan. Others have equal beauty of scenery, greater grandeur, more noble works of art, more interesting problems of society, writes David Starr Jordan in The Humanitarian.

MILES OF VARYING LENGTHS.

Seventeen Countries That Have Special Measurements of Their Own. English speaking countries, says the St. Louis Globe-Democrat, have four different miles—the ordinary mile of 5,280 feet and the geographical or nautical mile of 6,085, making a difference of about one-seventh between the two; then there is the Scotch mile of 5,938 feet and the Irish mile of 6,720 feet—four various miles, every one of which is still in use.

USES OF RAWHIDE.

Cogwheels Made of it and Mallets and Many Other Things. "One of the most curious of the many things made nowadays of rawhide," said a man who handles such articles in his business, "is the rawhide pinion or cogwheel. You might think that the teeth of such a wheel would break down and wear off quicker than those of an iron wheel, but as a matter of fact they do not break, and a rawhide pinion will wear as long as an iron pinion, if not longer.

The Murderer and Captain Byrnes.

McGloin was a young ruffian who had murdered a saloon keeper at a midnight raid on his place. He was the fellow who the night before he was hanged invited the chief of detectives to "come over to the wake. They'll have a devil of a time." For six months Byrnes had tried everything to bring the crime home to him, but in vain.

Ruined by His Stomach.

The first Napoleon's fondness for mutton and garlic is generally known, and it has been contended, and possibly with some reason, that had he been more abstemious at the time of the battle of Leipsic that tremendous conflict might have ended differently. The emperor certainly had to quit the battlefield, an ugly rumor says, from a severe attack of colic brought on by over-indulgence in one of his favorite but indigestible dishes.

Japanese Bells.

Bells were in use in China, Japan and India long before they were known in Europe. In the space fronting the temples of Nikko, Japan, there are enormous bells of exquisite purity of sound too heavy to be suspended in any tower which this people build, and so they are swung on low frames of stout timber, the bell being only three or four feet from the ground.

IT REQUIRED NERVE.

But the Scheme Was Worked to a Successful Consummation. It began to rain, and the stranger in the city said, "I wish we'd brought along an umbrella." His friend, the New Yorker, quickly responded, "Wait; I'll get you one."

The Cap and Hat Riots.

Those civil disturbances—the cap and hat riots—were in Sweden from 1738 to 1771. The caps were the Russians and their sympathizers; the hats were the French. For a time the kingdom was reduced almost to a state of anarchy by the two contending factions, but order was restored by Gustavus III. in 1771, who, desirous of excluding all foreign intervention in the affairs of Sweden, forbade the use of the names and sternly repressed all disorders growing out of the political dissension between the factions.

The Changing Flower.

During the summer of 1890 the botanists made a wonderful discovery in Tehautepec, having established the fact beyond a doubt that the native "hinta" has a flower that changes its color three or more times each day when the weather is favorable. In the morning it is white, at noon it has changed to a deep red, at night it is blue. It is even claimed that some individual trees of this species have a flower that changes to many intermediate hues during the night.

The Wisdom of Experience.

When I was 20, I thought I was 40; when I was 30 I thought I was 50; when I was 40 I thought I was 25, and when I was 50 I wondered if they were going to bring in the high chair at the table and give me the bottle.—W. W. Goodwin, Retiring Harvard Professor, at a Dinner in His Honor.

A Generous Hostess.

"Our cook didn't break a dish while she lived with us, but we had to buy new ones when she left." "How was that?" "Oh, we think that every time any of her friends visited her she gave them souvenirs."—Detroit Free Press.
