A tablespoonful of turpentine boiled with your white clothes will aid in the whitening process.

Boiled starch is much improved by the addition of a little sperm or a little salt or a little gum arabic disolved. Clear boiling water will remove tea stains and many fruit stains. Pour the water through the stain, and thus prevent it spreading over the fabric. All canned vegetables should be opened and set aside, if possible out of doors, for some time, perhaps half an hour, before using. Thus the oxygen, removed in the process of canning, is restored to them, and with it much of the fresh taste.

Beeswax and salt will make your rusty flat irons as smooth and clean as glass. Tie a lump of beeswax in a rag and keep it for that purpose When the irons are hot rub them first with the wax rag, then scour with a paper or cloth sprinkled with sait.

AN INDIAN BOOTBLACK.

Sitting Bull's eldest son is a bootblack. His name is Montezuma, and he is a graduate of the Carlisle Indian school.

After his schooling he went to Philadelphia full of ambition and musing over the profession he would adopt. At first it seemed to him that he might be a banker and then, when no one seemed inclined to help him along that path, a master merchant. But he was beginning to learn that there is no royal road to riches, and he thereupon decided that he would black shoes. For a few cents he bought the regulation kit, and it was not long before he could send for Winonah, stoan from the Rosebud agency, the girl Jess Dekson who had promised to marry massionally.

Sloan Mrs. S. A. Nesbit Mary S out Instead of the soapbox which Montezuma once carried for an outfit, he now has a handsome stand, and is building up a more flourishing business every day. Best of all, he lays his success to Carlisle, for, as he says, he learned there how to do 6 The Father's Care, Matt. 6: 25-34; things well, the small as well as the great,-Youth's Companion.

A Chinese Sawmill. It is a strange sight to see a Chinese sawmill and the peculiar manner in which the work is accomplished. It consists of a log that has been hewn square and placed upon supports, on which a single Chinaman nearly naked stands and manipulates a large saw, which com-prises the motive power and the requisite machinery, and by a very slow process the lumber is cut in thickness to meet the demands of trade. It is said there are no other kinds of sawmills in all that country. And to think that such a state of affairs exists in an empire over a 17 The Life of Faith, Gen. 12: 1-5; thousand years old and among a people in some respects so profi-The reason for this no doubt is the immense population that struggles for existence. Very cheap labor is the result, the average wages being from 10 to 20 cents

"When I have anything to say," remarked Henry Watterson the other day, "I write it. Then I put it in my pocket. After awhile I take it out, read it and write it again. Once more I put it away. Then I write it again and send it down to the printer and have it put in type. When I get the proof, I run over it closely and write it again, and again it goes to the printer. Afterward it is sent to me again in the revised proof. Then I make the last corrections and send it down again. And then," continued Mr. Watterson, with a heavy sigh, "the confounded printer gets it wrong."

One of Secretary Shaw's Stories.

"A friend of mine," said Secretary Shaw the other day, "gave a dinner once to some rural gentlemen from Iowa. He furnished them the best of everything, terrapin and canvasback duck. The climax of the feast was a watermelon into which had been emptied two quarts of champagne. When the farmers began to eat the watermelon, they smiled and smacked their lips and ate again. Then of one accord they slipped into their pockets a handful 9 God's Covenant and Ours, Exodus of the seeds. They wanted to raise some of the same kind of melon on their own farms."

Hew Grand Viziers Die.

Of the latest 200 grand viziers of the sultan of Turkey not more than twenty-four have died naturally. One hundred of them were poisoned, and thirty-six of the others were either beheaded or drowned in the Bosporus. Of the remaining forty the cause of death cannot be traced, but from the silence of Turkish historians on the subject their end was evidently not happy. One of the viziers was only four hours in office, and another occupied the position for only ten minutes, being strangled at the end of that time.

Blackburn and Frye.

Senators Frye and Blackburn are very good friends. Nothing delights the president pro tem. of the senate more than to imitate the Kentucky accent of Blackburn. He declares that the other day when Blackburn was in the marble room a man asked him if Senator Hoar was on the floor of the senate.

"No, suh," replied Blackburn, acout that do' at half past fo'."

An Odd Classification.

A custom house decision on fleas has been rendered in Switzerland. A package marked "Trained Fleas" reached Geneva. The nearest analogy the collector could find was that of June bugs, which had been ruled as "edibles." The case went from one official to another till it reached headquarters at Berne, whence after much investigation and deliberation the conclusion was reached that the fleas came under the head of "wild animals in a menagerie."

Mistakes of Story Writers.

Easterners who write western stories for the eastern magazines are a source of never ending amusement. Recently we quoted from a story by Cyrus Townsend Brady, in which that author had a woman perform the marvelous feat of riding on horseback ninety miles in two hours. This he accomplished by naming two Oklahoma towns that distance apart as her starting point and destination. Not long since an eastern magazine contained a mining story which located a chain of mountains in Kansas about forty miles south of Topeka. In the March Harper's is an Oklahoma story by a woman. One scene is located in a camp, and she has the Texas cowboys getting out before breakfast to "rub down" their ponies. If a Texas cowboy should rub down his pony, the pony would fa'! dead from sheer astonishment.-Kansas City Journal.

Buttons Made of Milk.

Were you aware of the fact that buttons are now made of milk in England? Old milk, too, that has soured and is valueless so far as dairies are concerned. It is sent to three large manufactories in the east end of London and there churned, very much after the manner of making cheese, into buttons. This cheese is then put under enormous pressure until every drop of moisture is wrung from it, when it moisture is wrung from it, when it is passed into a chemically heated room. It is then, while under great heat, bleached white and flattened out ready to be punched into the required shapes. It is found that buttons can be made in this way at less than half the cost entailed in manufacturing home ones and bemanufacturing bone ones, and besides never rubbing away they do not change color.
