Deputy Register of Wills Irwin dress vesterday admitted to probate the will of William R. Smith, of 902 South Nineteenth street, disposing of an estate valued at $5,-300. The document was written with pencil on the back of a piece of wall paper about two feet square. It was undated, but the I etitioner, Cora E. Smith, widow of the decedent, produced two witnesses, who said it had been executed about April 2.

The testator said : "To my children I leave my blessing and best wishes for their welfare in life. As they are all good, sensi ble boys and girls, they will see that if I cut the little that may be M left up into so many parts there paid, I leave and bequeath unto common school branches. my wife, Cora E. Smith, all my real estate and personal property become possessed of for her sole, ply exclusive use, knowing that by so doing she will be the better able to do what she wishes for the good of all, and I hereby appoint my said wife, Cora E. Letters testamentary were granted to Mrs. Smith.

Deputy Register Irwin said there had been in his time all sorts of queer wills probated, some written on envelopes, others in notebooks and copybooks, and even one in the back of a Bible, but this was the first one in his recollection that was inscribon wall paper.
