

CATARRH THIRTY YEARS.

The Remarkable Experience of a Prominent Statesman—Congressman Meekison Gives Pe-ru-na a High Endorsement.

Congress Meekison of Ohio.
Hon. David Meekison is well known not only in his own State, but throughout America. He was elected to the Fifty-fifth Congress by a very large majority, and is the acknowledged leader of his party in his section. He is a man of high character, with its insidious approach and tenacious grasp, was his only un conquered foe. For thirty years he waged successful warfare against this personal enemy. At last Peruna came to the rescue. He writes:

"I have used several bottles of Pe-ru-na and I feel greatly benefited thereby from my catarrh of the head. I feel encouraged to believe that if I use it a short time longer I will be fully able to eradicate the disease of thirty years' standing."—David Meekison, Member of Congress.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Pe-ru-na write once to Dr. Hartman, giving full name and address of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

Address Dr. Hartman, President of The Hartman Sanitarium, Columbus, Ohio.

Raising the Wind.
When a certain late Shah of Persia became temporarily embarrassed for money he had quite a unique method of filling his purse. He would go to the market, where, after examining the shops, he would select one and, turning to the proprietor, would say: "Will you take me in as a partner in your business for the day?" The offer was, of course, accepted. The Shah would take his seat near the shop entrance and say to his courtiers, whom he always took with him on these occasions: "Now, I'm the salesman. Who'll buy?" The latter, not daring to refuse the offer of the royal merchant, set about clearing the shop of its contents, paying sometimes two hundred and fifty dollars for goods that were not worth fifty dollars. No one was allowed to beat down the prices or to leave the place without making purchases. When everything was sold the Shah had a list of the cost price of each article made out, and loyally shared with the shopkeeper the amount of the profits realized.

The best way to cure indigestion is to remove its cause. This is best done by the prompt use of Dr. August Koenig's Hamburg Drops, which regulate the stomach in an effectual manner.

London Crows Look Much Alike.
To the chance observer the thronging thousands of overcrowded London are not easily classified, writes Walter A. Wyoff in Scribner's. One readily recognizes certain types, as the casual and tramps and abandoned women, the fetsam and jetsam generally of a city population which are not widely unlike wherever met. But this carries one but a little way in knowing a city full of industrious workers of all manner of antecedents and ranging from fourty years to old age and engaged in nearly every conceivable industry. There is little, any longer, in the dress of the English working classes, as in the case of the working classes in America, to give them a distinctive stamp. The factory girl is a type apart and the costermonger and the Jew of the sweat-shops, and one imagines that one distinguishes roughly between skilled and unskilled workmen, and certainly between criminals and honest workers, until experience suggests a difficulty. But for those who, from long study of the working classes, or, more often, have come to know their life and labor, there are ready standards of classification. None is simpler than that of wages.

Many men are knowing, many are apprehensive and tenacious, but they do not rush to a decision. But in our flowing affairs a decision must be made—the best if you can, but any is better than none. There are twenty ways of going to a point, and one is the shortest; but set out at once on one.

Some people contrive to get hold of the prickly side of everything, to run against all the sharp corners and disagreeable things. Half the strength spent in grumbling would often set things right. No one finds the world quite as he would like it.

It is not said that after keeping God's commandments and in keeping them, there is great reward. God has linked these two things together, and no man can separate them—obedience and peace.

Your Hair

FARM MATTERS.

Feed for Growing Pigs.
Growing pigs should never be fed a great amount of corn. They should receive bran, shorts and in some cases oats, although oats are not considered a very profitable feed for swine. Ground barley is excellent and good grass is always desirable. The pig should never be extremely fat, as it checks growth and injures his thrift; afterwards. The pigs should be kept growing from start to finish, as a poor pig seldom pays.

A Manure For Wheat.
Wheat bran, having been used by a Western farmer as a manure for wheat, has been found by him to be excellent. He claims that the application of one ton of bran to the acre is equal to that obtained from the usual application of a mixture of bone dust, guano, lime and wood ashes, and that the difference in yield of crops that received bran as compared with those not so treated was very great.

Disinfecting a Barn.
Disinfecting a large barn is a task that is not agreeable, and the work must be thorough or it will be lost time. At the Utah Experiment Station fifty-six pots of chemicals intended to give off chlorine gas were distributed through the barn used, but the gas did not diffuse. Then sulphur, moistened with alcohol, was used, and the fumes penetrated every crack and crevice, giving excellent satisfaction and accomplishing all that was desired.

The Draining.
An exchange tells of a tile which received the drainage of a nine-acre field, and was found to be discharging at the rate of 450 barrels in twenty-four hours, when there had not been any rain for forty-eight hours. This is fifty barrels per acre, and it would require but a few days to reduce a wet and miry field to a condition fit for cultivation. There is no question as to the draining enables the land to be worked earlier by making it drier, and yet by keeping it more porous it makes it less subject to injury to the crop by drought. But not all fields of low land can be tile drained with advantage to the owner. There are some where there is not fall enough from the surface to running water to allow draining to the required depth. And there are basins which are so surrounded by higher land, and possibly land belonging to other people who would not allow ditching through it, that to tile drain in the usual way would be almost an impossibility. But we have relieved such places by sinking a well or putting a large tile down until it reached a sandy or gravelly subsoil, whether it were four feet or twelve feet. If put in the lowest part of the basin, the water would flow there without trouble, or if the basin was large it might be carried there by lateral drains.—The Cultivator.

About the Corn Crib.
Every corn crib should have some means by which corn may be put in without having to pitch over the top from the first, and by which it can be easily removed at the bottom. The illustration represents a good method of doing this. Between two of the uprights which are several feet apart, the boards are sawed out with bev-veled ends before nailing on. The boards are not only elevated but are cut at an angle crosswise, so that in the section of the board cut out the longest edge is above. They are so beveled that the longest side comes on the inside, all of which is shown very clearly in the drawing. The beveling should be done with a miter, and the boards when once fitted should be numbered or lettered that they may be kept in place. When filling the crib one board after another may be put in from the bottom up and in taking corn out a board may be pried loose at the bottom.—A. Franklin Shull, in American Agriculturist.

HANDY DEVICE FOR THE CORN CRIB.

Way to Heat Water For Cattle.

The subjoined diagram illustrates how easily water can be warmed in a small way, where both house and barn are furnished with running water and moderate plumbing arrangements. The pipe marked e, f, running through the house cellar, furnishes water to the house and barn. By means of two short pipes, e, d, the pipe from the hot water boiler in the house is connected with the pipe, e, f, which as before stated supplies the barn with cold water.

Then all that is necessary to fill the barn tub with warm water is to open the valve b, and shut valve a, thus letting the warm water from the house boiler into the pipe which goes to the barn and shutting off the flow of cold. This clever little scheme has worked successfully on an up-to-date farm in Amherst, Mass., and has furnished warm water to four cows and two or three horses for several winters. The only objection is that the good housewife sometimes objects to having her supply of hot water exhausted two or three times a day.—American Agriculturist.

Another Substitute For Coal.
A Chicago man has patented a device which is to do away with coal, at least so long as the oil deposits hold out. It is a brick made of solidified crude petroleum. The oil is treated in such a way that it assumes a pasty consistency and may be moulded into any shape and hardened. A small block representing a half-pint of oil is said to burn fiercely for twenty minutes, emitting no smoke or smell and giving a hotter fire than coal. It is said that these bricks cannot explode and can be made to give at $5 or $6 a ton, each ton containing the calorific energy of two or three tons of coal.

Dairy Notes.

An Important Difference.
A difference of only one quart of milk a day for ten months between two cows amounts to 300 quarts, which will be worth from $10 to $20, according to the price obtained per quart. This fact should convince all who sell milk from the farm that it does not pay to keep any but the best cows to be obtained.

Pastures Grazed Too Close.
Many of our pasture fields are grazed too close to the ground. When a herd of cows have free access to pasture they really cut the grass down many times, and much closer than is usually done with the mower. No plants will thrive if not given an opportunity to make growth, and the grass on some pastures is killed by continually checking the growth, while the feet of the animals greatly damage the grass, as the smaller the supply the more trampling by the stock.

A Ration For the Cow.
Not every farmer has a silo or a corn-shredding machine. They cost too much for the man who has but two or three cows. But he can pick the ears from his corn stover and the grain ground and the cob, too, if he so wishes, then have the stover well cured in the field, and when he takes it to the barn have it cut into pieces not more than a half inch long, and shorter if possible. Then moisten it with warm water if such is convenient to the cow stables, and cover it up to steam for twenty-four hours, at least, before feeding. Put on each cow's ration as much and such grain as her condition calls for, and if she does not do as well as she would on ensilage, she will do better than on dry corn stover. If obliged to wet it with cold water, it will be better for standing forty-eight hours, to germinate a little heat by fermentation.

Alfalfa For Milk Cows.
A test with alfalfa was made at the Wyoming Experiment Station, comparing alfalfa with wheat bran as a ration for milk cows. As is well known in every dairy section, wheat bran is an exceedingly efficient feed for the production of milk. It is easily digested and the returns are always satisfactory. However, it is very costly in the Western States and alfalfa is cheap. According to analysis the alfalfa contains a little more crude protein than bran, and considerable more ash. With this in view, a test was made for twenty days with some milk cows upon a neighboring farm. For the first ten days a ration containing a small amount of bran and all of the alfalfa hay that would be eaten was given. The last ten days a heavy food of bran with native hay was given. The results show that although the bran produced the highest yield of milk, the alfalfa ration was by far the most economical.

Beans as a Dairy Food.
Query.—Some farmers are buying ground beans for cows. Is it safe to feed them? What should they be mixed with for good milk ratio? Which of the following is cheapest, according to feed value at given prices per ton? Bran $23, middlings $25, corn meal $27, beans $14.
Answer.—I will say that we have not experimented in the feeding of beans to milk cows at this station. Ground beans can be fed with apparent safety to cows if fed only in very small proportion and thoroughly mixed with other food. The market price of beans is generally too high for stock food, except the damaged material, so they are seldom used for cows. We do not advise the use of any such unpalatable food in more than very small quantity. The wheat bran will supply about fifty-seven per cent, of digestible dry matter, wheat middlings about sixty-five per cent, and corn meal about seventy-six per cent. The choice of these grains depends upon what coarse fodders are available. The bran and middlings supply nearly twice as much digestible protein as the corn meal. The beans are highly nutritious and at the price would supply the small proportion of protein that can be safely derived from this source cheaper than the other food.—Dr. W. P. Wheeler, of the New York Experiment Station.

Danger in Dust.
Dust as a cause of pulmonary tuberculosis, according to the report of the Imperial health office in Berlin, is clearly shown in the statistics of the patients treated at the sixty institutions of the empire for the cure of tuberculosis. In 1905 cases, or more than half of the 2161 persons under consideration, the origin of the disease was alleged to be due to the continuous inhalation of dust involved by their employment, as follows: Four hundred and thirty-one cases from the effect of dust, 116 cases from the effect of wood dust, and 125 cases from the effect of various kinds of dust. These facts suggest to hygienists and inventors the necessity of devising dust consumers and dust preventers for factories, workshops, etc. This is a fact that legislators should bear in mind.—American Medicine.

ASIATIC MAILS HARD TO HANDLE.

Changes in the Seattle Postoffice to Facilitate Them.
Perhaps the most difficult section of the duties of the foreign mails office of the United States Postoffice Department is that of Asiatic mails, says the American Asiatic. Recently there have been some changes in the methods of the department, and particularly toward quicker dispatch. Among these changes is the assignment of the Seattle office of the making up of inward and outward mails for all sailings and arrivals of mail steamships of the ports of Seattle, Tacoma, and Vancouver and Victoria, in connection with all territory north of Canton, in East Asia. This includes all the vessels of the Great Northern or Nippon Yusen Kaisha Company, the Northern Pacific Steamship Company, and the Royal Mail Steamship Company, sailing to and from Japan and China. The territory involves China and coast points south, Japan, Siberia and Korea. The duties of the foreign department of the Seattle postoffice are particularly responsible in the proper assignment of mails to the East Asiatic distributing points. And in the absence of Asiatic detailed geographic intelligence by the general public, and also due to the general ignorance of the postoffice "geography" prompt dispatch is often impossible. Mail often reaches this point from interior United States offices, being wrongly directed by the addresser, which has to be redirected via New York.

This is particularly the case with mail for British India, the Dutch East Indies, and other important trading points not within the trans-Pacific mail jurisdiction. Mails are made up at Seattle for Japan, whence Korean and Siberian mail is distributed, Shanghai, Hongkong and Chinese ports dependent on Hongkong distribution. Mail is also taken for the Philippines when directed by this route, but at international rates, all Philippine Islands mail being usually routed at domestic rates via San Francisco on account of the United States transport mail service thence. San Francisco distributes mail for trans-Pacific sailings and arrivals at that port. New York sends mail by the eastern or Suez route to India, Siam and Dutch East Indies. This mail goes direct to London for transfer to British mail steamships.

SYRUP OF FIGS

Acts Gently;
Acts Pleasantly;
Acts Beneficially;
Acts truly as a Laxative.

Syrup of Figs appeals to the cultured and the well-informed and to the healthy, because its component parts are simple and wholesome and because it acts without disturbing the natural functions, as it is wholly free from every objectionable quality or substance. In the process of manufacturing figs are used, as they are pleasant to the taste, but the medicinal virtues of Syrup of Figs are obtained from an excellent combination of plants known to be medicinally laxative and to act most beneficially.

Thirteens Outdid Him.
A gentleman tells why he failed to secure a house when he took a day off to look for one.

He made a note of half a dozen or more vacant dwellings in the neighborhood where he wished to locate and started out to inspect them. The first was Number Thirteen, but he was so occupied in the details of his search that he failed to notice the ominous figures. While he was gazing at the front of that dwelling and thinking that it looked all right, a friend came along the street.

"What's doing?" inquired the friend. "Looking at this house," was the reply. "I am thinking of renting it."

"For Heaven's sake don't do that," responded the other. "Don't you see it is Number Thirteen? Besides, this is the thirteenth day of the month. Don't make such a break as that."

With his attention called to the coincidence the house hunter concluded that he would not complete the deal. He took out his list to see what other houses were on it, and, to his astonishment, found that each one had thirteen in its number.

"I quit right there," he said afterward. "I am not superstitious, but my aunt, who lives with me, is, and I cannot get her against such a combination of thirteens."
