Harry A. Thompson, editor Tyrone Times, issued no paper Christmas week, and gave his force of hands a little vacation. He, accompanied by his daughter Nell, went to Philadelphia, where she remained with some of her young lady friends, while her father went on to New York on business and pleasure.

FOR THE LITTLE ONES.

How Little Bel Got the Spool of Silk and the Banana.

One morning little Bel was sent by her mamma to the "button store" to match a spool of silk. She had often been trusted on such errands, though only four years old, and very proud she used to feel as she trudged along, "helping mamma."

"Be sure and get just that shade of blue and come right back, little daughter," said mamma as she kissed her goodby.

"Yes, ma'am," was the sturdy answer.

Now, on the way to the button store there was a fruit stand, and Bel often used to look at it with longing eyes. This morning she saw something she had not seen for a long time—great, beautiful red bananas. If Bel liked anything in the world, it was a banana. She wondered how much they would cost. Then she thought she would ask. "Five cents." Why, she had just 5 cents in her fat fingers that very minute! Before you could think she hadn't 5 cents at all, but had the banana instead.

Do you think she went right home? Not she. She marched straight to the button store and, standing on tiptoe, reached her sample above the counter, saying: "My mother wants a spool of silk like this."

The lady smiled down at the mite, matched the silk carefully and handed it to her.

"Fank you," said Bel. She never forgets her manners.

"But, little girl," called the lady, "didn't your mamma send any money for the silk?"

"Yes'm, but I bought a banana." And before the lady could stop laughing she was on the street, hurrying home.—Doll's Dressmaker.

Story of the Letter "i."

The small letter "i" was formerly written without the dot over it. The dot was introduced in the fourteenth century to distinguish "i" from "e" in hasty and indistinct writing. The letter "i" was also originally used where the "j" is now employed, the distinction between the two having been introduced by the Dutch writers in comparative modern times. The "j" was originally dotted because the "i," from which it is derived, was written with a dot over it.—New York World.

A Set of Pigs.

Little Howard, being asked if he did not want to accompany his father to a neighboring farm, seemed to be doubtful about it.

"You'd better come along," said his father. "They have a lot of little pigs."

"Oh, that's nothing," said Howard. "Cogswell's folks has a set of 'em."

Lions For Playmates.

One would hardly think that a little child would venture to play with young lions, yet there is a child in Turin, Italy, who plays with them as fearlessly as another child does with a favorite dog. This child is Ettore Cesa, and he is the youngest son of a prominent business man.

It happened that two lions were born last December in Turin, and when they were about ten days old Signor Cesa, who is a skilled photographer, obtained permission to take a picture of them. Little Ettore went with him and seemed so much interested in the animals that his father decided to take the photograph which accompanies this story. The child showed no fear, and since that day he has frequently had fun with his two pets, and not a scratch have they given him.

Slowly—slowly at the first;

APPLE PIE WON HIS HEART. COAL WILL LAST UNTIL 2052.

Girl Gains a Husband by Two Weeks Good Cooking.
A plain, honest-looking young farmer dropped into Norfolk, Conn., three weeks ago and took board in the family of Mrs. Marianna Green. He said he was observing the sights and Norfolk had caught his eye as a place to rest in. He reckoned he would stay awhile if the cooking and house-keeping suited him.

"I am pretty particular," he confided to Mrs. Green.

"I guess this place will suit you," said the old lady. "My grand-daughter, Georgianna, keeps house for me. She is the best cook in these parts."

He smacked his lips at the first meal and praised Miss Georgianna. Dinners and suppers came and went and the young farmer seemed mighty pleased. But one day a dinner came that tickled his palate more than all the rest. The apple pie at the end was a marvel.

"That was the best pie I ever set my teeth in," he said to the charmed Georgianna after the meal. "How soon will you be ready to pack up and start for North Dakota? Let's make it Christmas eve," he suggested.

Georgianna was willing. They were married Christmas eve.

In the year 2052 the last lump of coal in the United States will be mined, according to the statement of Thomas K. Adams, a mine inspector of Mercer, Pa., who read a paper before the Western Pennsylvania Central Mining Institute at the Allegheny county court house. Mr. Adams' topic was one of a wide range of subjects considered at the meeting. Freight congestion and the number of working hours for males were discussed.

Mr. Adams' deductions are unique. His paper was largely technical, showing the location and formation of several coal veins throughout the bituminous district. He said there was about enough coal in the United States to last 700 years, at the present rate of consumption, but pointed out that the demand was doubled every 16 years, and should the ratio continue, the coal would be exhausted in about 150 years.

Captain George W. Skinner, superintendent of the S. O. I. School at Scotland, has purchased on private terms from Mr. Harry G. Wolf the latter's very handsome residence on Philadelphia avenue and Vine street Chambersburg, and will move therein on April 1 next.
