IN KENTUCKY.

At a banquet given to the Legislature of Kentucky, Judge Milligan, of Lexington, responded with a toast as follows:

- The moonlight is the softest In Kentucky. Summer days comes oftener In Kentucky.

THE GREATEST BLUNDER OF MY LIFE.

In the Cramer Library, Chicago, is a book in which five hundred men, out of work, have written of "the greatest blunder of their life."

- 1. "Didn't save what I earned." 2. "Did not, as a boy, realize the value of an education."

LENGTH OF QUARANTINE.

The State Board of Health in circular No. 2 gives the time of quarantine that should be maintained in cases of contagious diseases, which are as follows:

- Small Pox—Six weeks from commencement of disease if any scars have fallen off. Chicken Pox—Three weeks from commencement of disease if any scars have fallen off.

IN THE PLUM CREEK DISTRICT.

Uncle Dan had come up from the country to spend a winter vacation with his city nephews and nieces.

She was a mighty pretty girl, and it wasn't more'n a week before every young fellow in the county was shying round trying to make up to her.

She finally seemed to give up all of them but Tom Hammond and Bill Bigelow. Then it looked as if she didn't know which of 'em to let go.

What made it more interesting was that Tom and Bill was the worst kind of enemies. They'd both licked all the other young fellows around there, but somehow they'd never got together themselves.

Finally they was to be a spelling at the school house, and some way it got noised about that Tom said he was going to give Bill a walloping if they met there that night.

Everybody was so excited that nobody noticed when or how the teacher got there; but the first thing any one saw, she'd got through the crowd with a bucket of ice-water, and poured it all over both of 'em.

The fight stopped quicker'n a wink, and when they stood up she told 'em they were rowdies and ruffians, and to shake hands and beg each other's pardon.

When things got quiet she said, "I understand this fight was on account of me. I hate fighting and I despise fighters."

Everybody was so excited that nobody noticed when or how the teacher got there; but the first thing any one saw, she'd got through the crowd with a bucket of ice-water, and poured it all over both of 'em.

IDLENESS IS POISON.

Arthur Brisbane, the talented and forcible editorial writer of the New York American, in a recent article setting forth the vices and follies of idleness, gives utterance to the following striking and truthful sentences:

Man's mind is so constituted that it must have work to do to be normal. Idleness produces mental and moral decay.

What impels such men as the Crow, Prince of Saxony to do foolish and brutal and empty things is exactly what impels some sons of some American millionaires to drunkenness, dissipation, gambling and imbecile amusement.

It is what impels the sons of noblemen in England to hang around the stage doors of music halls and marry disreputable actresses.

It is what impels other people to monstrous and absurd display to have "Vegetable Parties" and eccentric balls, to fritter away the hours with employments that have no possible use but the killing of so much time.

No man feels right in this world that has not something to do, something that the world wants to have done and something that has some relation to the world's progress.

Any man that stands all day in a switch box in the railway yard at Dresden, throwing levers back and forth and switching trains, is infinitely more honorable than all the titled idlers in the world and infinitely more important.

After awhile the man that doesn't work will be loathed whether he is a millionaire or a tramp. After awhile the man that does work will be the only honored man, whether he saws wood or fires a locomotive.

ABOY'S WILD RIDE FOR LIFE

With family around expecting him to die, and a son riding for life, 18 miles, to get Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds, W. H. Brown, of Leesville, Ind., endured death's agonies from asthma; but this wonderful medicine gave instant relief and soon cured him.

He writes: "I now sleep soundly every night." Like marvelous cures of consumption, pneumonia, bronchitis, coughs, colds and grip prove its matchless merit for all throat and lung troubles.

THE STREETS OF PARIS.

New York attempted years ago to relieve her congested streets by building her hideous elevated railway. London has for years struggled with a dark and mephitic underground, says a writer in the Argonaut.

"The Metro," as the Parisians call it, has terrified the omnibus companies. Although as yet it runs only across Paris in a comparatively straight six mile line, it has already made a heavy cut in the omnibus revenues; when it is finished, the bus's occupation will be gone.

The Paris buses do not always stop for passengers, even when not full. Sometimes they cannot stop, owing to the mass of vehicles behind them. It is a pitiable sight to see a forlorn female, one arm full of bundles, her skirts gathered up in the other hand, trotting through the mud after an omnibus.

Then the old table played its part. After a lengthy debate terms were agreed upon; pens, ink, paper and the old table were brought forth, and upon it a document was signed by the two generals which gave America her freedom.

Since then the table has traveled about the country quite a bit. From its original owner it passed to another Virginia gentleman, and from him to James Ormond, then residing at Newburg, N. Y.

Rev. Mr. Ormond, its present owner, states that about twenty-five years ago his father had a complete history of the table, which he was about to publish, but just before the manuscript was completed the house took fire one night and every thing was destroyed except this relic, which was saved with difficulty.

MICHAEL KNAUFF, Ayr township.

Worlds in years to come. After a long struggle, a few thousand men, fighting for their liberty, honor and homes, had at last compelled the mighty British nation to ask upon what terms a surrender could be made.

Then the old table played its part. After a lengthy debate terms were agreed upon; pens, ink, paper and the old table were brought forth, and upon it a document was signed by the two generals which gave America her freedom.

Since then the table has traveled about the country quite a bit. From its original owner it passed to another Virginia gentleman, and from him to James Ormond, then residing at Newburg, N. Y.

While in New York and most Eastern cities there is a constant rivalry among applicants seeking employment as teachers, North and South Dakota reports a dearth of teachers in both says the New York Sun.

STATES SHORT OF TEACHERS.

The autos have also added to the means of transportation about Paris streets. I think each auto must do the work of at least four horse vehicles.

The autos have also added to the means of transportation about Paris streets. I think each auto must do the work of at least four horse vehicles. They are driven very rapidly, and any fat man wants exercise all he need to do is to live in Paris, and he will get it dodging autos.

There were at the time of the last school census 4083 teachers in North and 4440 teachers in South Dakota. One thousand teachers in each are men; the others, 3000 and 3400 respectively are women.

TEACHERS WANTED.—If single must be old and unattractive as two wealthy bachelors threaten to marry the next teacher of this school.

By the way, it has hitherto been the French custom to hold the pedestrian responsible and the driver blameless in case of a collision.

A PRICELESS RELIC OF THE REVOLUTION

In Carnegie there is an article that played a very prominent part in the independence of the United States, says the Pittsburg Chronicle. This piece of furniture is nothing more than an ordinary wooden table, but upon it was drawn up a compact which ended one of the greatest wars of modern history and which was destined to make great changes on the map of the New and Old
