Joseph Truax Hurt.
 Joseph Truax, near Sipes Mill, met with a painful accident on Monday. He was hauling a load of wood, and descending a hill through some timber. Walking beside the wagon with his hand on the lever, he noticed that he was about to pass a small tree, and decided to hold on with his right hand until he reached the tree, and then let go and catch the lever after it had passed just as he was about to let go, the wagon gave a sudden lurch and caught his hand between the tire and the tree crushing it very severely. Dr. Swartzwelder was called, and found that the two middle fingers had been almost torn from the hand.
