AWERERING BATES.

A BELL CENTURIES OLD.

Calonel Theodore Bingham, Su. perintendent of Bullangs and mincharch. Grounds, has unearthed a mgs-Philippines and thence to this country. The mystery of the bell Town Hill mountain last week, has not been, and probably never the first one for ten years. will be, solved. All that is known of its history is gleaned from the del senor de 1758 mehyzo." This tor Bedford." meagre history tells the bell was cast in Spain nearly two centuries ago, and that the maker's name was Santiago Lopez.

When it was shipped to the Philippines, what its use was while there, none but the bell could tell. It may have hung in a monastery and summoned the white robed Franciscans to their prayers. It may have had a gayer fate and told the dinner hours in the country seat of a proud Spanish Governor, Whatever its previous use Colonel Bingham has decreed that henceforth the ancient bell shall hang in the government propaga ting gardens south of the Washington Monument and call the gardeners to dinner and to work. He first heard of the relic of Spain's old dominion in the islands when the quartermaster's warehouse in New York was undergoing a thorough clearing out. Among the barrels filled with straw which the officers were rolling out to be burned was one Ohlo. that appeared strangely rejuctant to move. An examination brought the old bell to light,-No record was found showing whence it came, and a report of the find was made to Washington, Colonel Bingham, mindful of his gardens, applied for and readily obtained possession of it. -Washington Times.

THE SMALLEST BASKET.

The smallest basket in the United States was shown at the National museum last week by Mrs. Ebenezer Burr, of Bridgeport, Conn. Some time during the last summer the Post described the smallest basket in the National Museum collection, a basket woven by the Pomo Indians, of California, and purchased from a well known San Francisco collector. This basket is so small that it passes through a woman's linger ring, but the one owned by Mrs. Burr is still smaller, being seven-thirty-seconds of an inch in diameter. Mrs. Burr was for many years a teacher among the California Indians, and during that time made a collection of some of the finest examples of basketry in existence. She has a greater number of small bas- We never hear from Enid any kets, perhaps, then any person in America, her next smallest being ten-thirty-seconds of an inch in diameter.

Last week she visited this city, along with a body of New England excursionists, during which time she called at the National Museum to exhibit her specimen to Professor Otis T. Mason, the expert on basketry. Mrs. Burr said that this and other of ber small baskets are the work of old Josepha, one of the most famous Indian basketmakers on the Pacific slope. This venerable Pomo woman has turned out more fine buskets than any other Indian in the West and of those which she made for Mrs. Burr, Professor Mason was of the opinion that a certain oval basket, considerably larger than the small one above described was the finest and most beautiful example of the weaver's art in her collection. The museum, it to acquire Mrs. Burr's collection. -Washington Post.
