THE LITTLE RED ANTS.

The troublesome little red ants that appear as if by magic about mid summer and take complete control of the pantry at the time when summer heat makes other trials hard to endure may, it is said, be routed by a very simple remedy. Simply mix five cents worth of tartar emetic in with an equal amount of white vinegar, put it in small dishes and set them on shelves where the ants are most troublesome. The ants will disappear as mysteriously as they came, and there will be no dead ones lying around on the shelf and floor.
