GENERAL JACKSON'S MANNER.

A Reminiscence Mrs. Harriet Lane Johnston Was Fond of Relating.

"The late Harriet Lane Johnston," said a New York woman who was an intimate friend of the former mistress of the White House, "having lived so long with her statesman uncle, James Buchanan, had many interesting reminiscences of him and his times. One of them which she was fond of relating," says the New York Sun, "was an incident told to her by Mr. Buchanan of the social career of General Jackson while he was President. Mr. Buchanan was in the United States Senate at the time.

"As Mrs. Johnston related the incident, a famous Baltimore lady, one of the leaders in society of that day, and related to an English family of title and distinction, had spent a long time in England during Jackson's administration, her family connections admitting her to the inner circles of aristocratic and royal society. George IV was then King, and a short time before this lady left England to return to America she was presented to him. He confided to her a message to President Jackson, which he requested her to deliver in person.

"The reputation his political enemies had made for Jackson was such that the lady was most unfavorably impressed, never having met the rugged old soldier. In fact, the idea of 'Jacksonian vulgarity' was quite the popular one, and there were many stories of the General's offensive application of it in his social as well as business contact with visitors.

"Consequently, this high-bred message-bearer from the King of England was very much disinclined to a personal interview with this President of boorish reputation, but having undertaken to carry out the wishes of the King, she determined to undergo the trial, prepared to be greatly shocked at what she might see and hear. Being well acquainted with James Buchanan, she begged him to accompany her on her mission and introduce her to the President.

"'My uncle escorted the lady to the White House,' Mrs. Johnston related merrily, 'and leaving her in the reception room, he went to the President's room to arrange for the interview.

"'He found the President alone. His face was covered with a bristling beard of several days' growth. He was wearing a dressing gown which was very much soiled and greatly the worse for past service. He was smoking an old clay pipe.

"'It was a disheartening moment for Mr. Buchanan, for to present the refined and elegant lady to the President of the United States in such attire and personal uncouthness seemed to him but little better than a national disgrace. He told the President about the distinguished woman who had come to seek an introduction to him, on an errand from the King of England, and made bold to say:

"'"But, General, you ought not to see her without making an appropriate toilet."

THE GRIM OLD SOLDIER.

"The grim old soldier took his pipe out of his mouth, stretched himself to his full height, shot a fiery look at his audacious social prompter from beneath his shaggy eyebrows and exclaimed, with some forceful adjuncts of language that may as well not be repeated:

"'"Buchanan, I knew a man once who succeeded admirably in getting along simply by minding his own business!"

"'He told my uncle to go back and wait with the lady, and he would see her presently. Mr. Buchanan returned to the reception room and awaited the President's coming in a torture of suspense.

"'In a remarkably short time General Jackson entered the room. He was neatly shaven and in plain but correct attire. A more courtly and dignified presence, my uncle said, could not well be imagined, and he was so astounded at the change in Jackson's appearance and manner that he almost forgot what he was there for.

"'He introduced the lady, however, and retired to await the termination of the interview, which, from what she had said to him, he felt that she was eager to make as short as possible. He was, therefore, surprised when more than an hour had passed and she was still talking with the man she had dreaded to meet as one but little better than a wildcat.

"'She appeared at last, escorted to the door by the President. Mr. Buchanan said she was positively radiant. He handed her into her carriage, and asked her what she thought of the grim and much-abused Jackson.

"'"I am captivated!" she replied. "I never so enjoyed an hour. I have been at all the courts of Europe, and I can truly say that at none of them have I ever seen a man who in elegance of manners could excel General Jackson. While intensely dignified, he was so kind that my dread disappeared in an instant, and before I knew it I was captivated. It will never do for any one to charge General Jackson with vulgarity in my presence again!"

"'As long as my uncle lived,' Mrs. Johnston was wont to say, 'he delighted to relate, which he did always with great relish, and particularly if it gave him opportunity to rebuke any ill-natured reference to Jacksonian vulgarity, what befell him and his apprehensive companion from that interview with Andrew Jackson.'"

A VERY CLOSE CALL.

"I stuck to my engine, although every joint ached and every nerve was racked with pain," writes C. W. Bellamy, a locomotive fireman of Burlington, Iowa. "I was weak and pale, without any appetite and all run down. As I was about to give up, I got a bottle of Electric Bitters, and after taking it, I felt as well as I ever did in my life." Weak, sickly run down people always gain new life, strength and vigor from their use Try them. Satisfaction guaranteed by all druggists. Price 50 cents.

TO TELL A HORSE'S AGE.

To tell the age of any horse,
Inspect the lower jaw, of course,
The six front teeth the tale will tell,
And every doubt and fear dispel.

The middle "nippers" you behold
Before the horse is two weeks old:
Before eight weeks two more will come
Eight months the "corners" cut the gum.

The outside grooves will disappear
From middle two in just one year:
In two years from the second pair:
In three the "corners" too, are bare.

At two the middle "nippers" drop:
At three, the second pair can't stop:
When four years old, the fourth pair goes,
At five, the full new set he shows.

The deep black spots will pass from view.

At six years from the middle two:
The second pair at seven years:
At eight the spot each "corner" clears.

From middle "nippers" upper jaw,
At nine the black spots will withdraw,
The second pair at ten are white:
Eleven finds the corners light.

As time goes on the horsemen know
The oval teeth three-sided grow;
They longer get, project before
'Till twenty, when we know no more.

Weak Hearts

Are due to indigestion. Ninety-nine of every one hundred people who have heart trouble can remember when it was simple indigestion. It is a scientific fact that all cases of heart disease, not organic, are not only traceable to, but are the direct result of indigestion. All food taken into the stomach which fails of perfect digestion ferments and swells the stomach, puffing it up against the heart. This interferes with the action of the heart, and in the course of time that delicate but vital organ becomes diseased.

Mr. D. Kauble, of Nevada, O., says: I had stomach trouble and was in a bad state as I had heart trouble with it. I took Kodol Dyspepsia Cure for about four months and it cured me.

Smiles and Laughter Drive Away Care.

The hearty laugh that comes of wholesome merriment is the sunshine of life that drives creeping gloom shadows from the face and routs skulking cares from the heart. As soon as the world finds out that you enjoy a hearty laugh it will bring you many a pleasant story.

Care flees from a smiling face but looks upon a frown as an invitation to come and abide with the one who wears it. But not all smiles have real sunshine in them. Some faces have learned the act of "making up" so well that even a smile can be put on so smoothly that no one but a child can fathom its insincerity. A child that has not yet learned to deceive has not yet learned how to be deceived. The two acquirements come hand in hand. Children know intuitively whether or not a smile is genuine or is put on like a mask for an occasion.—Children are keener than adults in detecting masks, for the reason that adults usually have to look through their own masks to see the masks on others.

There is no charm in a smile if it lacks genuineness. A smile may be as deep as a well and as wide as a barn door. It may reach clean around and tie in a double bow at the back; but the instant we detect that it is not genuine we detest it. Thereafter the more there is of it the worse we hate it. There have been more lies smiled than have ever been told in any other way.

Own if you can one of those welcoming faces that brings the sunshine to life's shadowed spots.—He who gives most joy ever receives most. Happiness is forever an export joy.

The occasional hearty laugh is good, but better still is the steady sunshine of a smiling heart and face. Happiness seldom comes at one great moonstone, but rather as a thousand little beads of joy which we string upon the threads of daily duty and opportunity.
