

WHEN A POPE DIES.

Elaborate Ceremonies Carefully Carried Out at the Demise of the Supreme Pontiff—Reasons for Exception in the Case of Pius IX.

The death of the Pope is a curious and elaborate ceremony, which is the growth of many centuries, is carried out with care to the utmost detail. Part of this ceremony may be said to be the statute law of the Catholic Church at such a crisis, and part is an elaborate code of rules which has become common law by the precedents of past similar occasions.

The prescribed ceremonies, which belong to the law of the church, date back to October 7, 1622, when the constitution in legends of Pius IV. This constitution was extended by Gregory XIV, November 15, 1621, in his Aeterna Patris, and both received amplification by Gregory in his bull, Deest Romanum Pontificem, issued March 12, 1622. This last-named instrument was further supplemented by Clement XII, in his Apostolatus officium, October 14, 1732. As to the matters of customary procedure not found in this code, many are very ancient, and historians are not agreed as to their source or their significance.

When it is anticipated that the Pope is about to die, the first act is for the Secretary of State to convey the information to the Dean of the College of Cardinals, who proceeds immediately with his colleagues who may be present at home in the papal residence. By order of the Cardinal-Vicar prayers are directed to be offered in all Catholic churches, and as a rule the diplomatic corps is officially notified. If the physicians in attendance judge death to be at hand the household of the Pope and the Cardinals are summoned to his bedside. The Pope's confessor and the Cardinal Grand Penitentiary receive his last confession, and the sacrament of extreme unction administered by the Pope's ushers.

The use of these guns has become prevalent, and there is much property right involved. If the action should be taken, it would probably be the most bitter contest ever waged before the Maryland Legislature over game. Those who have begun the move to prohibit the use of the pump gun are influential men, and believe they can push through the law they desire, especially as they believe the country members of the Legislature are naturally antagonistic to the pump gun.

"We are greatly disappointed at the ill-success of our plan to have one of the boats of the State fishery force kept in commission to protect the fish of the bay and tributaries, and to compel the carrying out of the fish laws. The State spends much money annually for the propagation of fish, and we contend that the protection of the fish is just as important as their propagation, and that a boat could be kept in commission at practically no cost to the State treasury.

"While there are thousands of hook-and-line fishermen all over the State, it is astonishing how apathetic some of them are to do anything but talk for the protection of the fish. The most satisfactory development of years is that the commercial fishermen are now seeing the need of protection, and are receiving co-operation from quarters least expected."

Charles X. in Exile.
It appears that the last royal occupant of Holyrood palace, Edinburgh, previous to the visit of King Edward the other day was Charles X. of France, after he had been driven into exile in 1830. "My father," writes a well-known Scotch baronet, "was at that time a schoolboy of twelve or thirteen, and I have often heard him speak of the fat and fallen monarch, who was an object of much interest to the good folk of the Scotch capital. He used to amuse himself sometimes with a very mild species of sport, which consisted in sauntering round the slopes of Arthur's seat armed with a gun in quest of sparrows, finches and other small game of the kind. The little barefooted city Arabs (prototypes of Crockett's Cleg Kelly) used to accompany him on these excursions in considerable numbers. His majesty was short-sighted, scant of breath and per far from alert, and my father used to imitate the way in which one or other of the urelains, on spying a bird within range, would shriek out the words: 'Hi, King! hi, King! there's another one for ye. A-hoot, man, shoot!'"

Professor Harnard considers the early supposition that the white polar caps of Mars are accumulations of snow to be as good as any theory since put forward, and points out that they cannot be of any great depth or they would be melted so quickly; they are probably a thin sheeting corresponding with the winter snow which extends to our own mid-latitudes and quickly disappears with the approach of summer. On some occasions portions of the cap were temporarily hidden, and there was good reason to suppose that the obscuration was produced by something of the nature of clouds, though the atmosphere seems to be much less dense than our own.

The most striking phenomenon, however, was a projection from the edge of the cap, visible at the same point in 1892 and 1894, which was left behind as a bright strip as the cap diminished in size. This is probably a range of mountains, and was found to have been previously observed by Mitchell in 1845, and also by Green, who gave the same explanation.—Knowledge.

These burial rites prescribed by law or tradition were not observed in the case of the death of Pius IX. There were serious fears of popular tumult, and owing to existing political conditions there was some apprehension that the Italian Government might interfere with the obsequies. The body of Pius IX. was therefore moved at once and by night to St. Peter's. The obsequies lasted but eight days, and the burial took place on the fourth day after the conclusion of the obsequies. This departure from ancient custom and law created much discussion and surprise, some going so far as to question the validity of the election of Leo XIII. on this account. There is nothing, however, in the present state of Italy to warrant any departure from time-honored procedure.

At the entombment on the third day after the public ceremonies, the relatives of the Pope, the cardinals created by the dead Pope, his immediate household and the chamberlains are present, although cases are not wanting of a wider invitation. The Chinese Paper Centuries Old.

It has long been known that paper was first made in China, and was introduced in Europe (Germany) in 1190. Sven Hedin, on his last Asiatic trip discovered fragments of Chinese paper that were 1650 years old. Hsinly, of Wiesbaden, the expert in old Chinese, is engaged in deciphering the writing on this paper.

Older Than the Christian Era.
Some workmen, while digging graves at Wenden, Saffron-Walden, England, unearthed a very rudely decorated cinerary urn, containing a quantity of dark earth mixed apparently with the cremated remains of a human being. The urn is probably 3000 years old and of Celtic origin.

POPULAR SCIENCE

Dr. Chapet Prevost, a well-known surgeon, of Rio Janeiro, Brazil, has announced, after making extensive experiments, that he has no doubt of the success of the new serum cure for agalium poisoning.

The Institute of France has decided to divide the Lemoussie prize of $10,000 into four parts, one part to go toward the maintenance of the Journal des Savants, the second to the publication of the memoirs of Richelieu, the third to the publication of the works of Leibnitz and the fourth to experimenting in electricity.

AGAINST THE "PUMP" GUN.

Maryland May Pass Law to Prohibit Their Use on Game.

The Maryland Game and Fish Protective Association will likely bring before the next Legislature a bill to prohibit the use of repeating shotguns. These guns are known as pump guns, and their enemies claim that in the hands of experts they are most destructive of game, especially of partridges in the early season. The movement has been drawn to the attention of Deputy Game Warden Robert Gilbert, formerly Game Warden, and one of the most influential and active protectors of game in this section of the country. Mr. Gilbert says:

"The movement to prohibit the use of pump guns will be brought up for discussion at the next meeting of the Protective Association. We are opposed to any agency that would lead to the greater destruction of game; but I cannot, of course, say anything as to what official action the association will take in the matter. Those who have begun the move to prohibit the use of the pump gun are influential men, and believe they can push through the law they desire, especially as they believe the country members of the Legislature are naturally antagonistic to the pump gun.

Some time ago Professor Darwin, of Cambridge, pointed out that if a star revolved on its axis with a certain velocity the star would tend to divide into two and the form it would take before complete separation would be that of a dumb-bell, or rather two spheres joined top to top. This deduction was purely theoretical. During the past two years an examination of the light changes of some recently discovered variable stars reveals this very condition of things.

A new use has been found for telegraph wires. Dr. Laska, a Polish meteorologist, has studied the humming sound they emit occasionally, and has found that it is not caused by the wind, as is commonly supposed. Erdman's observations, extending over several years, show that these sounds always

The Poet's Dilemma.
The poet worked the whole night long, But could not find the metre, To put his thoughts in rhythmic line And make his theme the sweeter. At last it seemed to come to him, "My muse! ah, glad to greet her, And, 'twas but he found the meter, And you but he found the meter." —New York Times.

Doubtful Consolation.
"I'm afraid," said Willie Washington, "that I lack self-confidence."
"Cheer up," said Miss Cayenne, "perhaps that fact indicates that you are a good judge of human nature."

Chambers—"Well, no; I don't wish to be quite so rude as that, but I will say this—you'd make a very good weather prophet." —Chicago Journal.

Annoying.
"The way of the transgressor is hard," quoted the earnest citizen.
"It is, unquestionably," answered Senator Sordium. "The way people have to employ lawyers and stand investigations is calculated to cut down profits terribly."

Scanning His Motive.

"Oh, yes," he said, "I'm quite expert with my automobile now. What I know about road racing would fill an interesting book."
"What you don't know about it," replied the candid friend, "may fill a grave for you soon." —Philadelphia Press.

Incomplete Luxury.
"You can afford to smoke cigars that cost a dollar apiece," said the less successful friend.
"That's true," answered Mr. Curox, regretfully, "but mother and the girls insist on my sitting out in the park to smoke one of 'em the same as if it were a pipe."

Chilly Neighbors.
"I never see the ice man stop before your house any more, Mrs. Flipperleigh."
"No; since the Buxtons next door, fell into their fortune they've been so cool to us that we don't need any help from the refrigerator." —Chicago Record-Herald.

A Matter of Pride.

"Are you troubled with cockroaches or other insects about your premises, ma'am?" inquired the man with the pack, who had succeeded in gaining an audience with the mistress of the mansion.
"No, sir," she said, glaring at him.
"We are not troubled by cockroaches or other insects?"
"Don't mind 'em, hey?" he rejoined, cheerfully, shouldering his pack again. "Well, there's nothing like getting used to one's afflictions. Good day, ma'am." —Chicago Tribune.

indicate the approach of rain, snow or a storm, and Laska inclines to the belief that they are in some way caused by terrestrial vibrations induced by meteorological changes.

An old sea captain, who lost his ship on the Virginia coast many years ago, has since devoted his time to the perfecting of a new life boat. His device consists of a round shell made from light steel plates, surrounded by a cork belt. The interior is divided into a number of compartments of fresh water, food and general supplies such as would be needed by shipwrecked men. It is claimed that this globe can never be swamped, and that it will pass safely over bars and breakers where no lifeboat could live. It has accommodations for sixteen persons, and is equipped with sails and rudder, so that it may be navigated with perfect certainty. It is to be tested by a naval board.

The Jessup Expedition.
The Jessup Expedition, sent out by the American Museum of Natural History, to investigate the native tribes of Northeastern Asia, has completed its field work, and collected about 20,000 specimens of household articles, dress, ornaments, tools and weapons, such as have never before been found. The explorations extended from the Columbia River around the North Pacific coast to the Amur River, in Asia. Close similarity was found in the characteristics of the American and Siberian tribes, indicating a common origin at some remote past time.

A White Blackberry.
A fruit grower of Santa Rosa, California, has succeeded in producing a perfectly white blackberry. It is as white as snow, and is so transparent that the seeds may be seen inside the ripe fruit. The berries are sweet and tender—just as much so as the very finest blackberries—and the seeds are quite small. This new species was produced from the well-known Lawton berry; it is called the "Iceberg."

Finest of Marine Aquaria.
The new physiological laboratory and marine aquarium just completed for Professor Jacques Loeb at the University of California is regarded by experts as the finest of its kind in the world. Rudolph Spreeckes gave $25,000 for the building, and no expense has been spared in its equipment.

OUR BUDGET OF HUMOR.

Bradstreet's says: "Stock market liquidation at the expense of industrialists affects sentiment and ignores, but does not conceal, improvement in the corn and cotton crops, a change for the better in industrial conditions at New York and other disturbed centers, and continued cheerful feeling in Western and Southwestern trade circles. The markets for the cereals also reflect telling, but here the moving feature is the good crop advices at home and abroad and the pressure of the excellent quality of the new wheat arrivals. The iron and steel markets and those of other metals feel the reflex of depression in securities, and buying is closely restricted, even with drooping values, while the bulls in cotton have given near-by months and spot cotton another twist on which record prices have been recorded, thus rendering the position of manufacturers still more satisfactory.

THE EDUCATED MAN.

The triumph of the educated man in the whirl of life about him is the ability to use the multiplied instruments of civilization without being either bewildered or baffled by them. That they tend to daze the mind and to make it superficial there can be no doubt. It is for the man who keeps himself well in hand to look out upon the world's rush with equanimity, while preserving jealously for himself that intellectual life which is the great resource. Mental distraction and dissipation he will regard as the chief enemy at the gate, and will prepare to meet him by cherishing delightful studies which brace the mind, and by practicing that athletic grip of the attention which a hurried time would break, but which is the source of all mental conquests.

COUGHING

"I was given up to die with quick consumption. I then began to use Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. I improved at once, and am now in perfect health."—Chas. E. Hartman, Gibbstown, N. Y.

It's too risky, playing with your cough. The first thing you know it will be down deep in your lungs and the play will be over. Begin early with Ayer's Cherry Pectoral and stop the cough.

Three sizes: 25c, 50c, $1. All druggists.

Consult your doctor, if he says take it, then do as he says. If he says you got no cough, then don't take it. If he says you must leave it with him, we will give you $1.00. J. C. AYER & CO., Lowell, Mass.

INSOMNIA

"I have been using Cascarets for Insomnia, with which I have been afflicted for over twenty years, and in half an hour of Cascarets I have never felt better than any other remedy. I have never tried any other remedy, and I am sure that as long as I live they are represented in my friends as being all they are represented to be." —Thos. Gillard, Egin, Ill.
