ARTILLERY OF THE SNOWS.

Noise and Phenomenon of Falling Mountain Ice.

Those who for the first time have explored among the higher mountain ranges of the earth in the season of early summer, says the Glasgow Herald, have doubtless been perplexed at the apparent firing of cannons at various points amid those snow covered mountain peaks and pyramids; a great volume of white smoke being observed to issue from a lofty eminence, soon followed by a loud report as of heavy artillery. It is soon realized that these explosions are vast avalanches of snow, which having partly lost cohesion by the increasing heat of summer, are dislodged by their inherent weight, and fall from precipice with thundering reverberation, the apparent smoke being volumes of powdery snow discharged high in the air each time the ponderous mass is shattered against some rocky obstruction. To the spectator at a distance the phenomenon is sufficiently grand and startling, especially if observed through a powerful telescope; but if by any means, whether from a balloon or otherwise, an avalanche could be witnessed from a short distance through its whole course the spectacle must be awe inspiring and appalling. At first a mass of snow perhaps a few acres in extent, and weighing many hundreds of thousands of tons, slips away from the steep slope on which it was deposited, and with a terrific roar the mighty mass bounds over a precipice unprepared a thousand feet or more from the lower plateaux. The stupendous impact with the snow beneath on this slanting declivity must cause the very rocks to tremble and quiver, and raises a dense cloud of particles of frozen snow; the whole mass then doubled in volume, madly rolling down the slope with ever enhanced impetuosity.

Continually augmenting in bulk and with more and more accelerated velocity the great colossal avalanche now plunges downward in its headlong career of destruction with a wild momentum which nothing can withstand. It has left the snow line, has cut a great avenue through a pine forest, breaking down trees like matchwood, and in a few moments, with a grinding crash, an entire hamlet or village beneath is wholly submerged, splintered in ten thousand fragments, and utterly obliterated from the face of the earth; though the warning roar may probably have premonished the inhabitants to flee for their lives.

This, however, is not always practicable, and it is related that on one occasion no fewer than 400 Austrian soldiers were suddenly overwhelmed by a prodigious avalanche which entombed the entire battalion in a snowy sepulcher.

MORE RIOTS.

Disturbances of strikers are not nearly as grave as an individual disorder of the system. Over work, loss of sleep, nervous tension will be followed by utter collapse, unless a reliable remedy is immediately employed. There's nothing so efficient to cure disorders of the liver or kidneys as Electric Bitters. It's a wonderful tonic, an effective nerve and the greatest all around medicines for run down systems. It dispels nervousness, rheumatism and neuralgia and expels malaria germs. Only 50c, and satisfaction guaranteed by all druggists.

Season at Hand to Clean Up.

An exchange remarks that at no season of the year is the appeal to keep things clean more potent than now. It is the season of the year when the early vegetables decay in the garden and when the hidden or neglected filth of the back yards and alleys becomes most offensive.—The weeds that come up from every gutter and alley and other neglected places should not be permitted to become unsightly, much less unhealthy. Weeds are a great hiding place for filth and should not be allowed to grow in public or private places. Let our citizens and the Board of Health give this matter their attention. Clean up and purify the town. Cleanliness is next to Godliness, and this old saw should become popular with all at the present time.

THE GENUINE VS. COUNTERFEITS.

The genuine is always better than a counterfeit, but the truth of this statement is never more forcibly realized or more thoroughly appreciated than when you compare the genuine DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve with the many counterfeits and worthless substitutes that are on the market.—W. S. Ledbetter, of Shreveport, La., says: "After using numerous other remedies without benefit, one box of DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve cured me." For blind bleeding, itching and protruding piles no remedy is equal to DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve. Sold at Trout's drug store.

Nothing has ever equalled it. Nothing can ever surpass it.
