Cold cash isn't so cold as it sounds. It has been known to burn a hole in a man's pocket.

Free, a knife worth at least 50c for only 25 tags from Honest John Plug and 5c., postage.

Many a man's life hangs by a thread but the condemned murderer's usually hangs by a rope.

The man with a good opinion of himself is always willing to share it with the rest of the world.

Honest John Plug has been made much larger, you get more of it for the same money and the tags are good for presents.

A fellow often wastes a lot of time in courting a girl when he could have had her from the start.

Even the theory of evolution may work both ways when a man makes a monkey out of himself.

The size of a plug of Honest John Tobacco has been made much larger, and the tags are still valuable, see premium list.

Imitation is the sincerest form of flattery, and the most profitable if it can escape the charge of plagiarism.

The shirker's motto is: "Never put off till to-morrow what you can get other people to do for you to-day."

No danger of consumption if you use Foley's Honey and Tar to cure that stubborn cough.—Sold at Trout's drug store.

Foley's Honey and Tar cures coughs and colds and prevents pneumonia. Take no substitutes. Sold at Trout's drug store.

It's a poor rule that won't work both ways. Perhaps it is easier for a rich man to pass through the eye of a needle than for a camel to enter the Kingdom of Heaven.

W. D. Myers has added a bay window on the second story of his residence and other improvements which are very attractive.—Star.

Adam Shafer, aged seventy years, was killed near his home near Spring Run, in Path Valley, Tuesday, by falling from the top of a loaded hay wagon.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. B. Hockensmith spent a few days last week among their many friends in this place. George left his farm in Licking Creek township three or four years ago, went out to Illinois and rented a farm at $1200 cash rent a year. That seems like a pretty stiff rent a year, but Mr. Hockensmith found that it wasn't as much of a trick to pay that amount as to pay fifty dollars on some farms he knows.

FARM for Sale.—Situated in the Meadow Grounds about six miles west of McConnellsburg.—Contains 100 acres, a good bank barn weatherboarded, a good log house weatherboarded, and other outbuildings, also a good young orchard. The farm is admirably adapted for stock purposes, and can be bought on terms to suit the purchaser. Address the owner, JOHN H. TRUAX, McConnellsburg, Pa.

A new grain, known as corn wheat, is being grown in eastern Washington. It has the nature of both corn and wheat, possessing the fattening qualities of corn and the corn flavor. In appearance it resembles wheat. Its grains are twice as large as those of ordinary wheat. It yields sixty to a hundred bushels an acre and seems to solve the problem of fattening hogs in the Pacific northwest, as corn is not successfully raised in that country.

A Great Sensation.

There was a big sensation in Leesville, Ind. when W. H. Brown of that place, who was expected to die, had his life saved by Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption. He writes: "I endured insufferable agonies from Asthma but your New Discovery gave me immediate relief and soon thereafter effected a complete cure. Similar cures of Consumption, Pneumonia, Bronchitis and Grip are numerous. It's the peerless remedy for all throat and lung troubles. Price 50c, and $1.00. Guaranteed by all Druggists. Trial bottles free.

INDUSTRY and INTEGRITY vs. IDLENESS and CARELESSNESS.

A Talk to School Boys and Girls; and, Perchance to Children of Larger Growth.

Children? Most certainly we are all children, with every day and every hour bringing with it life's lessons. No matter whether we are in business, in school, or in home, opportunities for learning are constantly coming to us. Happy is the one who is willing to learn and to whom life means opportunity, not merely existence. To the former everything is possible; to the latter, nothing: for he has no future, no ideals, no plans. Life means nothing to him except the getting enough to eat and clothes to hide his nakedness, with as little exertion as possible; and if the burden of his maintenance can be shifted onto another's shoulders, no matter how ill able they may be to bear it, so much the better for him. To him life with all its responsibilities means about as much as it does to a pig; and his status in the community is about the same, for he is no good to any one, not even himself. No one needs him. No one wants him. He has no past and no future. He is not even of as much use as the pig, for its flesh can be used as food; while instead of sustaining life, he destroys it.

A few years ago a little fellow started in school. He was very small and very quiet, but he made friends rapidly among the school children. An older brother was also coming. But the two were as different in character as possible. The younger had pluck and energy; he studied his lessons, attended strictly to his own affairs, and pushed ahead. The older came in the door with a slovenly step, a listless look on his face, tumbled hair, and hands that were not always clean. His lessons were not prepared, and he never seemed to care that the others were outstripping him.—The time that should have been spent in study was spent in idleness and mischief, and he was a constant source of trouble and annoyance to the teacher. As was to be expected, the younger brother gradually caught up with and passed him in his studies, and seems in a fair way to make something of himself; while the older brother's future, judging from present indications, does not look enticing.

It is said the boys in Vermont are brought up to believe that at some time they may be President, and govern themselves accordingly. It is all right to have a high ideal and then try to attain it; but it is far better to be capable, both by education and training, of being President and then never attain the presidency, than it would be to fill the presidential chair with an incapable man. The glory of the position could not cover the shame of the incompetence of the individual. We do not have to go to the presidency to find heroes. Some of our own noble people, perhaps our own parents or friends, those whom we meet constantly, and who unfalteringly and cheerfully take up their tasks day by day, giving to their work in hand their very best, no matter how lowly it is, are finer heroes and heroines than many who have been exalted to the high places of the earth.

It is the giving of your best, and the doing honestly and to the very best of your ability the task which you have in hand. No matter what it may be, whether organizing a Steel Trust or sewing on a patch, that count when it comes to summing up to real success in life. Do your best, and do not be content to do it as good as others do it. If possible do it a little better. The habit of doing one's best at all times, and constantly working upwards—being strictly honest and truthful (and this applies to so many things), is one of the very best habits one can cultivate for success in life, and one of those most essential to it.

The bible says, "The Lord loveth a cheerful giver." It might also say, "He loveth an honest, upright man or woman."

Sold at Trout's drug store.

Apple Exportation.

There is scarcely anything more remarkable in the history of American exportation to Europe than the American apple.—American exporters say there is no limit to what the trade may become within five years, considering what has been accomplished since five years ago, when American apples were first sent in any quantity to London and Liverpool. The first year of the American export apple trade was about 25,000 barrels, sent mainly on small steamers and sailing vessels. Last year upward of 1,000,000 barrels were shipped to London, and on the fastest steamers in the transatlantic fleet.

The exports this year have been unusually large, quite in contrast to other fruit, but it is not expected that the crop, as a whole, will be so large as last year. Early apples that do not keep long have been coming in abundantly so far, and about 500,000 barrels of them have been shipped across the water. At all times of the year Englishmen want our apples. No matter what kind, so long as they are apples.

Some attempts have been made to introduce the American apples into Germany, but the Kaiser treats them as he does most importations from this country.—Every apple shipped must be absolutely without a flaw. If an apple has a speck on it, it is assumed to be something that will get contagious in the Kaiser's own apple land and ruin his crops.

A DOZEN TIMES A NIGHT.

Mr. Owen Dunn, of Brenton Ferry, W. Va., writes: "I have had kidney and bladder trouble for years, and it became so bad that I was obliged to get up at least a dozen times a night. I never received any permanent benefit from any medicine until I tried Foley's Kidney Cure. After using two bottles, I am cured." Sold at Trout's drug store.
