OPPOSED EDICT OF TRENT.

Mob Looted a Hundred Catholic Churches.

ARMY ARRIVES FROM GERMANY.

As the stadtholder, Margaretta, endeavored to enforce the edicts of Trent and put the inquisition in working order, a cry of indignation and complaint was heard throughout the whole land—Protestant and Catholic, high and low, rich and poor, felt of fended alike. But the nobility of the provinces seemed to be aroused most; for 400 noblemen formed a confederation or league for the purpose of inducing the sovereign to recall the edicts and the inquisition. They got up a petition to that effect with many thousands of signatures attached, and in presenting this petition to the governess, marched in a solid body to the palace but unarmed. This unusual proceeding greatly alarmed the governess, who took it to be open rebellion, and hesitated to admit them to her palace. At this instant one of her counsellors said to her, "Oh, do not mind these beggars" (Greux), which word was eagerly taken up and used for an insignia of the league, and ever after it was called the Greux league; each member, also, wore a badge on his person representing a beggar's haversack. Louis of Nassau and Henry of Braderoden, two noblemen of the highest rank, were chosen spokesmen by the league. Margaretta with faint grace heard the petition but gave no definite answer, only intent on gaining time to put herself in a condition to resist them with force. Thus the first step was taken by the league, and their hopes of success ran very high, inasmuch that the league gained in number daily, and the lower element of the population became very bold in their actions and demands. In the meantime Margaretta sent to Madrid for instructions, which were in the effect to gain time until she could enlist a sufficient army in Germany to deal with these rebels and heretics;—for which purpose the king sent her the necessary funds. As there were very few arrests made, and the inquisition seemed inactive, one would naturally believe that religious tolerance would be the result of the petition. So the league published to the world what is known as "Compromise of the Greux." In this compromise every member under oath promised mutual aid to each other in defense of their faith and the abolition of the inquisition. Now every sect held their meetings openly. Before this they were not allowed to exist at all. As in the compromise one sect must not interfere with any other's rights, it followed that non-Catholics could not use the Catholic churches, and as there were no other the Protestants had to worship in private houses or out on the commons, which caused great discontent. So the leaders commenced and built some Protestant churches; but it was impossible to accommodate such great gatherings with sufficient churches, as often 10,000 would congregate in one place in some park or field and be addressed by various speakers. Some of these speakers found fault with the Catholics in not permitting them to use their churches, and worked upon the baser sort of the people to that extent that a mob formed and broke into the churches and destroyed altars, crucifixes, statues and paintings,—many rare and valuable ones, some that could never be replaced; they even drank the communion wine wherever it was found, and carried away the silver communion service. In this shameful way 400 Catholic churches were stripped of all their costly ornaments in a few nights, and no one had recognized the perpetrators.—The whole nation was awe-struck at these sacrilegious acts. Those

NEW LANDLORD.

Sammy Shull has Leased the Juniata Crossings Hotel.

From the Everett Republican we learn that Mr. S. P. Shull, who has conducted the Juniata Crossings hotel six miles this side of Everett, so successfully for a number of years, has leased the property to Mr. James Leasure of Clearfield.

Mr. Shull expects to make sale of household goods some time next month, after which he and his family will likely go to Pittsburgh.

J. Lewis Brakeall.

While perhaps most of the friends of Louis Brakeall, formerly of Thompson township, have heard of his death, which occurred at his home at McKeesport, Pa., about three weeks ago, yet they will read with pleasure the testimonial of the esteem in which he was held in his adopted city as taken from a McKeesport paper, published at the time of his death:

"A host of friends in McKeesport and vicinity will be pained to-day to learn of the death of J. Louis Brakeall, one of the most widely known and respected residents of the city. The demise occurred at the family home No. 414 Patterson avenue, Eleventh ward, last night at 9 o'clock and was due to an attack of pleuropneumonia with which he had been ailing for 11 days. Word for his mother to come to the bedside was forwarded yesterday, but she will not arrive until this evening.

"The deceased was aged about 47 years. He was born at Plum Run, Fulton county, where his mother at present resides. He is survived by his wife, whose maiden name was Cora Thompson, and six children: Esther, Martha, Allen, Frank, Marguerite and Ralph. He is also survived by three brothers and one sister, M. M. and William of this city, and Grant and Miss Ette of Fulton county.

"The deceased came to McKeesport several years ago and was one of the first conductors employed on electric cars in the vicinity of McKeesport. He followed this employment until a few weeks ago when he resigned and engaged in the retail milk business. As a testimonial of the esteem in which he was held by railway men, the employes of the Pittsburgh, McKeesport and Connellsville company have made a testimonial offering for a memorial.

"Mr. Brakeall was a member of McKeesport council No. 109, Jr. O. U. A. M., and of the Wilmerding lodge of Heptasophs. He was at one time a member of the Odd Fellows. At this writing the funeral arrangements had not been announced."

W. R. Speer of Saluvia, spent several hours in town last Friday.

that had inconsiderately joined the leagues had their eyes opened to the fearful consequences that awaited the league and its leaders. The leaders themselves turned pale at the thought of what the outcome would be, and all came to the aid of the governess to put down the mob and to prevent a recurrence of such deeds.

About this time the army recruited in Germany arrived, and was safely distributed into all important cities as garrisons. Now as Margaretta felt herself master of the situation and thought herself sufficiently strong for all future troubles, she informed the king of this fact and besought him not to send any Spanish troops to the provinces, as all would come right without them; but that if a Spanish army should come, serious revolts would follow. The king, however, paid no attention to this warning, but sent Duke Alva with 10,000 of his best troops.

HENRY WOLF.

KEEFER-KENDALL.

Mr. Grove Keefe of Franklin County and Miss Anna J. Kendall of this County.

A PRETTY HOME WEDDING.

A very pretty wedding took place two miles south of McConnellsburg, at the home of Mrs. Margaret Kendall, Thursday, February 4th, 1904, when Mr. Grove W. Keefe, of Chambersburg, and Miss Anna J. Kendall were united in marriage by the bride's minister, Rev. S. B. Houston, who in a brief and impressive ceremony pronounced them husband and wife. Promptly at ten o'clock the groom accompanied by Morrow Kendall entered the parlor keeping step to the wedding march which was beautifully rendered by Miss Gelwicks, a niece of the groom. Mrs. Morrow Kendall, being Matron of Honor, was the next to enter the room, and after that the bride entered leaning on the arm of her brother, Mr. James H. Kendall.

The bride looked charming in a dainty gown of cream albatross beautifully trimmed in applique. A handsome veil fastened with a single rosebud and foliage completed her costume. The groom presented a fine appearance in a well fitting suit of black.

The spacious parlors were very prettily decorated with evergreen and the bridal party stood under an arch from which was suspended a large horseshoe.

After congratulations the guests were invited to the dining room where a sumptuous dinner was served. Soon after dinner the bridal party started on their wedding journey, the best wishes of a large circle of relatives and friends accompanying them.

Among the guests present were Mr. and Mrs. Jerome Keefe, Mr. Denton Keefe and daughter, Miss Levena Keefe, sister of the groom, and Miss Nell V. Gelwicks, of Keefe, Pa.; Mr. Sellers and Mrs. Geo. Creider and Miss Myra C. Allen, Chambersburg, Pa.; Mrs. W. B. Pollock and Mr. Murray Pollock, Washington county, Md., and Mr. W. B. McDowell, Lemaster, Pa.

The bride was the recipient of a number of handsome and useful presents.

M.

Kuhn-Clevenger.

At the Lutheran parsonage on Thursday, February 4, 1904, Mr. William H. Kuhn was married to Miss Anna Ella Clevenger by Rev. A. G. Wolf.

COVALT-BOTTENFIELD.

Miss Nellie F. Bottenfield, of Belle Grove, Md., and Mr. Elmer B. Covalt, of Covalt, Pa., were married in Hagerstown Jan. 27, by Rev. R. Johnston Campbell, pastor of Washington Square Methodist church.

DIHEL-RICHARDS.

A very pretty home wedding was solemnized at six o'clock Wednesday evening, February 3rd, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Richards near Big Cove Tannery. The contracting parties were Miss Godey May Richards and Mr. Ira W. Diehl. The bride was attended by Miss Olive McEldowney, and Mr. Corder W. Snyder was "best man." The ceremony was performed by Rev. J. C. Garland of Pleasant Ridge.

The bride was dressed in white lawn trimmed in lace. The groom wore the conventional black. After the ceremony the bridal party and about twenty five invited guests partook of a delicious supper.

Among the guests present, not already named, were Mr. Moses Hill, wife and son Eddie, Mr. S. J. Mellott and wife, Mr. Aaron Richards and wife of McConnellsburg; Mr. Hiram Shives and wife Mr. James Bivens and wife, Mr. Job Everts and wife, Mr. James Richards, wife and son Willie, Peter Kirf, David Lauer, David Bivens, George Keefe, Maynard Lauer, Lillie Cooper, Rosa Everts, and Nettie Shives.

FRATERNAL VISIT.

McConnellsburg Oddfellows Enjoyed a Visit of Their Fort Littleton Brethren.

McConnellsburg Lodge, I. O. O. F., has been on the jump lately with the result of adding a number of new members. Taking advantage of the sleighing, a number of members from sister lodges visited McConnellsburg Lodge last Friday evening, and a general good time was had. The names of the visitors are as follows:—J. W. Miller, Harry McGowan, Dyson Fraker, J. Wesley Fraker, Hon. S. L. Buckley, D. W. Cromer, Frank Bare and S. B. Woollett—all of Fort Littleton lodge; G. A. Harris and John P. Sipes of Harrisonville lodge; D. C. Fleck of Orbisonia lodge; Albert K. Nesbit of Allegheny lodge at Covington, Va.; Thompson Fox of Lewis lodge in Kansas; S. C. Yeakle of Clearspring lodge, Md.

IN FRANKLIN COUNTY.

The Doings of Fulton County People Who Have Moved Across the Mountain.

Dayton Mellott has gone to the Eastern Shore.

Miss Mary Straley is employed at Wm. Trogler's.

Hill Glazier has been on the sick list, but is some better.

I. P. Hendershot of the Cove has purchased a farm in the Corner.

Joe Mellott of Webster Mills has moved to one of Mr. Dickey's farms.

G. N. Bell has rented with Mr. Jordan at Dickey's Station for another year.

Henry Deshong and Martin Truax of Sipes Mill made a trip to Mercersburg last week.

Mrs. Helen Trogler and daughter are visiting friends in Waynesboro and Baltimore.

Mr. and Mrs. Ellis Trogler spent Saturday and Sunday with the former's parents in Mercersburg.

James Kline and family, who have been farming near Mercersburg, expect to move to the Little Cove.

Misses Nellie and Millie Sheets entertained a number of young Mercersburg folks one evening last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Pittman, formerly of Fulton, will move from Martin Clevenger's in the Corner this spring.

The Methodist preacher at this place preaches at Blue Spring and Mt. Pleasant in the Corner. They need a church in that vicinity.

"Doc" Mellott of the Corner is able to take his milk to the separator. That is what the people over about Harrisonville need—a cream separator.

Mason.

On last Sabbath the shadow of death fell on the home of ex-Sheriff and Mrs. Frank Mason, and now they are mourning the loss of Carl Hart, their fifteen-months old baby boy. Little Carl had been sick about two weeks from an attack of pneumonia. Funeral services were conducted at their home at 1 o'clock Monday afternoon by Rev. C. M. Smith, assisted by Revs. Adams and West, and interment was made in the family lot in the Union cemetery.

CLEAR RIDGE.

Lots of measles and whooping cough in this neighborhood. Robert Gallaher is moving into John Woodcock's house.

Mr. and Mrs. Scott Wible of Harrisburg, are visiting friends here.

Grandmother Fields is quite ill; as is also, Clitrence Shore.

Dr. McClain spent part of last Sunday at Calvin Carmack's.

Mrs. J. A. Henry visited Miss Millie Huston last Sunday. John Fleming of Waterloo, returned home last Sunday, accompanied by his cousin Bradie, and sister Ada.

Mrs. J. A. Irwin and daughter Mary, and Miss Annie Irwin of McConnellsburg, are guests of Miss Millie Huston.

A DAY IN BOMBAY.

Miss Alice Wishart's First Impression of India.

DELIGHTED WITH THE CLIMATE.

The sea or heat maybe, makes me so drowsy I have to take a nap every day. But I get up early, have a bath, and go up on deck for exercise before breakfast.—This is an old boat but they keep it very clean. Every morning the deck, railings, etc., are scoured white as can be. This morning I stood watching one of the Hindu deck hands do some cleaning.—They all wear long white trousers which look like pyjamas, with a blue drilling shirt coming to below the knees, and worn on the outside, a red handkerchief wound about the waist to serve as a belt. A gay turban, and sometimes a long silver chain, or a string of beads complete the costume.—Their feet are always bare. Well, this particular fellow got a cinder or something in his eye, and very modestly went round to the other side of the vessel, wiped his eye with his shirt, and came back to work.

We have as a passenger, a Mr. Bailey, a Scotch Presbyterian Missionary going back to India. He speaks eight different languages, and knew Henry Drummond very well indeed, having heard him speak dozens of times, and he is going to tell me about him to-day.

I didn't tell you about Aden.—It is thought to be one of the hottest places in the world, and it is not much but a range of steep, bare mountains with just room enough at their base for a few low bungalows, tanks and barracks, with a tiny fringe of green on the shore. Absolutely nothing grows there, and everything in the way of food, clothes and fuel has to be brought from Bombay. The usual number of small boats swarming around the steamer when we anchored, with Arabs, Egyptians and some genuine Africans, black as night, white teeth and very scant clothing.

Last evening Marie Weir and I "entertained" part of the evening with the piano and mandolin in the saloon. I also sang some.—They serve chocolate, crackers, and cheese every night at 9 o'clock, when we gather round the tables and have some very good times. We have gotten well acquainted with each other.

I've been disappointed at not being able to write more interesting letters, but the sudden heat, and being continually on the "go" and the rolling of the boat which gives me the queerest dizzy feeling in the head at times, made it wisest not to exert myself.

I expect to remain in Bombay from Saturday till Monday night hurrying up to Allahabad so as to reach there by Christmas.

BOMBAY, Saturday night, Dec. 19th.—I had to post my letter on the "Oriental" before we landed, so as to catch the mail, but I feel I must write at once to-night after this lovely day even though it cannot go for another week. We left the boat about 11 A. M., this morning and found "Humes" by the half dozens waiting to greet the party; got through the customs nicely and were assigned places. Then we drove to Mr. Abbott's just in time to freshen up for tiffin (lunch). I am charmed with Bombay! My hostess is so very hospitable I feel at home, and quite natural five minutes after I got here. The palms, flowers and soft footed servants all delighted me. I am told that my future co-worker, Miss Todd, has written to me at every point on the way where I'd be likely to receive letters, but I have not received one, nor from home since Marseilles. My hostess begged me to remain till Monday night which I shall do. We were invited to meet all the people of our party at tea at Miss Abbott's and Mrs. Dean's, two of Dr. Abbott's sisters, at 4:30.—

GEORGE W. ANDERSON.

A Former Resident of Taylor Dies at His Home in Nebraska.

From D. W. Baker, one of our esteemed subscribers at Benedict, Nebraska, we learn that George W. Anderson a veteran of the Civil War and a pioneer of Seward county, Nebraska, has passed away, aged 66 years. He was a member of the Thirty-sixth Pennsylvania infantry and served his country faithfully to the close of the war. He was married to Miss Ann R. Kesselring in 1861, and to them were born fifteen children, twelve of whom are still living, also the mother of this large family. Mr. Anderson went to Seward in 1874, from Dublin Mills and settled on a homestead two and a half miles southwest of Seward, where he has since resided. He was a member of Seward post No. 3, G. A. R., which attended the funeral in a body.

His death we learn was due to Bright's Disease.

Mrs. George S. Mellott.

Susan, wife of George S. Mellott, near Siding Hill Christian church, died last Saturday and was buried at the Christian church Sunday afternoon. Funeral services were conducted by her pastor, Rev. S. L. Baugher, of Needmore.

Mrs. Mellott had been an invalid for several years, at times suffering most excruciating pain, but bearing it all with Christian fortitude.

She was aged about 38 years, and is survived by her husband, there being no children.

Mrs. Hester Fisher.

At the residence of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Mellott in this place last Friday afternoon, Mrs. Hester Fisher died at the age of 74 years, 10 months and 21 days.—Funeral conducted on Sabbath afternoon by Rev. A. G. Wolf, and interment made in the Lutheran graveyard.

Mrs. Fisher was the widow of the late Jacob Fisher of Bethel township, and a sister of Mrs. Rachel Smith of Whips Cove, and of Mrs. Amanda Garland of Cumberland, Md.

During the past two years Mrs. Fisher was a great sufferer from heart disease, and was bedfast since last August. She was a member of the Lutheran church, and lived a very consistent Christian life.

James J. Richards.

From the Bedford Gazette we learn that James J. Richards, who was born in this county on the 18th of May, 1835, died at his home in Bedford county last week.

Mr. Richards served in the war of the rebellion. He enlisted in Company G, 17th Regiment, Pennsylvania Cavalry, on September 27, 1862, and was honorably discharged at Cumberland on June 14, 1865.

For the past six or seven years he resided in Bedford township, going there from Buffalo Mills, where he had lived two years. He is survived by two daughters—Mrs. Job Mann of this county, and Mrs. James James of McKeesport.

I don't know when I had so pleasant a time. Our whole party, with the various Fairbanks and Humes and other American Congregationalist Board Missionaries came along, and every thing was so thoroughly congenial and refined and every body so interested in the new people.

It was lovely to watch the silent Hindu servants bearing trays of tea, sandwiches, cakes, and sweets. I felt perfectly comfortable and in harmony with the place and people. After we had had the nicest time over the refreshments and we nearly ready to go home, Miss Abbott went to the organ and we all sang, "Blest be the tie that binds" with a short prayer by Dr. Hume. It was all so natural with a joyous note of thanksgiving for our safe arrival.

ABOUT PEOPLE YOU KNOW

Snapshots at Their Movements, as They Come and Go.

NAMES OF VISITORS AND VISITED.

Mr. W. H. Wilson of Clear Ridge spent a few hours in town last Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Logue Hess of Dotz spent a few hours in town last Saturday.

Miss Blanche Sipes has returned home after having spent a week very pleasantly with relatives in Chambersburg.

Next Sunday Rev. Baugher will preach at Antioch at 10 a.m.; at Ditch Run at 2:30, and at Oakley at 7 in the evening.

E. B. Morton left on the noon back Monday. After visiting his brother Don at the Shippensburg Normal, he expects to go to Ohio.

M. R. Shaffner, agent for several big fire insurance companies has had telegrams from them in reference to the great Baltimore fire and they say they could stand several such blazes without feeling any financial inconvenience.

You have probably, by this time noticed that the FULTON COUNTY NEWS comes to you a little late this week. We get our paper from Baltimore, and the big fire down there last Sunday and Monday is responsible for the delay.

Mr. Frank Ranck of Bethel, and Mr. R. U. Darby of Baltimore, spent Tuesday night at the Fulton House. Besides managing a big limestone farm, Frank has succeeded in writing over $8,000.00 life insurance for the Massachusetts Mutual, mostly on the lives of Fulton county people.

Mr. Cleveland Forner, who was elected to teach the Shanes school in Licking Creek township last fall, but who soon thereafter resigned, is now engaged in teaching a school out in the western part of the State at $45 a month. As a rule a teacher who can teach a school successfully in Fulton county, can hold down a school anywhere else.

The school at Burnt Cabins is closed for the present on account of the fact that the teacher, Mr. E. E. Kell, has had to submit to a surgical operation for the removal of a large tumor from his neck. The operation was performed by Doctors McClay and Ramsey in Chambersburg on the 30th ult., and Mr. Kell is getting along nicely and we hope may soon be able to return to his school entirely free from the offending tumor.

Mr. W. B. Ranck and Rev. Thomas Thompson, D. D., of Warfordsburg, took advantage of the good roads last week to take a sleigh ride to McConnellsburg.—Dr. Thompson's home is in Washington, D. C., but last summer he came up to the 'Burg for a little outing, and finding the Warfordsburg and Buck Valley churches without a pastor kindly consented to stay and fill those pulpits temporarily until they could settle a regular pastor. We doubt very much whether those people will worry themselves to find another pastor as long as Dr. Thompson will consent to remain.

While in this place the reverend gentleman was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. John B. Runyan.

WEST DUBLIN.

Measles have been prevalent in this community the past few weeks.

Joseph Leidig is getting out lumber to build a new barn.

Andrew Brant killed a gray fox near here last Friday.

The snow of last week made some of our roads almost impassable.

At this writing the snow is leaving quite rapidly and those who have started on journeys with their sleds, must sled in the mud.

Rosa King is getting out lumber to weather-board his house.
