As a rule the man who isn't afraid to stand up for his rights imagines that he has a right to anything he wants.

Miss Rose Hennessy, well known as a poetess and elocutionist, of Lexington, Ky., tells how she was cured of uterine inflammation and ovaritis by the use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—For years I enjoyed the best of health and thought that I would always do so. I attended parties and receptions thinly clad, and would be suddenly chilled, but I did not think of the results. I caught a bad cold eighteen months ago while menstruating, and this caused inflammation of the womb and congested ovaries. I suffered excruciating pains and kept getting worse. My attention was called to your Vegetable Compound and the wonderful cures it had performed, and I made up my mind to try it for two months and see what it would do for me. Within one month I felt much better, and at the close of the second I was entirely well.

"I have advised a number of my lady friends to use it, and all express themselves as well satisfied with the results as I was."—MISS ROSE NORA HENNESSY, 410 S. Broadway, Lexington, Ky. — $5000 forfeit if original of above letter proving genuineness cannot be produced.

GOT CLOSE TO IT.

Occasion When Jack Was Near the Head of His Class.

Jack's parents were ambitious for their offspring; but the offspring lacked both ambition and industry. Hockey and marbles were far more attractive to Jack than geography and arithmetic, consequently his father and mother had never achieved the desire of their heart, which was to see their son at the head of his class.

As the winter progressed, Jack's monthly reports kept pace with the thermometer in its slide toward zero. Mother was discouraged; father was wrathy. First bribes were offered, then threats were resorted to, but nothing availed. The end of each month always called forth the same scene in Jack's family—tears on the part of mother; the switch on the part of father.

Jack would seem to be overcome by remorse and promise better things for the future, but if skating or coasting happened to be good, his resolutions would melt under the ardor of his enthusiasm for these sports, and the lessons would go by the board.

"Oh, Jack, why can't you get 100?" sighed his mother, when his last report was presented.

Jack fidgeted; stood first on one foot, then on another, then he burst out desperately:

"Well, mother, I—I come pretty near it this month. I—I sat next to a boy that got 100!"

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials. Address

Childhood of Defoe.

Sir Walter Besant in his latest book says of the author of "Robinson Crusoe" and "Journal of the Plague": "Defoe was born in the year 1661. His father lived in Cripplegate, where, as we know, he had a shop. The child, therefore, was 4 years of age in the plague year. A child of 4 observes a great deal and may remember a great deal. Defoe says: 'When any one bought a joint of meat he would not take it out of the butcher's hand, but took it off the hooks himself; on the other hand, the butcher would not touch the money, but put it into a pot full of vinegar which he kept for the purpose.' This must surely have been seen by the child and remembered. It happened in his father's shop before his eyes."

RESTORED TO HEALTH.

Many weak, suffering women do not know that their kidneys are sick. Backache tells of sick kidneys, and so do urinary disorders. Sick kidneys make bad blood, and bad blood makes bad digestion, heart palpitation, dizzy headaches, nervousness, sleeplessness, sciatica, rheumatic pains and constant depression.

Can't be restored to health until the kidneys are cured. Read how one woman was restored by using Doan's Kidney Pills:

Mrs. H. A. Van Sickle, 311 6th Ave., S. W., Roanoke, Va., says: "Kidney trouble was hereditary in our family, and I had been so continually afflicted with the disease that I began to despair of even temporary relief. Sometimes I suffered so severely that I was confined to my bed. The aching in my back was intense, and the kidney disorder caused an excess of uric acid in my blood which impaired my digestion. I was compelled to deny myself of many of the little delicacies of diet. The doctors diagnosed my case as congestion of the kidneys. I had about given up hope when I began using Doan's Kidney Pills, but I took only a few doses when their curative powers were proven to my satisfaction. I have never been without them in the house since."

Doan's Kidney Pills are sold by all dealers; price, 50 cents, or mailed on receipt of price by Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y. Write for free trial.

AGRICULTURAL.

Farm Economy.

Every land owner feels the necessity of using economy, but often it is good economy to pay out money freely. I do not consider it good economy to attempt to get along without hired help when hired help is actually needed, nor to get along without machinery when machinery is needed. You must look at all these things in the proper light. It is not economy for your wife to work herself into her grave when she should have a maid servant to help her.

Fruit Trees For Adornment.

Why not sometimes combine utility and beauty, and plant here and there a fruit tree for ornament? True, variety is the spice of life, and while the apple, pear or peach may be made very beautiful and useful as well, we also like other trees and would by no means discard them. The nut trees are also welcome guests, and there is abundance of room on the ordinary farm for all; so let us give them all a place and never let this spring pass without a generous planting of some or all of them. I wonder if any of us fully realize how a slight expenditure of cash and labor will enhance the real value of our homes? But this is not all, for the higher side of life is thus intensified and developed and this can never be reckoned in dollars and cents.

The Needs of Poultry.

Assuming that the poultry house is comfortable and properly ventilated, as well as kept free from vermin, any trouble which the fowls have is due, probably, to the method of feeding. Unless one is skilled in feeding and has kept up the variety necessary to the best results, together with the feeding of green food and animal meal, there is likely to be a falling off in the egg supply. Possibly the hens are being overfed, and if so this may be easily remedied by reducing the ration. The chances are, however, that the lack of green food is the trouble; to put it in other words, the fowls have had too much grain. Try the plan of cutting down their grain rations about one-third (one-half if the fowls are very fat) and making up the bulk with green food. Feed them anything in the line of green food obtainable, cabbage, vegetable tops of any sort that they will eat, small potatoes, cut green clover, anything that will give them the needed change, and give their stomachs a chance to rest from the overfeeding of grains. Do this and you will see a decided change in the egg production after two weeks.

Profits in Pigs.

A good way is to have pigs come in the spring months, and that they may enjoy plenty to eat, feed the sows on waste milk with buckwheat meal. A sufficient quantity of this should in due time be put in a shallow trough, set in a separate part of the pen into which the pigs, but not the sow, can go. As soon as pasturage is ready they should be turned out to feed, and by sowing as early as possible three pounds of rape per acre on good land, preferably that which needs summer following, the pigs may be put onto this with excellent results along in the latter part of summer, provided a portion is reserved for recovery after feeding, while the rest is fed down. Given three or four pounds of corn meal apiece per day, will nicely fatten the pigs while on the last of the rape; but, if so desired, they may be finished on grain, screenings, corn or peas and oats ground together. The feeding value of these grains, including barley, is improved by having them ground two or three months before using, only in that case the meal must be kept dry, and not allowed to heat or get sour. Set in barrels in a dry storeroom is the best place for it. —The Epitomist.

To Grade a Ditch.

To grade any sort of a ditch, either for drainage or irrigation, this simple device, copied from the Ohio Farmer, is useful. The points of triangle are exactly sixteen and a half feet apart. Find centre on the cross bar, then raise one leg of triangle two inches from the level (or whatever fall is wanted per rod) and the plumb line on the crossbar will give the grade mark. It will be well to have two marks on the crossbar, the level and the grade. Both should be so made as to be easily seen and readily distinguished. We must have one of these triangles when we proceed to drain our experimental farm.

Mating Fowl.

In the producing of stock of all kinds too much care cannot be given to selecting and mating, so as to have a product that is an improvement on what you had to produce from. This is especially necessary with poultry. Those who can select of their best and so pair them as to produce better than the parent stock have made an advancement. Those who fail in this are continually reducing the quality of their stock or going backward in place of forward.

No matter for what purpose we may keep fowls, it should always be our intent to improve them. If keeping them for market eggs, we should mate or pair them, not only to increase the egg yield, but to increase the quality and size of the egg produced as well. If you keep Leghorn hens aim to increase the size of the hens just a little rather than to allow them to grow smaller. With this aim to have pullets that will lay better than did their mother hen. If you gain increase in size of the pullets and add to the number of eggs produced you will then surely gain in size of the egg produced, because the increased size of the hens will add size in proportion to the eggs. While this is true with Leghorns, it is not always the case with such fowls as Cochins and Brahmas, but it is true that an undersized Leghorn lays a smaller egg than will the larger sized specimen of the same breed within a reasonable limit.

Those who keep fowls with no set purpose for improvement seldom advance very much, while those who are continually seeking new ways and new methods, through the use of which they may improve, are always gaining in quality and in profit. It is just as easy to go forward as backward in the hen business. There are thousands who make money continually out of their poultry, and there are just as many who fail with it.—Feather.

Breeding Geese For Profit.

It is not generally known that this is an important industry, although not so extensively engaged in as duck raising. There are many places on a farm that are worthless for cultivation that could be utilized with excellent results for goose raising. Fields that have streams, branches or unused springs on them could be turned to good advantage by making them into goose pastures. The care and attention necessary for raising geese is very small when compared with the returns, and the cost of food is also proportionately small in comparison with the cost of food used for other birds bred for market.

Geese are long-lived birds, and probably the hardiest of all domestic fowls. Some have been known to attain the age of forty years, while birds of fifteen and twenty years of age are not uncommon. They retain their laying and hatching qualities through life.

There are seven standard breeds of geese, as follows: Gray Toulouse, White Embden, Gray African, Brown Chinese, White Chinese, Gray Wild and Colored Egyptian. The first two named are the most profitable. The Toulouse is termed a Christmas goose, being later in maturing than the others. They are good layers, averaging forty eggs in a season, but cannot be depended upon to set. The Embden is not so prolific, twenty eggs in a season being a good average. The quality of the flesh is highly esteemed.

Little outlay is required for buildings. Old geese do well in winter with nothing in the way of shelter but a shed to run under, and usually they disdain that. In the figure above is shown a single house that may be built at a small cost. It is plain and has a shed roof. Such a house should be built of rough boards, twelve inches by one inch, and joints covered by three-inch and one-inch strips. The roof should be watertight and covered with tarred paper, shingles or tin. The floor should be raised twelve or eighteen inches from the ground to avoid dampness. While they are used to water on the outside, they must be given comfortable quarters in which to "warm up," or "dry out." A house twelve by fourteen feet will accommodate nicely a flock or six or eight. There are no interior arrangements whatever, simply the floor surface of the building.—Commercial Poultry.

Poultry Pickings.

It is a mistake to expect that eggs will hatch precisely in twenty-one days, and others will require twenty-five days for incubation. The causes are various—such as getting too cold, too much heat, lack of moisture, want of vitality of either or both of the parents, and the age of the egg.

Pools of stagnant water should not be allowed to exist where hens can get to them; cover up, fill up or fence up. Poultry should have a constant supply of nice, clear, sparkling water. Wash out the drinking vessels frequently, and occasionally put a drop of carbolic acid into the water.

An Italian authority finds that when hens are fed on food containing a large percentage of iron the eggs also reveal the presence of iron in the very digestible form of albuminate. Such eggs exert a tonic effect on persons who eat them. The case illustrates the fact that all eggs are not alike by any means, and that, according to the food fed, they may vary greatly in dietic value and effect.

In constructing a poultry house it is best to have its face to the southeast, as the sun will then send its warmth as soon as it arises. The sun will warm the house until about 2 o'clock in the afternoon in winter. If the house faces the south, as is usually the custom, the sun's rays will not enter before 9 or 10 o'clock, although the morning is the most important time for receiving the benefit.

The Rear-Platform Hog.

I was born of ignorant parents.

Home, in my earliest recollections, was a barn, where I received all the bringing up I ever had.

Just outside of the barn was a pigsty. I studied the pigs zealously. It was as good as a schooling.

At an early age I began to hook on behind street cars.

Those were the influences that made me what I am.

Why don't I step forward?

Because I haven't brains enough to see that there's plenty of room ahead.

Because if I had a lot of room to stand in I'd feel lost and unhappy.

Because other men don't step forward. I have as good a right to the back platform as the next man.

Because by standing outside I make it hard for passengers to get on and off. Thus I help create public enmity toward the trolley corporation.

Because I once knew the air in the street car to be bad, and I don't care to come into contact with bad things.

My great ambition is to go soak my head.

But I don't know how.

I don't know anything.

Sometimes I think I'm a sheep.

I am going home now to sit in all the easy chairs in the house and make my wife and family stand up.—Newark Evening News.
