Brother Gardner's Philosophy.

"If I had a boy I shouldn't be allus advisin' him to do dis an' not to do dat, but I should encourage him to go out and pick up a bumble-bee an' find out by experience which was de business end of de luseck. My gran'fadder used to talk to me by de hour 'bout de evils of intemperance, but I couldn't catch on till one day I drank a gallon o' hard cider an' was run trow a threshin' machine along wid de wheat. Dar's about so much in life to larn, an' it's well to larn it as soon as possible an' git ober feelin' curus."

"Dar' hain't no qeshun in my mind but that de pore man has got jest as much right to ride around in his kerridge as de rich one, but when it comes to payin' fur de axle grease dat's a different matter. We ought to hev all bin bo'n rich, but bein' as we wasn't, it pears to me to be de wisest plan to make de best of it. Ize cussed de rich an' Ize sympathized wid de poor, out I nebber could see dat I cum out ahead either way."

"If we'd study our fellow-man a leetle closer we'd git along wid him a heap better. When I knowed dat my naybur had put his fence two feet ober on my land I also knowed dat he'd law me fur ten y'ars if I axed him to move it. I jest got a friend to throw out a hint that my shed was six inches ober de line, an' de naybur paid all de expenses of a survey an' hustled his fence ober when he found he was wrong."

"Dar an' sartin folks who seem to find great consolation in tellin' how wicked de world has becum, an' how utterly impossible it am to longer find an honest man. When I h'ar sich pussons gwine on I allus move de woodpile a leetle near de doah an' tell de old woman not to forget to bring in de clothes line. De man who stole my wheelbarrow one night a y'ar ago sot an' talked to me fur a hull hour on de dishonesty of mankind, an' de pusson who robbed my hen-coop was ready to weep ober de degenerashun which he could see was takin' place in human nator'. If de b'ar trap which I have sot in my cucumber patch catches anybody 'tall dis summer de chances am fifty to one dat he'll be a social reformer."

Many folks am disappointed with life becase dey fail to realize dat deir am an eternal fitness of things. When yo' drap de price of whitewashin' from 75 cents to 50 cents de whitewasher draps in less lime an' pours in mo' water to maintain de equilibrium. What yo' save in yo'r purse he saves in his pail, an' so yo' hain't no better off."

"At some time or other ebery man sits down to figger dat if he could lib his life ober again he'd steer clear of all blunders. He fargits, in de fust place, dat natur' might bo'n him a fule to begin wid, an' dat if she didn't he wouldn't be human if he nebber made mistakes. I kin look back an' see whar' I orter hev gone into haws instead of chickens, an' whar' I orter hev planted half squashes instead of all pumpkins, but if I was to lib my life ober again I might make wuss mistakes. Taken all in all, it's a good 'nuff world to lib in, an' de people who preach moral degenerashun am all wrong. It's jest dat de barbed wire fence keeps us out of our naybur's truck patch, an' we lock de woodshed doah so he kin no longer git at our soft-sop bar'l. It's jest dat de street car conductor gib us a quarter wid a hole in it an' de greecer won't take it in turn from us. It's de same world an' de same people, only human natur' ain't buyin' mewls without lookin' fur soavins."

We Would Never Do It.

We would not think of selling you a regular 50c. shirt for 40c.; a 9c. muslin for 7c.; a 50c. corset for 40c., nor 12c. dress goods for 8 and 9c., the yard, when this means that we are selling the goods at what they cost us if we didn't have a very good reason for so doing.

We mean to quit the store business and want to turn our entire stock into cash and know the quickest way to do so is to sell cheaper than any one else will or can. Once in a great while a merchant will sell you an article at cost or even less than cost, but if he does he is going to get square on his other goods. We talk from actual experience.

We not only sell shirts and overalls cheaper than anybody else, but we will sell you anything and everything cheaper because we do not care for profit.

The careful housewife knows more about bargains than the average man and to them would we respectfully submit a few prices for comparison as a basis of prices on our entire stock.

Plain black satin 19 inches wide only 45c., per yard, and if you can beat it at 60c., per yard it is our treat. Lancaster gingham 6c., per yd., calico 4 and 5c., shirting 6 and 7c., white and red table cloth 25c. yd. worth 20c.; dainty 8c. quality for 6c.; white goods 6, 8, and 10c., white duck 10 per yard, blue, searlet, green and brown velvet 40c., per yard and worth 50c. Laces as low as 1c. per yd. Do not put off coming to see us. Remember we will not buy new goods to replace our present stock and something you want to-day may not be here a week hence.
