McCONNELLSBURG, PA., SEPTEMBER, 7 1904.

NUMBER 51

BROKE THEIR AUTO.

Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Frohneiser of Johnstown, had to Use Horsepower.

Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Frohneiser of Johnstown, left Bedford last Sunday morning, over the Chambersburg and Bedford turnpike to continue their trip from home to Philadelphia in their automobile. The machine behaved itself fine, until they began the ascent of Scrub Ridge mountain, when some of the propelling gear broke, and then there was trouble. They turned the machine around in the pike and the force of gravitation gave them the needed power to run back to the home of H. S. Daniels, Esq., at Pattersons Run.

Here they made an arrangement with the Squire to hitch two horses to the balky machine and pull it up the hills; and also procured from Mr. Daniels a horse and nuggy to convey Mrs. Frohneiser.

In this way they reached Mercersburg about 7 o'clock Sunday evening; and on Monday morning when the automobile was loaded on a freight car, and Mr. and Mrs. Frohneiser each had a first class railroad ticket for Philadelphia, they were not likely to have much further trouble in reaching the point of their destination.

When they would reach the top of a mountain, they would release the horses and coast down. Just after getting well started down the east side of Cove mountain, they met Mr. and Mrs. George Snider. The machine which was running at a pretty good clip frightened Mr. Snider's horse, causing it to turn short around in the road, but Mr. Snider managed to keep the animal under control and no harm resulted.

Mr. Frohneiser not being able to control the crippled machine was obliged to run it into the bank.

On examination he found he had been using the high gear clutch. He afterward used the low gear and got down the mountain without any further mishap.

HUSTONTOWN.

Mr. James Heefner, merchant of Petersburg, Pa., and wife are visiting with the former's parents in this place.

Miss Pauline Kirk returned to her home in this place last week from Greensburg, Pa. She was accompanied home by her cousin Miss May Kirk of Greensburg, Pa.

Died.—On Sunday, September 4, infant child of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Walker. Interment at Hustontown on Monday.

On last Saturday the base ball team from Gracey came over and crossed bats with the Hustontown boys, which resulted in a disastrous defeat for the Gracey boys. While the Gracey boys had the better of us in avoidpods, yet, we showed them that—the largest bird was not necessarily the singer. They are a gentlemanly set of boys and we will be pleased to meet them again in the future. A game with Clear Ridge is expected next Saturday on the Athletic grounds.

Mr. W. Scott Rinedollar, who had been on an extended visit to his parents at Webster Mills, Fulton county, returned to this place last Tuesday evening, and on Wednesday resumed work in J. T. Emme's tailoring establishment. Mr. Rinedollar thoroughly enjoyed his vacation and gained eight pounds in weight.—Everett Republican.

THE NETHERLANDS.

Another Chapter on the History of This Country by Rev Wolfe.

After the death of William III. 1702, and during the minority of William IV, the Republican party came into power again, and for a number of years there was no active stadtholder. But as England exercised great influence over the affairs of the Netherlands, and William IV, also a Prince of the house of Nassau Orange, moreover, a son-in-law of George II, it was brought about, that William IV, was proclaimed stadtholder, and the office was made hereditary in the Nassau Orange family to males or females forever, 1747. But his reign lasted only until 1751. William V. was the next stadtholder. His reign was not a happy one, nothing seemed to prosper with him, and he was so ill-favored with his countrymen, that after several outbreaks of insurrection, he deliberately resigned the office, and left his native country. The anti orange party went so far now, as to change the existing constitution, and actually assaulted members of the Orange family. The residence of the executive at this time, was at Geldern, and as the Stadtholders attempted to journey to the Haag, she was interrupted, and not allowed to proceed on her journey, but forced to turn back. Now, she was a Prussian Princess, sister to Frederick William, king of Prussia, who felt this insult to his sister so keenly, that he sent the Duke of Brunswick with an army into Holland and had the prince reinstated into his office, to the great disgust of the Dutch Republicans. The Prussian king also had the old constitution restored, and order brought in all government affairs; he did not even insist on any indemnity for his trouble and expense of the little campaign, but was content with the satisfaction and honor it brought him, 1787.

In January 1795, the French General Picquegru, with an army commanded by Moreau, Sanham, McDonald, Vandamme, and others, forced their way over frozen waters into the Netherlands, and without much resistance made themselves masters of the whole country. William V. sought refuge in England, and the victorious French, with the aid of the Dutch Republicans, who were greatly opposed to the house of Orange, established the Batavian Republic.

On the 16th day of May, 1795, the new republic agreed to let France use all its seaports, and pay a war indemnity of 100 millions. Great as this blow was upon the republic, other calamities came upon it from another source, while its lot was cast with the French. Between the year 1795 and 1797, England took from them, all their possessions in Hindostan and on Cape of Good Hope also Malacca, Ceylon, Amboina, Ternate and other islands, also Demerary and Essequibo; in 1799 Surinam; 1800 Curacao, and in 1801 St. Eustach with Saba.

Until 1795 the republic shared all the vicissitudes of France, but after that period Napoleon made some changes in its administration, and in 1801 made a decree, by which the republic had to maintain a French garrison of 15,000 men, also a native standing army of 10,000 men, and also fit out five war ships of first class and five frigates. Thus dictated the great Napoleon to a conquered nation.

Soon Napoleon seen fit to change things again, as he was fast becoming master of most of Europe. In 1806, he created a kingdom out of the Republic of Batavia, and declared his own brother, Louis Bonaparte as king. Only a few years passed when king Louis, disgusted with his exalted brother's high handed policy, abdicated his throne, which gave Napoleon a welcome reason to merge the kingdom with France, 1810. After Napo-

SHOOTING ACCIDENT

During the session of the teachers' meeting at Fort Littleton last Saturday, the sharp report of a gun was heard in the woods near. This would not likely have attracted any further attention had not a yell and groaning followed. Superintendent Barton went in the direction of the noise and soon came upon the prostrate body of Blaine Haiston, seventeen-year-old son of Mercer D. Haiston, with the front part of his right foot shot off.

It seems that young Haiston had a shot gun loaded with bb shot and in "some way" the gun was discharged, the load passing down through the right foot, making a round hole that one could see through. The young man was placed in a buggy and sent to the home of his father and the wounded member was dressed by a surgeon; but it will be a long time before that foot will be as good as it was before the accident.

Norris E. Hoover and Doc Davis were among the Hustontown people that had business at the County Seat Monday.

leon was conquered by the powers of Europe, and restricted to the island of Elba, the Concess of Wien, established the kingdom of the United Netherlands, including the whole of Belgium, and appointed Prince William of Orange, (son of William V. ex-stadtholder, and now a refugee in England), as king, 1814.

HENRY WOLFE.

THE HALF NOT TOLD.

Rev. D. W. Kelso Gives a Little Sketch of His Trip to the World's Fair.

St. Louis, Sept. 2.—I left old Fulton, my native home, on the 30th of August, went to Orbisonia and took the 2:30 train, and reached Mt. Union at 4:30. At Mount Union, for $27.50, I purchased from A. W. Fuller, ticket agent, a 60-day excursion ticket to St. Louis, with privilege of transfer and a 10-day stop-off at Chicago on my return. At 5:20, I boarded a train and was in Pittsburg at 10:40, where we rested until 2:40 next morning when we made a bee-line for St. Louis, passing through the cities of Columbus and Indianapolis, arriving at St. Louis at 7:20—by our home time it was 8:20—crossed the Mississippi river, went through the tunnel, and pulled up in Union depot. From the depot I took a street car with a transfer to Bellefontaine car line and landed at my boarding place at 2504 Benton St., where I was kindly received.

On my trip I saw many beautiful farms dotted with farm houses, most of them being but a story and a half in height. There are very few barns in the West, most of the land is nearly level and one sees miles and miles of cornfields—some cut and in shock. Many fields are shocked over with wheat which looks as bright as though it had been cut but yesterday. Threshermen with the finest kind of outfits are busy threshing these crops. A windmill is seen at almost every farm house to pump water for farm purposes. Nearly all the hay is made and stacked in the fields, just where cut, in small round stacks.

I have spent one day on the Fair grounds and am wonderfully pleased with the great exhibits. I would say to the people of Fulton county: It will pay to come and see; for it cannot be described—the half has not been told.

To-morrow, I expect to go to Hillsboro to see my nephew, Jonathan Kelso, and remain until Monday, the 5th, when I shall return to this city and spend some more time at the Exhibition.

Your friend,
D. W. Kelso.

THE TEACHERS' MEETINGS.

Were Held in Dublin and Tod Last Saturday With Good Results.

Teachers' Preliminary meetings were held in Dublin and Tod last Saturday. Nine teachers were present in Dublin and ten in Tod. Supt. Barton spent the forenoon at the former meeting and the afternoon at the latter. He gives a good report of both meetings and is of the opinion that the new plan of holding these meetings is bringing better results.

The following subjects are on for discussion in each township in the county.

1. The use and abuse of supplies.
2. School organization.
3. Hygienic and Aesthetic conditions of the school room.
4. The use of the Text Book.
5. The program and the course of study.

Directors and patrons should attend and help the teachers in the discussions of these questions. They can do much to help the teachers make a good start in their work.

Outing to Wells Valley.

Dr. and Mrs. H. S. Wishart of this place, accompanied by their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. George S. Fockler, and by their son Norman—all of Johnstown, Pa., left McConnellsburg Saturday morning, August 25, and proceeded to Harrisonville, where they tarried a short time at the old home where the Doctor and his wife had resided during a period of 36 years. Thence via New Grenada, they reached the hospitable home of Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Horton, where they enjoyed a good dinner and spent the afternoon very pleasantly, remaining until after supper, when they continued onward up the Valley, and stopped for the night at the old Wishart homestead now owned and occupied by Captain Harvey Wishart. Here they met Hon. and Mrs. Samuel P. Wishart, ex-Commissioner and Mrs. John A. Wishart and little daughter, Rachel, of Wells Tannery, and Mrs. Mollie Bowman (sister of Mrs. Harvey Wishart,) of Canada.

The evening was spent very pleasantly, referring to many things that occurred in childhood days—incidents that had occurred more than half a century ago; for in that house the Wishart family were born—ten in number—eight now living, ranging in years from seventy-two, down. The bedstead occupied by the parent Wishart's is in the house in the possession of Miss Kate Wishart, and is in a good state of preservation. The visiting party were also pleasantly entertained by the families of S. P. and John A. Wishart at Wells Tannery, where they spent from Saturday evening until Tuesday noon, when they attended the funeral of the child of Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Horton, who had died suddenly of interception of the bowels, superinduced by the swallowing of a cent. This was sad and cast a shadow over their pleasure somewhat. After the funeral they returned home to McConnellsburg.
