

Woman's Realm

Too Pretty For Words.
For garden party or fete champetre a quaint set of box parasol, and flou to match is distractingly pretty. The hat is an adaptation of the poke bonnet which we hear much about, but seldom see. Made of shirred chiffon, both crown and inner brim are encircled with a wreath of tiny button roses and forget-me-nots, and the long white satin strings are brought around and tied demurely under the chin.

The fichu of supple white satin and lace has a thick garland of the small flowers and long, lace-edged sash curls tie in front.

The parasol is likewise of chiffon and lace, mounted over white satin, and sprays of the flowers are artistically disposed over the canopy portion. The long handle is in natural boxwood.

Grow Old Gracefully.
You are always as young as you feel.

People never grow old until they think themselves old.

Never either admit your age or give landmarks which will enable others to guess it rightly.

Take plenty of exercise; move briskly.

Take a half hour's rest in the middle of the day; nothing conduces more to a good appearance. It renews strength and freshens the complexion.

The want of occupation does not conduce to youth or to rest; "a mind quite vacant is a mind distressed."

Energy keeps the muscles elastic, and romance is an anesthetic against wrinkles.

Defy time by keeping your heart young. It is envy, loss of heart and impatience that bring lines to the face.

The Proper Perfume.
There is always just a subtle fragrance about the modern girl—not a perfume, just a little suggestion of something sweet-smelling and fresh. It is not that this bewitching girl approves of using perfume, but merely that she is in favor of dainty sachets.

Where do you suppose is her newest place for hiding away her favorite sachet powder? It is in a box which she uses to adorn the handle of her sunshade. The box is nothing more than a slightly padded sachet bag, and it is just the most delicious little find that the girl has had for many a long year.

The bandeau of her hat is frequently filled with sachet, and oftentimes her girdle is perfumed in the same way.

The fashionable girl, of course, never uses but one perfume, and such scents as violet, orris or sweet lavender are in much better taste than stronger perfumes, like heliotrop, carnation pink and white rose.—Woman's Home Companion.

Seen and Heard by a Woman.
"The way some people squander their strength and time in trying to economize is a most pitiable domestic spectacle," said a woman recently. "I know a woman who has five children and does her own work. She never throws a piece of twine away, and no matter how knotted the string is she sits down to unravel it. Good twine is only five cents a ball."

"The matter of using left-overs of food often aggravates me. To save some old bread, worth half a cent, a woman will use a quarter of water of eggs, sugar, butter and nuts, only to give her family turn from it at the table. Again the domestic economist will spend a dollar on new trimmings to fix up some old gown, and when she has spent much time and money and ingenuity the result is a patchwork and the maker is ashamed to wear it."

"I believe in being economical, but what I object to is this senseless expense. A woman can show her brains quite as much in what she declines to fuss over as in what she makes the most of."—New Haven (Conn.) Register.

For Bachelor Girl's Room.
Where there is room for the bachelor girl finds it necessary to economize in space. A corner look-alike and writing desk can be made from two boxes set into a corner, and so taking up less room than a desk set straight against the wall.

The boxes for this piece of furniture must be of two sizes, or cut to two sizes. Each box must be sawed in two, from corner to corner, making the oblique of the end of the largest box the edge of the writing desk. The smaller box, saved in exactly the same way, is set upon the large box, fitting into the corner and leaving a space at the back of the first box free for the writing desk. The boxes can be painted or covered with denim, or better yet, if the surface is moderately smooth and the bachelor girl is able to do burnt work, the inside of the cabinets can be covered with designs and the edges of the shelves can be scroll. The top is prettily finished with a cheap picture molding.

Brass rods for the curtains should be firmly fastened at the top of both the lower and upper cabinet. The writing desk should be covered with felt, in harmony with the other colors in the room.

Beauty Chat.
To woman modesty is the best means to be right.—Mme. de Fontaines.

A woman laughs when she can and weeps when she will.—French Proverbs.

A woman can't understand why a man lacks the force of character necessary to give up a vice or a luxury.

The woman who talks the most about marriage is not always the one who marries early.

However concealed she may be, no mirror can make a girl look as beautiful to herself as she looks to the young man who is in love with her.

An attractive widow talks about taking a second husband as a condescension on her part.

What a difference it makes to a young man whether a pretty girl smiles at him or laughs at him.

THE KEYSTONE STATE

Latest News of Pennsylvania Told in Short Order.

Citizens are still seeking the robber who bound and gagged Mrs. Marguerite Ross in her home in Williamsburg. It is supposed that the intruder intended to burn the girl to death. Discovering that she was alone in the house, the robber choked her into insensibility and dragged her into the dining-room. Then he ransacked the house, collecting jewelry, silverware and jewelry in a bag. He then saturated the clothing of the unconscious girl with oil and piled paper and rags around her. Before he applied the match, Frank Ross, a brother of the girl, came home from school, kicked at the locked door, threw his books on the porch and went downtown. Believing help was at hand, the robber fled out the back door without any booty. The girl was still unconscious when discovered.

The chief veterinarian of Pennsylvania, Dr. Leonard Pearson, with a Government veterinarian, Dr. Shauler, of Philadelphia, visited stock yards near Lancaster to investigate the origin of Texas fever in Lancaster county. The inspectors learned that the disease has found its way to Lebanon, Berks and Chester Counties. That infected cattle were at the local yards is not denied, and they have been thoroughly disinfecting and there is no fear of further contagion.

Mrs. Nina Virginia Cooper Dyer, wife of William Ashmead Dyer, cashier of the Cambridge Trust Company, and daughter of Assemblyman Thomas V. Cooper, died in Chester. Mrs. Dyer was 27 years of age and was well-known in society. She was registrar of Betsy Ross Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution. She was married on June 7, 1902, the wedding being attended by many prominent people, including Admiral Schley.

A "woman in black" who has alarmed the west end of the town of Norristown, has turned out to be a man masquerading in female attire. He haunts dark alleys and secretes himself in arousing cries of fear from startled women. One woman resolved that she would not be chased, but when she saw her tormentor's trousers, she, too, ran. The cries of the distressed woman attracted several men, who gave chase to the prowler in black but he escaped up an alley.

The new Capitol Commission met at Harrisburg, supervising Engineer Green, Architect Huston and Contractor Payne all positively assured the commission that the Legislature halls and the committee and clerks' rooms will be ready when the Legislature meets in January. The commissioners inspected the building and were convinced that the assurances were well founded.

After suffering greatly from the incursions of a variety of evidences, Eschinger has now recovered from his ailments. An attempt was made to burn the house of Christian Walz. Out of 23,257 ovens 16,218 were active and 7,039 idle.

Otto Traub, a driver on the wagon of a Chester Heights bakery, was held up by men and women from one of the boat houses along Darby Creek, and, after being robbed of all the money in his pockets, the bread and cakes in the wagon were taken and taken to a boat house. Traub was delivering bread in the vicinity when two men and two women halted him. While the men rifled his pockets the women looted the wagon of its contents. The holdup is the third that has occurred in that vicinity during the past three weeks.

Paxson, counsel for the secret societies, questioned all candidates for citizens' papers regarding their knowledge of the constitution and American institutions.

COMMERCIAL REVIEW.

I. G. Dun & Co's weekly review of trade says: Confidence increases each week as a larger proportion of the agricultural yield is placed beyond the reach of injury and industrial undertakings are less interrupted by labor controversies. It is not to be expected that the business world will suddenly abandon its conservative attitude, purchases being still restricted largely to such needs as are clearly discerned, but there is evidence of a growing disposition to provide for more remote requirements. In many lines, particularly dry goods, stocks have been reduced much below normal, and Fall shipments are expanding in a healthy manner.

Distribution of merchandise is providing the railways with a large tonnage, preparations are being made to handle the enormous crops and the gross earnings of all railways reporting for three weeks of August show a gain of 1.4 per cent. over the same time last year. Foreign commerce for the last week at this point was smaller than a year ago, exports decreasing $307,277, while imports fell $90,493, and this tendency is largely responsible for the Treasury deficit in August, customs receipts falling about $3,000,000 behind those of the same month last year. Protracted meetings discussing the matter of prices for steel products tended to restrict business and wholesale conditions cannot be restored until there is less uncertainty on this point. Slight evidences of improvement in the matter of cotton goods were removed by the resumption of wide price changes for the raw material and aggressive speculation. Bradstreet's says:

Wheat, including flour, exports for the week aggregated 1,830,511 bushels, against 1,084,333 last week, 3,131,830 this week last year, 6,275,299 in 1902 and 4,406,604 in 1901. From July 1 to date the exports aggregate 12,464,662 bushels, against 28,276,128 last year, 5,723,881 in 1902 and 50,167,570 in 1901. Corn exports for the week aggregated 710,562 bushels against 763,846 last week, 868,741 a year ago, 21,716 in 1902 and 350,876 in 1901. From July 1 to date the exports of corn aggregate 5,272,881 bushels, against 9,194,016 in 1901, 775,755 in 1902 and 9,249,897 in 1901.

IS A TREACHEROUS ANIMAL.

Black Panther of Africa More Ferocious than the Bengal Tiger.
Of all the big, dangerous wild beasts more unapproachable and more treacherous than the black panther. Hailing from the heart of the deepest African jungle, lithe and supple of body, alert and nervous, this stealthy marauder exceeds in ferocity even a Bengal tiger. He is the only big feline that the lion trainer does not venture to train; and he is the only cat so absolutely distrustful that he shuns even the light of day.

Often he will lie all day long in a dusky corner of his cage, his yellow slit eyes shifting and gleaming restlessly. Even the feeding hour, when pandemonium breaks loose among the big cages, when hungry roars and squeals mingle with impatient snarls and impacts of heavy bodies against steel bars, is apt to have no effect on him. He may be eyeing his chunk of raw beef suspiciously, and not venture forth until day has waned and the last visitor has left; to tear meat from bones with his long, white fangs.

In fact, so ugly and vicious is this beast, that frequently he turns on his own kind, and in many instances it is impossible to cage him, even with a mate.—McClure's Magazine.

Wished Agonies From Kidney Disorders Until Cured by Doan's Kidney Pills.
George W. Renoff, of 1652 North Eleventh street, Philadelphia, Pa., a man of good reputation and standing, writes: "Five years ago I was suffering so with my back and kidneys that I often had to lay off. The kidney secretions were unnatural, my legs and stomach were swollen, and I had no appetite. When doctors failed to help me I began using Doan's Kidney Pills and improved until my back was strong and my appetite returned. During the four years since I stopped using them I have enjoyed excellent health. The cure was permanent."

BABY BORN TO FORTUNE.

John Nicholas Brown, 4 Years Old, Worth $10,000,000.

John Nicholas Brown, of Rhode Island is only 4 years old, but he is rated worth $10,000,000. His fortune came from his father and an uncle, in equal amounts, before he was three months old. Young Brown has three palatial residences, a yacht, is always attended by a physician and has a retinue of ten servants. He lives on a sterilized milk chiefly and has more care bestowed upon him than a royal prince. He is weighed morning and night on special scales and is groomed in the most luxurious manner. The youngster's fortune consists in stock in great cotton mills in New England. His mother was a Miss Dresser, sister of Mrs. George Vanderbilt.

A Fund of Humor.

William Winter, the dramatic critic, is thought by some to write the worst hand of any man living. There may have been giants in the past, like Horace Greeley, who surpassed him, but no one his equal remains.

Some years ago Mr. Winter was traveling in Scotland, and having had many amusing experiences, wrote an account of them to R. H. Stoddard, in New York. Mr. Stoddard combined the letter at breakfast and, receiving familiarity with the intentions of the poet, managed to make it out, and others several good laughs. He glanced up at Mr. Stoddard and said: "It's from William Winter, a word of his writing," answered Mrs. Stoddard.

"Oh, that doesn't matter," replied Mr. Stoddard, tossing the letter over "it's just as funny to look at."

About twelve years ago a clock, more ornamental than useful, was given Miss S. A. Bailey of Peasack, Vt. For a year, perhaps, by much coaxing, it told the time more or less correctly, then stopped. No amount of shaking could persuade it to start, and after a time it was removed to a beam in the shed. There it was forgotten, and for the last five years probably stood utterly silent, until a few days ago it began to tick and the hand to move, and is continues to do.

A Novel Team.

The owner of a large ostrich farm in southern California has trained a pair of these huge birds to drive as he would drive horses, hitching them to a light buggy or trotting cart, which has in its design a third wheel. This is to prevent the vehicle from turning over. It is by no means an easy task to drive such a wild team, as you can't pull up your "horses" by reins. If you did it would probably result in serious injury to the valuable birds. The only way to guide the conveyance is to hit the outside bird on the opposite side to that which you want him to go. Another objection to this kind of "horse" is that if he should catch sight of a bit of banana peel, or something equally attractive, he does not hesitate to make a dive sideways for it. As ostriches go like the wind, and can make a sudden dead stop, the jerk the rider receives is not a pleasant one. If a piece of orange peel should happen accidentally to meet the eye of his strange "horses."

Falkland's Plague of Geese.

There appears to be an excellent opening for a new industry in the Falkland Islands. Gov. Grey Wilson reports that an attraction is on foot to induce the government to undertake the diminution of the wild—"but in reality much too tame"—geese, and that he does not sympathize with it.

The farmers meantime are doing this deadly work themselves, and are paying $2.50 a hundred for the upper half as evidence of slaughter; and it is suggested that from 100,000 to 150,000 geese, representing grass for 20,000 sheep, might with advantage be destroyed annually.

But the governor points out that the native geese is excellent eating and thinks that commercial enterprise might preserve from waste about a million pounds of food and the high class down which this slaughter provides.

This is to say nothing of the vast quantity of eggs which are broken yearly.—Stray Stories.

The letter of Miss Merkley, whose picture is printed above, proves beyond question that thousands of cases of inflammation of the ovaries and womb are annually cured by the use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—Gradual loss of strength and nerve force told me something was radically wrong with me. I had severe shooting pains through the pelvic organs, cramps and extreme irritation, compelling me to seek medical advice. The doctor said that I had ovarian trouble and ulceration, and advised an operation. I strongly objected to this and decided to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I soon found that my judgment was correct, and that all the good things said about this medicine were true, and day by day I felt less pain and increased appetite. The ulceration soon healed, and the other complications disappeared, and in seven weeks I was once more strong and vigorous and perfectly well."

My heartiest thanks are sent to you for the great good you have done me.
