The family of S. Russell Kendall and that of his father, Mr. C. Howard Kendall, live on adjacent properties in Altoona. On the 7th inst., while the elder Kendall and family were in Washington, the coal house on Russell's property caught fire, and from that a spark ignited the roof of his father's dwelling. In attempting to remove a sash to gain entrance to the building, Russell cut his wrist on the glass, severing three leaders and an artery. From that moment the Fire Department took charge of the building and the surgeons and nurses at the hospital took charge of Russell, and it took the latter two hours to patch Russell up so he could go home. He will carry the arm in a sling for some time.
