Bables' Bootees,

The variety of bootees seems inexbaustible. One cunning pair show a sandal effect. They are knitted in white with two rows of blue at the top and blue baby ribbon at the ankle. The sandal effect is accentuated by a knitted roll of blue applied at the sandal line. Long carriage bootees are very useful, says Harper's Bazar, as they cover a part of baby's anatomy quite frequently overlooked. The feet and legs are knitted in the usual way, but a shaped knee is added, and the leg extended several inches above the knee. A ribbon run through near the top holds them in place.

Girls, Please Don't-

Forget that a trusted chum may some day become a pronounced enemy. Neglect the finishing touches of your morning attire.

Become rude when a man says nice things of other girls.

Talk too much about the boys you know in the presence of strangers. Give yourselves airs because your father happens to be wealthy.

Bestow affection on a man who is unknown to your mother.

Imagine your father does not take notice of what you are doing. Speak to your brother as though he were in duty bound to wait on you.

Forget that modesty ranks as one of the cardinal virtues.

A Suggestion to Travelers. In packing trunks there often comes that final hour of desperation, when, after last calls, muddy boots go in on' top of a jet bonnet, and the last delayed washing on top of that; or perhaps unread papers with some friends' speech are sacrificed to wrap up these shoes. To avoid this dilemma, make several pairs of bags of lightweight washable stuff (pieces of summer dresses, percale, lawn, etc., may be used); make but one pair of one color. Put each shoe or slipper with its own bag, not a pair together, as they will rub and will not pack to advantage. In searching for them, the color of the bags shows which are mates,-Woman's Home Companion, lously into them," a manufacturer asuttering an untruth to the giri's face.

"The average mirror has a slightly greenish tinge. The cheaper it is, the more pronounced this peculiarity, and even in a costly glass it is not always absent, and it is this very tone that plays the trick, and makes many a girl think she is lacking in a beautiful complexion.

"It is a remarkable complexion, infleed, that would be mirrored back radiant and fresh from such a glass. The green makes the complexion look sallow, destroys those rich, medium purplish tints and most of the high lights that contribute so much to the beauty of the face, and give it a sort of sickly appearance. It accentuntes the slightest trace of yellowishness, and makes it stand out as though It were a bideous defect, when, as a matter of fact, it may be the mere suggestion that is hardly discernible to the naked eye at all."

Sign of the Patch.

Mrs. Murray had advertised for a skilled gardener to work by the day in her yard, and somewhat to her embarrassment she was obliged to choose between two applicants who appeared at the same moment. As she stood on her doorstep, questioning first one and then the other, she became aware that her mother-in-law, seated on the porch a short distance from the men and directly behind them, was frantically resticulating. The old lady, satisfied at last that she had attracted her daughter-inlaw's attention, pointed unmistakably towards the less prepossessing of the two men; and the younger woman, supposing that her relative had some personal knowledge of the applicant, promptly engaged him.

"Has that han ever worked for you, mother?" asked Mrs. Murray, when the two women were alone.

"No," replied the old lady, "I never saw or heard of either or 'em until now."

"Then why in the world did you choose the shorter man. The other had Gowns Worn Indoors.

Afternoon frocks for the house are retty and stylish, and many are the sterials utilized for their making. Iliady, when she remains indoors for a afternoon, and is not receiving calling, does one of these rather new which are not negliger nor yet the state.

on quite a few. Some of the models are made on very simple lines, pleated waists and skirts being the only show at elaborateness. Persian effects, and also those received from Japan and China help out many handsome gowns, and much hand embroidery is seen on those which have been made by women handy with their needle. As to the collars worn, they are of all heights and shapes, the "Dutch" neck being perhaps the most favored. Women generally like to have their throats exposed when in the house, and by this medium they are at the same time keeping with the fashions. The surplice waist seems to have a strong hold on the smart women, and it is rather surprising as so very few women can look well in the princess effect. The wide girdle and the sash are as one now, and no very pretty dress appears without one. are not wearing such elaborate clothes indoor as formerly, and therefore their fashions are somewhat restricted. Tea gowns and such like are quite a thing of the past, and although they were extremely handsome and becoming, and enough milk to make it pour easthey are perhaps too expensive.

Morning lounging robes differ greatly from those worn in the afternoon; the morning affairs being on the style of those always wore. The kimona and negligee are still used, as are also the dressing sacques and wrappers .-New Haven Register.

Care of the Hair. Every woman will frankly admit one thing in another, and that is beautiful hair, and even as she expresses her admiration she is likely to say that she wishes hers were as pretty, remarks the New Haven Register. There are few heads of hair which may not be beautiful if only a woman will care for it properly. No hair in the world, however thick, will be glossy and at its best unless time is taken to keep it in order. Many women seem not to realize this. There is more than brushing and combing to be done, and especially now should attention be paid to other of salt added, fifteen minutes, wipe details. It is well to have two ways of dressing it, and alternate every few days, but the most important rest is given at night. If one can allow the hair to remain loose at night without being made nervous by it this is the best rest it can be given, for there is no strain or pulling of braids. But few women can stand loose hair about their face on the pillow, and so they must do the next best thing. This is to braid it loosely. Never under any condition allow it to remain "done up" at night. In the morning, if possible, give your hair a good brushing with a good brush, and then adopt the coiffure decreed by the

COMMERCIAL REVIEW.

R. G. Dun & Ca.'s "Weekly Review of Trade" says:

Business was relarded by the storms, which interrupted telegraphic communication, but the loss was quickly recovered and retail trade responded to the lower temperature, while a large jobbing distribution of holiday goods occurred. Fall River mills were re-opened, but the operatives did not return in sufficient numbers to keep the machinery active, and there is still difficulty regarding the water supply in the Connellsville coke region, which handicaps the blast furnaces.

Other commercial reports are encouraging, and, on the whole, condi-tions steadily improve. Gradual pro-gress is desirable, providing less dan-ger of such advances in prices as will curtail consumption. Confidence is increasing, particularly in the steel and textile industries, and building operations are very vigorous for the season, while mercantile collections are more prompt. Farm staples are slightly cheaper, in response to splendid despatches from agricultural centers, and several freight blockades have delayed the delivery of grain and merchandise. Railway earnings thus far reported for November are 8.6 per cent, larger than last year.

Foreign trade is exceeding the most sanguine expectations. Official returns for October make the value of exports $162,570,393, exceeding every month on record, with the exception of October, 1900, which reported only $800,-000 larger exports.

Failures this week numbered 217 in the United States against 249 last year, and 27 in Canada, compared with 17 a year ago.

Resourceful Patrolman.

Patrolman Plischke of the Los An geles police force is a man of resources, as he proved one evening not long ago. He belongs to the bicycle squad and was walking along a handsome residence street when he ob-served a suspicious stranger who was unable to give a good account of him-self. The officer found on the man a porch climber's outfit, including dark lantern and coil of rope. Plischke did not think he could handle his prisoner and at the same time take care of his wheel, which he feared to leave behind. So he made the man put his hands on either side of a lamp post and handcuffed him there. Then he went for help.
