RUSSIANS SITUATION MORE GRAVE.

Reign of Terror in St. Petersburg, and Spreading like Wild Fire.

A full description of the horrible scenes in Russia's capitol, last Sunday is given on the second page of this paper. The situation is hourly growing more serious and the Czar is said to be prostrated. This promises to be one of the mightiest revolutions in modern times and is attracting the anxious attention of the whole world.

St. Petersburg, January 28.—St. Petersburg is in a panic tonight. The city has suddenly been plunged into darkness by the shutting down of the electric light works and it is feared that the water supply may be cut off and the city set ablaze.

This fear is growing hourly. The police have ordered everybody to keep indoors but mobs throng the streets.

There is pending another bloody conflict between the soldiers and the strikers. The strikers have been pushing their way toward the palace since midday, meeting resistance at every step. There have been several minor clashes between the two forces, but the mob leaders have kept their men in check, holding their strength until night will be able to lend aid to their cunning.

The men, upon being commanded to silence, become moody and sullen. They are ready for immediate conflict.

As night fell over the city it looked like a great furnace. Campfires are lighted on every corner and troops patrol the streets.

All the gun shops in the city have been closed and the sale of petroleum stopped. The authorities fear and are guarding against destruction of the city by fire.

Moscow is threatened with a similar disturbance to that which is now sweeping over St. Petersburg. A general strike of all Moscow factories has been ordered for Wednesday.

Prostrated by grief the Czar is incapable of personally staying in any way the wave of revolution that is sweeping over the entire empire.

He has been practically isolated himself and has left with his ministers the task of checking the violence that may mean the fall of the dynasty.

Various cities are joining in the great upheaval and there are evidences everywhere of a deep plot against the Czar's government.

Thousands of men are marching to St. Petersburg and armed bandits are eluding the troops and stopping the procession toward the city.

Cold Feet and Indigestion.

Coldness of feet and limbs is almost invariably an evidence of indigestion. The coldness is due not to the weakness of the heart or feebleness of circulation, as is generally supposed, but to the contraction of the small arteries, preventing blood from entering the parts. There is generally an irritation of the abdominal sympathetic nerve-centers which control the circulation of the lower extremities. This difficulty is not to be removed by exercise or by any special application to the limbs, but by removal of the causes of irritation. This may be a protracted stomach or chronic indigestion. Hot and cold foot-baths are valuable. These act not simply on the feet and limbs, but by reflex action affect beneficially the abdominal sympathetic centers which are in a diseased condition. Rubbing of the feet and legs is also an excellent method of overcoming spasm of the blood-vessels, thus preserving the normal circulation. The rubbing should be from the feet toward the body. The surface should be well lubricated with vaseline, to avoid irritation of the skin. Care should also be taken to clothe the limbs very warmly. Often this is necessary even in the summer season.

25c COPY THE AMERICAN MONTHLY REVIEW OF REVIEWS The more Magazines there are, the more Indispensable is The Review of Reviews. "Indispensable," "The one magazine I feel I must take," "The world under a field-glass," "An education in public affairs and current literature,"—these are some of the phrases one hears from noted people who read the Review of Reviews. The more magazines there are, the more necessary is the Review of Reviews, because it brings together the best that is in all the most important monthlies of the world. Such is the food of periodical literature that nowadays people say that the only way to keep up with it is to read the Review of Reviews. Entirely over and above this review section, it has more original matter and illustrations than most magazines, and the most timely and important articles printed in any month. Probably the most useful section of all is Dr. Albert Shaw's illustrated "Progress of the World," where public events and issues are authoritatively and lucidly explained in every issue. Many a subscriber writes, "This department alone is worth more than the price of the magazine." The unique cartoon department, depicting current history in caricature, is another favorite. The Review of Reviews covers five continents, and yet is American, first and foremost. Men in public life, the members of Congress, professional men, and the great captains of industry who must keep "up with the times," intelligent men and women all over America, have decided that it is "indispensable."
