However good you may be you have faults; however dull you may be, you can find out what some of them are; and however slight they may be, you had better make some effort to get rid of them.

An educational meeting will be held at Franklin Mills school, Saturday evening, February 11th.—Question for discussion: 1. Grammar—its importance; how taught. 2. Home study. 3. What constitutes a good school. All are cordially invited. Bertha Golden, teacher.

Kidney complaint kills more people than any other disease.—This is due to the disease being so insidious that it gets a good hold on the system before it is recognized. Foiey's Kidney Cure will prevent the development of fatal disease if taken in time. Sold by all dealers.

George W. Hixon, of Emmaville, who has recently been appointed mercantile appraiser, was in town Monday, getting the necessary books, blanks and instructions for the discharge of his duties. The merchants of the county may expect to see George's smiling countenance toward the last of the month.

The supreme court of South Dakota has handed down a decision which practically outlaws nearly every saloon in the state. The point at issue was the right of a town board to grant a license where there had been no affirmative vote was required every year before a license could be issued, and in this he has been affirmed by the supreme court. This means that there is not a legal saloon in the state except in towns where a license was voted in the election last spring, and it affects most of the towns of the state.

Profanity is one of the worst evils that the world has to contend with. What is more disgusting than a vile-tongued wretch who has no regard whatever for the language he puts out? In the first place it is a disgrace to the user himself and there is nothing in it at all. Swearing does not help anything, it only calls forth the wrath of God upon the soul of the user and hurts him alone, no one else. Some men think it is the sign of a "man" to use large adjectives even in plain conversation, let alone when they become indignant. It is an erroneous thought. The highest type of a man is determined by his pure language as well as body, and in the close relation that he sustains to his fellowman and his Maker. Profanity gains nothing at home, in business, in social life, in politics, in the world. It loses everything on the other hand—self-respect, esteem of men, the confidence and affection of women, power for good, title of gentleman, eternal life. Don't be guilty of such a thing!

The Sipes School Bill.

There seems to be a disposition on the part of some people to try to create a sentiment against the bill introduced by Jno. P. Sipes for the relief of the overburdened school districts in the State. They try to make it appear that every district must levy at least ten mills. The bill does not mean anything of the kind and does not say so. Where a district can pay its salaries on a two mill tax—or a one mill tax, with the aid of the State appropriation as it is now, the new bill does not apply. The object of the bill is to preclude the necessity of going beyond 10 mills instead of 13 mills in order to get the appropriation; and that where 10 mills do not reach, then the State makes good all the shortage. The Harrisburg Patriot says:

While the general effect of the law passed two years ago, making the minimum salary of school teachers throughout the State $35 per month, has been excellent, it appears that great hardship has been wrought in some cases.

"It is said that there are certain districts in the State where the land is so unproductive and so cheap that a 13-mill rate is necessary to raise the school tax alone. In these sections the people are necessarily poor and markets remote. The taxes they are compelled to pay do not come out of any surplus, but are skimped from the actual necessities of life.

"To remedy these conditions, Representative John P. Sipes, of Fulton county, has introduced in the Legislature a bill fixing the maximum of school tax at ten mills in the dollar and providing that in districts where that rate will not produce sufficient revenue to pay teachers $35 per month the State shall make up the deficiency.

"This seems to be a reasonable measure and is said to have the support of prominent men deeply interested in the common schools of the State. If such a bill would meet the constitutional provision prohibiting the passage of local or special laws, it would seem to be a proper measure to enact."

PISOS' CURE FOR

The Little Dreamer.

Written for the News by D. G.

Whilst traveling through the land of myrtle, boy like, was building air castles. I heard a man say he liked boys to build air castles if they put foundations under them. As it is the nature of boys to sleep, I laid me down to sleep. I dreamed I was putting foundations under those air castles; so I got me a wife, a farm and stock, and the necessities of life, and the best of all three five little children which Anna and I appreciate very much. So Anna and I went with a hustle and bustle to get those foundations built. But Anna would interrupt me now and then by saying we ought to go to church, and to this and that funeral—really she was sort o' good to the poor; but I was so busy building foundations I had no time for any thing like that. Anna would say, "We ought to set a better example before our children." I would tell her she could set the example.—Then she would say, "That is not we." Then I would say, "I have not time to run to all these things; and besides, I think I am just as good as one half of the church members. I am honest, attend to my own business, and I—"

But just then I awoke and behold! it was a dream, Oh, how I wished it was real; but like the sluggard—as the door on its hinges turn, so I turned over on my side to think over the dream, and behold! I went to sleep, as boys do. As I slept, I dreamed another dream. The work I had done in my first dream appeared very nice to the eye; but then I heard a small still voice saying, "Mick, Mick, there is no spiritual work in all you have done—your treasures are all earthly and will perish! Is it written that where your treasure is there your heart will be also; 'Know ye not that by your actions you are influencing your wife and your children to lay up their treasures where rust doth corrupt and thieves break through and steal, and take away all they possess—even their life. You say you say to this wife and to your children—the very life of the home—that it is not necessary to repent and believe on the Lord Jesus Christ. Know ye the parable of the rich man—this night thy soul will be required of thee, and it was said of him ye had your good things in this life and Lazarus his evil things.' Then I cried out, "Oh is this death," and I awoke; but did not wish this dream true.

LOCUST GROVE.

We have been having zero weather for several days. The roads have not been in good condition for sleighing or sledding for several days. There is snow enough but it is not well distributed.

The contracts for carrying the mail have been made known and it is found that Howard H. Layton is carrier from Locust Grove to Hancock, and Aaron Layton, from Locust Grove to Crystal Springs.

Little Tilda Hoopengardner has been very ill for several days.

Most people are sitting close to the fire these cold days reading the Fulton County News.

Asa Mellot's house caught fire the other day and before it was discovered a large hole had been burned in the roof. Prompt action extinguished the flames, and saved his home.

Johnnie Martin, who has been working in Hancock, spent a few days at his home in the Cove, recently.

Howard H. Layton has sold his share of the goods and fixtures in the store of Layton & Garland to his partner who will conduct the business at the old stand.

Announcement.

After March 1st, 1905, we will occupy the Main Street store room in the Chambersburg Trust Company Building located on the Public Square. For the better accommodation and convenience of our patrons and the public generally, we deemed it more necessary. Several new departments strictly pertaining to the jewelry business will be added, of which due announcement will be made. If we realize our expectations our new store will be quite handsome, commodious, cheerful and inviting, all of which will be because of a generous public, to whom we are very grateful.

Very respectfully,

Wm. H. Ludwig,
