Good Stories. It happened in a railway station. The baby cried and cried and cried.

"Perhaps he desires his bottle," suggested a fatherly looking old party.

"He has not been raised on a bottle," cuttingly replied the handsome young woman who held the infant.

The baby's shrieks grew terrific. He made unmistakable signs that he wanted his dinner.

"Beg pardon, ma'am," said the elderly party, "but may I suggest that you—er—permit the child to—er—take nourishment?"

"This baby belongs to my sister," replied the young lady, blushing furiously, "and she won't be here for half an hour, I'm holding it for her."

Then all the men in the room went out on the front platform.

"Down in Oregon, I won't say just where, there is a settlement of Scotch Presbyterians, who retain all their old country habits," said a globe trotter the other day.

"Not long ago the minister, while in the midst of his sermon, noticed one of his parishioners peacefully sleeping. The divine suspended his discourse and addressed 'Wullie' in a loud tone, waking him up, and then gave him a severe rebuke.

"Wullie was very angry and after services were concluded went up to the pastor and made an indignant speech, protesting against the humiliation which had been put upon him. He concluded by saying:

"Your ain wife was sleepin' at the time. I saw her before I went to sleep myself."

"The pastor tried to smooth the matter over, and told Wullie that if he should ever see the pastor's wife sleeping in church thereafter, to raise his hand and she should receive the same correction which had been imposed upon Wullie.

"The next Sunday when the sermon had reached about fourthly, Wullie's hand went up. The minister looked over at his family pew, and there, sure enough, his spouse was wrapped in slumber. Mindful of his word, the preacher thus addressed the wife of his bosom:

"Susan! Susan! I dinna marry ye for your fortune, for ye had none. I dinna marry ye for your beauty—the whole congregation can see that; and it ye hae nae grace I've made a sair bargain."

Soon after Congressman Robert G. Cousins' advent at Washington he was invited to a function of very stately formality. Everything was new to him then, even to the evening dress just from the furnisher's.

As he left the hotel to enter a waiting carriage he was spied by Thomas B. Reed, who took him all in at a glance.

"Hello, Bob," drawled the irrepressible Reed; "what ails you?" "I feel like an ass in a lion's skin," said Mr. Cousins.

"You look as though you had a bug in your bonnet."

"Wal," said Mr. Cousins, who also has a peculiarly resonant drawl, "it isn't a Presidential bee."

And for once Mr. Reed was at a loss for a reply.—Harper's Weekly.

A young recruit was sent on sentry duty, and was, of course, now to his duty. A good-natured comrade brought him a sandwich from the canteen, and the recruit was about to eat it when the major appeared. As the of try did not recognize him and did not salute. The major took in the situation and asked: "What's that?" "A sandwich," replied the recruit, "have a bit?" "Do you know who I am?" asked the major. "Don't know you from a crow; perhaps you're the major's coachman."

"No I'm not." "His groom, perhaps?" "No; try again."

"Perhaps the old chap himself?" "Right this time," said the major.

"Oh, good gracious," exclaimed the frightened sentry, "hold the sandwich while I present arms!"

A Dinner Invitation. After a hearty meal a dose of Kodol Dyspepsia Cure will prevent an attack of indigestion.

Kodol is a thorough digestant and a guaranteed cure for indigestion, dyspepsia, gas on the stomach, sour risings, bad breath and all stomach troubles.

N. Watkins, Lesburg, Ky., says: "I can testify to the efficacy of Kodol in the cure of stomach trouble. I was afflicted with stomach trouble for fifteen years and have taken six bottles of your Kodol Dyspepsia Cure, which entirely cured me. The six bottles were worth $1,000 to me."

Kodol Dyspepsia Cure will digest any quantity of all the wholesome food you want to eat while your stomach takes a rest—recuperates and grows strong. This wonderful preparation is justly entitled to all of its many remarkable cures. Sold at Trout's drug store.

To Prevent Appendicitis. If there is any means of preventing the coming of a dreadful disease, even to one person the world should know what that preventive is.

Only those who have been threatened with a surgical operation, or who have actually passed through the experience, can understand the terror aroused by an attack of appendicitis. The best physicians appear to think that surgery is not always necessary in such cases, but sometimes it is, and whether so or not, its prevention is of as great importance as its cure.

In the Nineteenth Century for January, Dr. Joseph Kidd, a prominent physician of London, gives some suggestions worth considering as means of preventing the ravages of this dread disease. First, he inhibits purgatives. All aperient salts, waters or pills which tend to create violent action, and reaction, he would do away.

Some people are always taking physic, and hence they always have to do so, or think they do. They seem to imagine that nature does not understand her own business, and they propose to allow her no chance to prove that she does.

Secondly, he recommends slow eating, with perfect mastication of food. No bolting, no hurrying, no washing down with cold water, or tea, or unchewed lumps. Stop, think. If you have not time to eat a full meal without bolting it, eat a half meal, or none. Better be hungry than deathly sick.

Thirdly, avoid drafts when warm, or fatigued. Avoid them always, but especially when the body is in condition for easy chilling. A chill arrests vital action. Both the bowels and the blood feel its power. If the appendix is slightly inflamed from any cause, a chill will aggravate the conditions and precipitate dangerous conditions. Exposures, excesses and abuse of drugs should be studiously avoided.

Like Finding Money. Finding health is like finding money—so think those who are sick. When you have a cough, cold sore throat, or chest irritation, better act promptly like W. C. Barber, of Sandy Level, Va. He says: "I had a terrible chest trouble, caused by smoke and coal dust on my lungs; but after finding no relief in other remedies, I was cured by Dr. King's New Discovery for consumption, coughs and colds." Greatest sale of any cough or lung medicine in the world. At Trout's drug store; 50c and $1.00; guaranteed. Trial bottle free.

One Minute Cough Cure For Coughs, Colds and Croup. Subscribe for the NEWS.

In this day we are undoubtedly fortunate in that we have had aside a great deal that was objectionable in customs and habits fifty years ago. But have we not also done away with much that was very sweet and lovely? One of the most noticeable, and perhaps most objectionable, changes that has taken place is that the young person of today lacks the respect for age that characterized the young person of half a century ago.

Then the girl who did not show proper reverence for the gray-haired man or woman was considered ill-bred and unmannerly. Now, too often, youth is intolerant of old age. The modern girl smiles lofty superiority at the opinions advanced by her grandmother, or even by her mother. She has no patience with what she terms "old-fashioned notions."

Of course there are exceptions to this rule even in this day of the supremacy of the young person. There are a few girls who have not forgotten the consideration due those who, although they may not belong to the advanced school of ideas and beliefs, still merit love and respect, because they have lived and toiled through the life upon whose threshold our girls are only standing.

The coming woman would do well to add to her other accomplishments that of giving a grateful word to those who have helped her, and who are always willing to give her a "Godspeed" on the journey she is beginning.
