AT THE CAPITOL CITY.

Brief Account of the Inauguration as Seen by a Former Fulton County Boy.

The President, escorted by the militia, left the White House about | brother here the past week 10 a. m., and arrived at the Capitol about 12 o'clock. Then the terfall school, has resigned and best people. Its editorial page oath of office was administered by is at home. Chief Justice Fuller, after which the President delivered his in a hospital at Pittsburg for the to avoid the "yellow" and caters augural address.

The address was delivered a little before 1 p. m. The crowd was so great that we could not hear the President's voice, but having convenience so u uch.

tinued until 5:45 p. m.

The precision with which the soldiers marched, as they passed along in double rows sixteen men deep, was something wonderful, and shows what training in that line will do. The number in the procession was variously estimated from 30,000 to 60,000-soldiers and others. There were, it is thought, over 100,000 spectators.

Pennsylvania avenue was kept clear of spectators by a steel wire one-half inch thick. When the march was ended we went to the Congressional Library. This is really a wonderful place. While most of the rooms were closed, ws saw a great deal of interest in the room that was open. We saw many old State papers in glass cases Many of these papers are yellow with age, but the writing is distinct as ever. Some of the paper had been torn but since Miss Ida and May Sipes were American's Comic Supplement. had been pasted together. One at W. R. Truax's last Sunday.
