May—Really, I don't feel like walking. My feet bother me a good deal. Jack—My! you must be very nervous. May—Nervous? Why? Jack—Otherwise you wouldn't let such little things bother you. "How do you like my new low neck dress?" asked the Chicago society woman as she came into the presence of her husband just before going out for dinner.

"It's all to the good, dear," replied the man of affairs, "but where on earth are you a-gom' to tuck your napkin?" Grandma—And did you get a letter from your husband this morning? Young Wife—No; I expected one, but the carrier tells me the mails have been very irregular for the past week. Grandma—Past week fiddlesticks! They've always been that way. You can't trust one of 'em out of your sight.

"Now, little boy," said the master, "notice the bootblack. He begins at the foot." "And I suppose you are going to say he is a shining example," spoke the boy. "Get out!" And then he went around the corner thoroughly disgusted with object lessons in general.

PRETTY HOME WEDDING.

Miss Cora A. Funk and Mr. Post Mellott the Principals. A very pretty wedding took place at the home of Eld. C. L. Funk on Wednesday evening, May 3, 1905, when his daughter, Miss Cora A., was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Ross Mellott—both of Belfast township.

As the hands of the clock pointed to seven the couple appeared in the parlor, where a large company of friends had collected to witness the pleasant event. They were attended by Miss Minnie Funk, sister of the bride, and Mr. Ira Covatt.

The ceremony was performed by Eld. T. R. Palmer. The bride was beautifully attired in white silk elaborately trimmed with chiffon and ribbon.

After the ceremony and receiving the hearty congratulations of their friends, the company retired to the dining room where the table fairly trembled under the luxuries that had been placed thereon.

After luncheon the company were pleasantly entertained by Mr. Philip Schreiber, violinist, and Mr. L. W. Funk at the piano. About thirty guests were present, all of whom report a time long to be remembered.

Many useful and beautiful presents were received. A GUEST.

IS EARTH LOSING MAGNETISM? Scientist Says It Has Been Falling For Years. A recent investigation by Dr. L. A. Bauer, of the United States coast and Geodetic survey, and in charge of the magnetic investigations of the Carnegie Institution, apparently proves that there is a shrinkage in the earth's magnetism, which has been going on as far back as available data exist. This conclusion Dr. Bauer has reached after examining magnetic values for a period from 1843 to 1885, and data obtained from more elaborate observation made between 1890 and 1900.

There is manifestly a diminution in the intensity of magnetism in certain places which is not compensated for by increases at other points, although the lack of data for the large areas of the earth covered by oceans or unexplored territory does not make such conclusion absolutely certain.

Dr. Bauer believes that there is a system of magnetic or electric force below the earth's surface which is acting to demagnetize the earth and at the same time to cause the north magnetic pole to move to the west and south while there is also a similar system above the earth's surface which also exerts an important effect on the secular variation. From this study it is deduced that the earth's magnetic moment is shrinking at the rate of 1,200th part annually, and that in the course of 1,000 years it will have but one-half its present value.

The original causes for this magnetic action are most difficult to determine, and on that account the new data which will probably be obtained from the proposed magnetic survey of the Pacific and other parts of the world by the Carnegie Institution will be most welcome. In the meantime physicists and astronomers are dealing with the problem, for which as yet no satisfactory explanation has been advanced.

Persons afflicted with Piles should be careful at this season of the year. Hot weather and bad drinking water contribute to the conditions which make piles more painful and dangerous.
