San Diego, Cal. (Special).-That the boilers of the United States gunboat Bennington, which was blown up Friday were known to be weak was stated by surviving members of the crew. The following is the gunbout Benning ton's casualty summary. Total known dead, 60. Rodies recovered, 49. Bodies in ship compartment, 7. Missing (may be drowned), 15.

Severely injured, 50. Probably fatally injured, 6. Probable ultimate total number of dead, St. A number of men are still missing Some of these may be dead, and prob ably a dozen of the injured will die of Fireman E. C. Hopp made the first definite statement regarding the cause of the accident. A short time before the explosion, he says, one of the boilers was found to be leaking badly, and the boilemmaker was sent for to repair the damage. Before the latter came the explicit sion occurred. Hopp saw men all about him killed ourright, and he himself was samued for a moment.

A Honololu dispatch relates that the Benningtou's boilers were leaking when she left that harbor. Repairs were made to others parts of the machinery at Honsinds, but the boilers were not repaired

The men who were injured say it has been the talk of the ship for six months that the boilers were defective, and many of them had feared for a long time that just such an accident would happen. One of the men said that a year ago ast February, while the ship was Magdalena bay, the engineer of semiser New York was sent for to spect the boilers, and he reported that they were in good condition. While the was in San Francisco last year the talk of defective boilers again arose.

but no steps were taken to remedy them. That the naval officers knew the boil ers were not strong is indicated by the fact that before the gunboat departed on the trip to Handlulu the boilers were specially inspected, and the inspector de-rided that the boilers were strong enough to enable the vessel to make the voyage to Hawaii and return to the Mare Island

Out of the confusion that followed the disaster and the work of rescue come thrilling stories of herotent and self-sacrifice. The bravery of the crew was phenomenal. Men who were badly in-jured and scalded worked to rescue were worse off than them-be self-sacrificing efforts on nurses also won high praise. Everyone pitals was put to work.

000 An odd will has been filed for probate by executors of the estate of Deane Miller, who lived at 12 West Fortyfourth street. Half of the residuary estate is to be held in trust, the interest to be paid to the testator's brother, Clark A. Miller, of New Rochelle, and at the end of three years part of all of the principal to be paid over to him on condition that during that time he other brother, inherits the other half of the estate and some personal be-longings, and is one of the executors, with full power to determine what pertion of the conditional bequest shall be paid over. So his parents have been taking him to the roof of their tenement, at 47 Morrell street, to catch what he might of the stray breezes. Last evening Abraham crawled out to the cornices on an exploring expedition and fell five stories to the street below. In his fall he overturned a haby carriage, struck head first and was killed. The infant in the carriage was not hurt.

Some practical joker, maybe—some misguided enthusiast, possibly—tried to scare or blow Edward Wasserman of the Stock Exchange out of a railroad bull movement by sending him a cigar box loaded with black gunpowder, matches and strings to pull. If you pulled 'em, they'd scratch and start things. The package came by mail, and things. The package came by mail, and on the box inside was the name of Thos. W. Lawson, indicating that whoever sent it had gone daft over the frenzied-finance agitation and thought he was doing level finances a good turn. The Postoffice Department is looking the matter up.
