Norfolk, Va. (Special).-Owing te the inability of Engineer D. L. Reig to control his airbrakes, an excursion train from Kinston, N. C., bound to this city, plunged through an open draw over the Western Branch of the Elizabeth River, eight miles from Norfolk, and half a hundred persons, mostly negroes, were drowned. The list of injured, so far as can be ascertained, numbers nearly 100, though most of these are slightly hurt.

Among the victims the only white ones were Edward Joliffe, manager of the ex-cursion, and Edward Forbes, who as-sisted him, both of Greenville, N. C.

The Merritt Wrecking Organization dispatched an expedition to the scent for the purpose of raising the sunken cars, which lie in about 25 feet of wa-ter. Until the cars are raised an accurate estimate of the number of dead impracticable The forward forward coach crushed on the piling of the draw and was splintered to kindling. Those of the helpless pas-sengers in this coach who were not killed before reaching the water were drowned. Those in the rear escaped, bruised and cut by glass and splinters. The car next behind this one was broken in two on the trestle. Three other cars kept to the track. Their occupants escaped.

The train was made up at Kinston, N. C., and had picked up passengers off for a holiday at every crossing. It was due at Norfolk at 1 o'clock, and was running fast to make up for lost time. There was no warning until the fatal crash.

In the door of one of the cars was the corpse of a negro man struck down by a timber. There was not a sign of the great locomotive lying submerged in mud and water in the middle of the channel. Many boats were ferrying the injured to the castern side of the river, where the relief train, with every doctor in Portsmouth who could be reached, was waiting. The baggage car was turned into a temporary hospital, while the busy doctors worked to relieve the injured.

Ernest Wolston, of Greenville, one of the survivors, was in the car that went overboard. He says he felt a shock, and the next moment the water was up to his feet. A mad scramble follow-ed. Men and women, shrieking and fighting to get to the doors, blocked the aisles and clambered over the seats, smashing windows and ventilators in their efforts to escape. Wolston and his brother were imprisoned when the car was smashed, and crowded through a window, through which they rescued many women and little children.

Too much praise cannot be accorded the colored boatmen who went to the rescue of the drowning passengers and saved many lives. The superintendent of the Coast Line rushed aid to the scene of the wreck and took personal charge of the situation.

Superintendent Wooten states that the engineer told him that he didn't see the open draw until he was upon it. fireman leaped before it was reached, and the engineer himself reversed his and the engineer himself reversed his engine and applied the emergency htake and sprang into the water, strik-ing his head on the craft passing through the draw. Fifteen physicians were rush-ed to the scene on a special, which also carried 40 men of the clerical force at Pinners Point, who acted as nurses.
