The Age of Slang.

"The way you New Yorkers address one another is still strange to me, although I have been coming here for years," said a visiting New Englander. 'One would judge that you had no Christian names. I seldom hear one used, except formally. It's 'old man, or 'old fellow,' and even in speaking to your wives it's 'little one,' 'little woman,' or some other silly diminutive. The women don't seem to be much better, with such terms as 'boy,' and 'hubby.' The children are like wise misnamed and seem to understand only such appellations as 'kid' and 'little rascal.' Crops For Overflowed Land. The problem of utilizing lands subject to annual overflow has continued to receive attention. Particular attention has been given the short season annual crops, such as millet, early varieties of corn and sorghum, buckwheat, cowpeas, soy beaus, and rape, for lands that are free from water during mld-summer and the fall season, and all these crops have been grown successfully on land that was covered with water until the latter part of June. The native grasses

which are extensively cut for hay on overflowed and swamp lands are also being studied with a view to making seed of some of the best of them available on the markets, so that farmers who are in used of such grasses may be able to obtain their seed .- Indiana

OLD FASHIONED FARE. Hot Biscuits, Griddle Canes, Pies and Paddings.

The food that made the fathers strong is sometimes unfit for the children under the new conditions that our changing civilization is constantly bringing in. One of Mr. Bryan's neigh bors in the great State of Nebrasks writes:

"I was raised in the South, where hot biscuits, griddle cakes, pies and puddings are eaten at almost every meal, and by the time I located in Nebrasks I found myself a sufferer from ndigestion and its attendant ills-disress and pains after meals, an almost constant headache, dull, heavy sleepi ness by day and sleeplessness at night loss of flesh, impaired memory, etc., etc. "I was rapidly becoming incapacitated for business when a valued friend suggested a change in my diet, the abandonment of heavy, rich stuff and the use of Grape-Nuts food. I followed the good advice and shall always he thankful that I did so.

Whatever may be the experience of others, the beneficial effects of the change were apparent in my case almost immediately. My stomach, which had rejected other food for so long, took to Grape-Nuts most kindly; in a day or two my headache was gone. I began to sleep healthfully and before a week was out the scales showed that my lost weight was coming back. My memory was restored with the renewed vigor that I felt in body and mind. For three years now Grape-Nuts food has kept e in prime condition, and I propose it aged. Overfeeding is also said to enuso it. Rheumatic symptoms are frequentty noticed at the beginning of an outbreak of hog cholera. The muscles and joints may both be involved and the symptoms quite marked. There may be a fever, loss of appetite and a general lack of condition. The lameness will move about and may involve one or more of the legs. Sometimes there is considerable swelling of the hock, the knee or the joints of the If the muscles of the back are fooi. involved, it is arched and very tender on manipulation. Stiffness in the gait is present, especially if the quarters are involved. The pain in the muscies and swollen, inflamed joints is intense, and the hog will sometimes squeal when the parts are handled or joints flexed. While the log is asleep there may be sudden relaxation of muscles On account of the pain and difficulty in walking the bog will lie around the pen most of the time and refuse to go far for his food. Preventive treatment is very important. It means the providing of dry, comfortable quarters and the avoidance of exposure. The straw stack should be avoided as a shelter for hogs. Sick hogs should be given sloppy food. Salleylate of soda can be given in twenty or forty grain doses three times daily. Recovery occurs in from two to three weeks. The disease may become chronic .-Weekly Witness.

Exhausting the Farms.

Exhaustion of soils is a loss of the stored wealth of farms, but it is not necessarily a result of farm management that such contingency may happen on all farms that are worked to their highest productive capacity. It is true that, by an improvident system of farming, farms can be so deteriorated as to be entirely unproductive, but if intelligence in the manage ment of farms is put in exercise they ing it closely around the beehives. should improve under all circum- then remove the tops, or covers, of stances. Such a system, even when the land, is manured, is expensive, for there is not a vast difference in the requirements of corn and wheat. They take somewhat the same substances from the soil, and to follow one with the other deprives the land of certain. the other deprives the land of certain substances, leaving unused plant foods that go partly to waste, as there are some insoluable substances in all soils that are made available during the process of cultivating crops, and where the crops are not of the kind which require such plant foods the land con-sequently loses, by leaching of the soil, much that would be appropriated by some more suitable crop.
