Renews Old Acquaintances.

Mr. J. W. Bowman, of Oneida, Ill., better remembered by his old-time Fulton county friends, as Wes Bowman, in renewing his subscription to the News, writes:

"Although I have been away from Fulton county, my boyhood home, for nearly forty-three years, yet the names I see in your paper each week are quite familiar, and it has seemed like a renewal of all old acquaintances since.

"I began my subscription about four or five years ago. The News is hailed with delight each week even having a preference over my own home papers both daily and each weekly.

"Yours for future prosperity."

FORT LITTLETON.

Late Census Report as Made by the School Children.

As it is so seldom I see our little village represented in your paper, have concluded to write once lest we should be forgotten and Santa Claus miss us at Christmas.

Fort Littleton contains twenty-four houses, two of which are vacant, and has a population of eighty-seven. Our town contains a postoffice, a foundry, a hotel, a grist mill, a blacksmith shop, a furniture store and three general stores, an Odd Fellows Hall, a Methodist Episcopal church, a doctor, a retired minister, an ex-sheriff, a retired blacksmith, ten pensioners, a miller, a trapper, a silversmith, a traveling salesman, a lumber manufacturer, a pump-maker, two plasterers, two manta-makers, two widowers, five widows, and on Thursday evening when one of the speakers at the Farmers' Institute asked the farmers in the house to raise their hands we noticed there was one. Also, we have two carpenters, two school teachers, one teaching in Taylor township—the other close home.

The Farmers' Institute which was held in the M. E. church was much enjoyed by those present. It is the first time for a long time that we have been favored with one of these meetings, and we believe many farmers have not awakened to the fact that they would be amply repaid to leave their work and attend these sessions.

Mrs. Fannie Fraker, who moved from here to Tennessee a short time ago, thinking to regain her health, writes that she is much better, and the change of climate agrees with her.

Baldwin Fraker has gone to Altoona to seek employment.

The remains of Bruce Fields, who died of typhoid fever were brought to the home of his brother Charles of this place, and interred in the family lot in the Fort Littleton cemetery.

The meeting was called to order by the teacher, Wm. Hoover.

The questions were thoroughly discussed by the nine teachers present of which four were from Dublin, four from Taylor and one from the Borough. The institute was greatly enjoyed by songs and recitations rendered by the school which shows the good work of the teacher. The meeting adjourned to meet in three weeks at Wintergreen school.—Elsie Baker, secretary.

Huston's Clothing.

Are you a judge of good clothing? I have seen customers call a garment made of shoddy material good, and condemn a high class article. Few people can judge clothing values. Having served two years in a clothing store in Western Pennsylvania and made a careful study of the business, I feel that I am not boasting when I say I am better prepared to supply your clothing wants than the average merchant.

I do not buy an article unless I feel that it is worth the money asked for it.

Every suit in my store is marked according to its real value. If I sell you a suit for $5 you can go home assured that you have bought the very best garment to be had for the price paid.

During December I want to sell more clothing than ever before and I should do it, for I have a suit for the wee boy in knee pants—for the boy just donning the long pants—for the particular young man who wants stylish serviceable clothing—and for the older man who prefers the conventional black or the quiet gray.

Allen-Made CLOTHES

I am selling more overcoats than I expected to. By selling one Overcoat to a customer who showed it to his friends I sold four more. It is all very easy to explain the reason. A good, perfect fitting garment made in an up-to-date manner always commands attention.

Nobby Overcoats

The best overcoat seems to be held in highest favor, yet many people prefer their coat without the belt.

It will pay you to buy your overcoat of me; in fact, my prices are right on Overalls, Corduroy Coats, and Pants, Duck and Cassimere Coats, and all kinds of heavy Underwear, Hats, and Rubber Goods.
