No One to Take Dog's Place. A traveler was once passing on horseback through a backwoods region where the inhabitants were notoriously shiftless. Arriving at a dilapidated shanty at the noon hour, he inquired what were the prospects for getting dinner.

The head of the family, who had been absorbed in "resting" on a log in front of his dwelling, replied that he "guessed ma'd hev suthin onto the table putty soon.'

Thus encouraged, the traveler dismounted. But to his chagrin, he found the food to be such that he could not force himself to partake of it. Making such excuses as he could for lack of appetite, he happily bethought himself of a kind of nourishment that he might venture to take there. He asked for some milk,

'We don't hev milk any more," drawled the head of the house. "The dog's dead-died week afore last." "The dog!" cried the traveler. "But what has that got to do with it?" "Well," explained the host meditatively, 'the cr. 'ers don't seem ter know 'nough ter c'm up ter be milked theirselves. The dog he used ter go 'n' fetch 'em up."-Youth's Com-

NEW YORK AS SEER DAY by DAY.

NEW YORK CIPY, N. Y.

Women on the upper West Side have begun a war to the death on street noises. First, they are going to begin with the rancous-voiced peddler. Then they are going after the other murder-ers of sleep.

The fight is expected to be taken up by women all over the city. The pion-eers in it are the members of the West End Woman's Republican Association. They met at the Hotel Astor and sounded this slogan:

"Resolved, That we, on behalf of the wives and mothers of New York, do petition the Board of Aldermen of the city that the city ordinances be so chang-ed and amended as to make it an offense punishable by fine and imprisonment for any person to cry out his wares for sale upon the public streets of this city, excepting certain streets which may be set aside, and apon which the hucksters may operate."

Mrs. Irene Goodwin Foye brought suit for divorce from Frank M. Foye, once known as the best-dressed man of Jersey City, and the announcement of the unhappy termination of this romance came with dramatic surroundings, for prior to her marriage she had acted as bridesmaid to Anna Gould when she married Count de Castellane. She is one of the heir of the estate of Frank Goodwin, her father, who died five year ago, leaving several millions, part of which was placed in trust for her and her children.

John Lynn, senior member of the firm of J. Lynn & Co., dry goods merchants at 48 Bond Street, took a nap, and awoke to find that it had cost him about $200, or about $5 per wink. When he opened his eyes a score of firemen were staring down at him in blank astonishment.

Mr. Lynn's private office is on the third floor, front. It is a cozy little room with a big, open fireplace, in which there is a gas log. Tired out with his day's work, the merchant went to this den soon after 5 P. M. for a little rest All of the employees had left the building. Mr. Lynn lit the gas log, and then stretched himself on a couch. The reflection on the windows led some one to believe the believe the store was on fire, and an alarm was sounded. The alarm brought out Chief Croker, four engines, two fire trucks, one water tower and the Fire Patrol. They did damage getting in.

Rather than forego the right to talk when he pleased, ex-Congressman (No Pass) Baker resigned his $4500 position as secretary to the Dock Commissioner, Mr. Baker expressed his poor opinion of Borough President Coler, and was called to account sharply by Dock Com-missioner Bensel. The latter notified Mr. Baker that there must be no more public criticism of city officials by his secretary. This was too much for the loquacious reformer, and with haughty mien he laid a letter of resignation on Mr. Bensel's desk. The letter had much to say about the right of free speech etc., and, as Mr. Bensel laughingly expressed it, read like Patrick Henry.

A novel idea which flashed quickly to the mind of Miss Katharine McCahill, a pretty girl of Larchmont, saved the life of John Burgess, a 10-year-old boy, who broke through the ice while skating. The ice was so thin that no one could

Miss McCahill took off her long Newmarket coat, and, skating as near as she dared to go, threw the garment to the struggling boy, at the same time holding the other end. The fair rescurer pulled the boy out of the water, and then directed girl companions to get a rope. The girls then threw the rope to the boy, who grasped it, and was dragged to a place of safety.

000 Miss Carrie Wormser, daughter of Leopold Wormser, a retired banker, residing at 6 West Seventy-first Street, was awakened by a noise in her room at 3.30 o'clock the other morning. She thought the noise was made by a mouse, she said afterward, but presently found there was a burglar in her room. Miss Wormser pulled the bedelothes over her head and kept quici. The burglar worked leisurely and ransacked the room, extracting from bureau drawers jewel cases containing valuables. After the burglar had left her room, Miss Wormser called for help. The father jumped out of bed, grabbed a revolver and ran to his daughter's room at the same time that his son and the servants were drawn there. Then they went in search of the burglar On the first floor they found raised a such of a hig bay window, not far from the porch. Outside the entered window they found fragments of a glass case that had contained bronze and brass antiques. Apparently it had been dropped by the burglar in his flight. No trace has been found of him or the jewels he took.

IN THE FIELD OF LABOR.

R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Trade Review says:

"Spring buying in wholesale lines is becoming more active, money is easier and collections are generally good. The dry goods situation is exceptional, with current business of good proportions. and some houses report that sales for January of this year were as large as for the first two months of 1903.

"Clothing manufacturers are well supplied with orders, and cancellations are few; collections are good and the higher price of garments has not apparently lessened the demand. The advance in boots and shoes has apparently stimulated buying, sales for the week being very satisfactory, and collections are up to the standard. The season in hats caps has not yet reached its fullest activity, though orders in hand are of fair proportions and the outlook appears Sales of leaf tobacco are light, owing to the disposition of manufacturers to hold back orders in the hope of lower prices. Prices of hunber have advanced to per cent., with a strong demand for the better grades, and collections prompt The furniture outlook is not so good collections being unsatisfactory and orders light, though prices are tending upward. Dealers in machinery and supplies are fairly busy and collections are quite good,"

COSTUME THAT CAUSED STIR. Carelessness and Color-Blindness

Equally to Blame. There are still many who will remember the late Theodore D. Weld as one of the old-time, active abolitionists. He was afflicted with colorblindness, and often related the following incident as one of the unpleasant happenings connected therewith. Among other preparations for an extended lecture tour he had ordered two pairs of trousers of his tailor, one pair blue and the other green. It was a rush order, and the garments were finished off after dark and sent to his residence the same night.

His first lecture was delivered at an afternoon meeting, for which he donned a pair of the new trousers. When he made his appearance on the platform an amused smile appeared on nearly every face in the audience, and a murmur of suppressed laughter was plainly audible.

He looked, so far as he could, to see if there was anything wrong with his personal appearance, and, being satisfied that all was well, proceeded calmly with his address. But he was enlightened before the evening meeting, his hoatess kindly telling him that one leg of his trousers was blue and the other green.

He immediately brought the other pair for her inspection, and they were found to be the same. In rushing the garments together by lamplight the parts had got mixed.-Boston Herald.
