Hon. M. C. Butler, Ex-U. S. Sena-tor from South Carolina for two terms, in a letter from Washington, D. C., writer to the Peruna Medicine

"I can recommend Peruna for dyspepsia and stomach trouble, I have been using your medicine for a short period and I feel very much relieved, it is ind-cil a wonderful medicine, besides a good tonic."

 CATARRH of the stomach is the correct name for most cases of dyspepsia. In order to cure catarrh of the stomach the atarrh must be cradicated.
Only an internal catarrh ramedy, such as Peruna, is available.

Peruna exactly meets the indications.

Little Girl's Obstinute Case of Eczema-Mother Says: "Cutleura Remedies a Household Standby."

"Last year, after having my little gir: treated by a very prominent physician for an obstinate case of eczema, I resorted to the Cuticura Remedies, and was so well pleased with the almost instantaneous reief afforded that we discarded the physi s prescription and relied entirely on the Cuticura Scap, Cuticura Ointment and Cuticura Pills. When we commenced with the Cuticura Remedies her feet and limbs were covered with running sores. In about six weeks we had her completely well, and there has been no recurrence of the trouble. We find that the Cuticurn Remedies are a valuable household standby, living as we do twelve miles from a twenty-five dollars to come up on the mountain. The White House at Washington, which has been the "King's Palace" of the American People since it was first occupied by President Madison in 1800, has recently undergone a thorough course of remodelling, renovation Attachment. The snake bird is readily tamed when taken young. The Rev. John Bachman, who reared some of these ough course of remodelling, renovation and repair. Every American citizen is owner of an undivided eighty or eighty-five millionth part of the White House, as well as of the other Public Buildings and Monuments in the Capitol City. An item in the renovation of the remodeled White House was repainting. Every visitor in Washington knows why the White House is so called—because is literally a "white house." The exterior paint must therebirds, said: "My best pet was tame from the beginning of its captivity, and followed me about the house, the yard and garden, until I thought it quite troublesome, in consequence of its peculiar attachment to me. It is a fearless bird, keeping at bay the hens and turkeys in the yard, and never sparing any dog that chanced house." The exterior paint must there-fore be white. Now while the pure white surfaces and simple lines of the White House, set in the midst of green to pass by it, dealing blows right and left with its sharp-pointed bill, and occasionally posting itself in the trough where they are fed, to prevent lawns and beautiful trees, produce a very satisfying effect of dignified them from taking a morsel of food simplicity, white paint from a practical point of view, is about the most unsatisfactory kind of paint that could have been selected by the original designers. First because any white paint is ensity discolared by smoke and days and second because ordinary until he has tantalized them sufficiently, then he leaves them to share whatever he does not relish. "It was not until my bird was fully fledged that I found it willing or anxious to go to the water, and then dust, and, second, because ordinary white paint liself gradually turns gray whenever it saw me going toward the or brownish yellow from exposure. But white the White House is, and white it must remain or it would no white it hast remain of it would no longer be the "White House." So the renovators, making the best of a discouraging situation, sought for the best kind of white paint procurable. The average citizen if asked to guess what kind of paint they finally decided on would exclude a second control of the longer than the the longer duck, and no sooner was it in sight of its favorite element than it imwould probably answer- white lead and oil," but he would guess wrongly. The paint relected as the best obtainable, was ready-mixed paint, such as can be bought in any well-furnished village store, such as is used by more than half of the eighty or eighty-five million or mers of the White House on the house or the bars of the fence, their own homes. That one brand of mixed paint was used instead of another is a mere accidental detail-there are fifty or a hundred brands on the market and might have deen se-lected in other circumstances, and, in fact, a different brand was -sed in painting the Capitol.

Every property owner, therefore, who paints his house with a high grade leady-mixed paint is following the example set by the Government Authorities at Washington, who used ready-mixed paint, because they could find nothing else as good.

SKETCH OF THE LIFE OF LYDIA E. PINKHAM

And a True Story of How the Vegetable Compound Had Its Birth and How the "Panic of '73" Caused it to be Offered for Public Sale in Drug Stores.

In 1843 she married Isaac Pinkham.

In those good old fashioned days it was common for mothers to make their own home medicines from roots and herbs, nature's own remediescalling in a physician only in specially urgent cases. By tradition and ex-perience many of them gained a won-derful knowledge of the curative prop-erties of the various roots and herbs.

Mrs. Pinkham took a great interest in the study of roots and herbs, their characteristics and power over disease. She maintained that just as nature so bountifully provides in the harvest-fields and orchards vegetable foods of all kinds; so, if we but take the pains to find them, in the roots and herbs of the field there are remedies expressly designed to cure the various ills and weaknesses of the body, and it was her pleasure to search these out. and prepare simple and effective medi-cines for her own family and friends. Chief of these was a rare combina-

The Pinkhama bad no money, and little credit. Their first laboratory was the kitchen, where roots and herbs were steeped on the stove, gradually filling a gross of bottles. Then came the question of selling it, for always before they had given it away freely. They hired a job printer to run off some pamphieta setting forth the merits of the medicine, now called Lydia E., Pinkham's cine, now called Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and these were distributed by the Pinkham sons in Boston, New York, and Brooklyn.

The wonderful curative properties of the medicine were to a great extent, self-advertising, for whoever used it recommended it to others, and the demand gradually increased.

In 1877, by combined efforts the family had saved enough money to commence newspaper advertising and from that time the growth and success of the enterprise were assured, until tohold words everywhere, and many tons of roots and herbs are used annually in its manufacture.

In 1843 she married Isaac Pinkham.

a builder and real estate operator, and their early married life was marked by prosperity and happiness. They had four children, three sons and a go, but not till she had provided means for continuing her work as effectively as she could have done it herself.

During her long and eventful experience she was ever methodical in her work and she was always careful to preserve a record of every case that came to her attention. The case of every sick woman who applied to her for advice-and there were thousands-received careful study, and the details, includ-ing symptoms, treatment and results were recorded for future reference, and to-day these records, together with hundreds of thousands made since are available to sick women the world over, and represent a vast collabora-tion of information regarding the treatment of woman's ills, which for authenticity and accuracy can hardly be equaled in any library in the world

With Lydia E. Pinkham worked her daughter-in-law, the present Mrs. Pinkham. She was carefully instructed in all her hard-won knowledge, and for years she assisted her in her vast correspondence.
