Americans Are Paint Users It has been remarked that the Amer-It has been remarked that the American people consume more paint, both in the aggregate and per capita, than any other people in the world. In a recently published article on the subject it was figured that our yearly consumption is over 160,000,000 gallons of paints of all kinds, of which over one-half is used in the paintings of

The reason for this great consump ion is twofold: a large proportion of our buildings. especially in small owns and rural districts, are contowns and that is structed of wood, and we, as a people, are given to neatuess and cleanliness. For, take it all in all, there is nothing

For, take it all in all, there is nothing so cleanly or so sanitary as paint.

Travel where we will throughout the country, everywhere we find the neat, cheerful painted dwelling, proclaiming at once the prosperity and the self-respect of our population.

Fifty years ago this was not so; painted dwellings, while common in the larger cities and towns, were the avecation in the rural districts; beexception in the rural districts; beortion of those buildings were sorary makeshifts, and, on the hand, because paint was then a luxury, expensive and difficult to obtain in the ut-of-the-way places, and requiring pecial knowledge and much preparation to fit it for use.

The introduction of ready mixed or arepared paints, about 1860, changed the entire aspect of affairs. As the Jack-of-all-trades told the Walking Delegate in one of Octave Thanet's stories "Any one can slather paint." The insurmountable difficulty with predecessors was to get the paint ready for "slathering." That the country was ready for paint in a convenient popular form is shown by the imme-diate success of the industry and its phenomenal growth in fifty years from nothing to 60.000,000 gallons—the estinated output for 1900.

Some pretty severe things have been written about and said against this class of paints, especially by painters and manufacturers of certain kinds of paste paints. Doub! css in many in-stances these strict ires have been justified and some fearfully and wonder-fully constructed mixtures have in the past been worked off on the guileless consumer in the shape of prepared paint. But such products have had their short day and quickly disappeared, and the too cuterprising man-ufacturers that produced them have come to grief in the bankruptcy courts or hi e learne! by costly ex-perience that bonesty is the best pol-icy and Lave reformed their ways.

The chief exceptions to this . ule are some mail order houses who sell direct to the country trade, at a very low price-frequently below the wholesale price of linseed oil. The buyer of such goods, ake the bayer of a "gold brick, has only himself to blame if he fin. his purchase worthless With gold selling at any bank or mint at a fixed price owners of gold do not sell it at a discount; and with linseed oil quoted everywhere at fifty to seventy cents a gallon, manufacturers do not sell oure linseed oil paint at thirty or forty cents a gailon.

The composition of prepared paints differs because paint experts have not yet agreed as to the best pigmens and because the Gally results of tests on a large scale are constantly improving the formulas of manufacturers; but all have come to the conclusion that the essentials of good paint are pure linseed oil, fine grinting and therough incorporation, and in these particulars all the products of reputable manufactur rs correspond; all first class prepared paints are thoroughly mixed and ground and the liq-uid base is almost exclusively pure linseed oil, the necessary volatile "thinners" and Japan dryers.

The painter's opposition to such products is based largely on self-interest. He want to mix the paint himself and to be paid for doing it; and to a certain class of painters it is no rec-ommendation for a paint to say that it will last five or ten years. The longer a paint lasts the longer he will have to wait for the job of repainting. The to wait for the job of repainting. The latter consideration has no weight with the consumer, and the former is a Jalse idea of economy. Hand labor can never be as cheap or as efficient as machine work, and every time the painter mixes paint, did he but know it, he is losing money, because he can buy a better paint than he can mix at less than it costs him to mix it.

Prepared paints have won, not only Prepared paints have won, not only on their actual merits, but on their convenience and economy. They are comparatively cheap, and they are incomparably handy. But when all is said, the experienced painter is the proper person to apply even a ready mixed paint. He knows better than any one else the "when" and "how" and the difference between painting and "slathering" is much greater than it appears to a novice. Every one to his trade, and after all painting is the painter's trade and not the household-

CAMPHOR GROWING SCARCE World's Supply is Steadily Decreasing

According to an official of the Department of Commerce and Labor, the world's supply of camphor is steadily decreasing each year. The greater part comes from Japan and its colony, Formosa. Of late years the demand has begun to exceed the supply, and the question has arisen how the latter can be maintained.

One of the reasons why camphor is becoming scarcer and dearer is said to be that it is extensively used in the manufacture of celluloid. At present camphor is mainly produced from the so-called camphor tree, which attains a gigantie size in Japan, one specimen recently measured being 115 feet tall. and having a trunk over fourteen and a half feet in diameter. The tree is common in China, but as yet the production of camphor in that country is very limited. The camphor tree is a member of the laurel family, and is related in genus to the cinnumon tree. It is said that camphor can be produced from other species of trees, but this statement has never been verified. In Borneo a most aromatic campier is obtained from the natural deposits of gum on the trunks of a species of tree indigenous to that island and Sumatra. Borneo camphor is rare and very costly.

Doctors at home, Minot, St. Paul and Minneapolis all agreed ours was practically a hopeless case of diabetes, so they informed Mrs. Hall at all times. To us the real condition was not known. On returning from Europe, having improved so much, I was let into their secrets. We now realize that we were nearer passing to "where no one returns" than we care to be until the final dissolution. As to the future, we have the promise of specialists from both sides of the Atlantic that if I will refrain from office work, excitement and worry, at all times diet-and that means to use no starchy flour, liquor. sugar, or sweetened articles-we may live for years, or even many years; but fatal is it to he who violates the above rules. We are down on a diet list that, if supplied to the ordinary mortal, would be frowned at, but we are glad to use it, and also glad we are alive. To have so many call at our office congratulating on our return, apparently improved in health, means much to us, and highly appreciated .-Mohall (N. D.) News.

THE PASSING OF MATRIMONY. It is woman's refusal to marry, and woman's restiveness in marriage—for the immense majority of our divorces are asked for by the wife-which so alarm us today. For both these facts there is the same explanation; the character of our women is changing faster than the character of matrimony. The women of the past were as children compared with The women of women of today. Some few great names there always were to show what was possible to the sex; but the majority were ignorant, weak, and absolutely iso-lated. Today in America our women are as well educated as men in many cases, often even more so; and then wide reading and general acquaintance with facts of life, past and present, together with rapidly increasing organization among them, gives them a character and courage previously unknown. This change is not, as some thinkers claim, a morbid demand for maculine power and privilege. It has nothing to do with sex. It is the development of the humanness in woman.—Charlotte Per-kins Gilman, in Harper's Bazar.

INTERESTING LETTER

WRITTEN BYA NOTABLE WOMAN

Mrs. Sarah Kellogg of Denver, Color Bearer of the Woman's Relief Corps, Bends Thanks to Mrs. Pinkbam.

by Mrs. Kellogg, of 1628 Lincoln Ave., De n ver, Col., to Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass.: Dear Mrs. Pinkham. Lynn, Mass.: Dear Mrs. Pinkham. To five years I was troubled with a tumor, which kept growing, causing me intense agony and great mental depression. I was unable to attend to my house work, and life became a burden to me. I was confined for days to my bed, lost my appetite, my courage and all hope.

"I could not bear to think of an operation, and in my distress I tried every remedy which I thought would be of any use to me, and reading of the value of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to sick women decided to give it a trial. I felt so discouraged that I had little hope of recovery, and when I began to feel better, after the second week, thought it only meant temporary relief: but to my great surprise I found that I kept gaining, while the tumor lessened in size.

"The Compound continued to build up my general health and the tumor seemed to be absorbed, until, in seven months, the tumor was entirely gone and I a well woman. I am so thankful for my recovery that I ask you to publish my letter in newspapers, so other women may know of the wonderful curative powers of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."

When women are troubled with irreg-nlar or painful periods, weakness, dis-placement or ulceration of the female organs, that bearing-down feeling, in-flammation, backache, flatulence, gen-eral debility, indigestion or nervous prostration, they should remember prostration, they should remember there is one tried and true remedy.
