FRANKLIN MILLS.

Charles Linchhart, an evangelistic worker, has pitched his tent at Bellgrove just over the Pennsylvania line in Allegheny county, Mo., and is drawing large crowds, and singers are flocking under his standard. He has with him a trained singer—all hailing from Ohio. Singing is an important factor in all evangelistic work it brings out the better feelings and soothes a savage beast.

He is the same man that held meetings in the lower end of Fulton county last winter and in portions of Bedford county, which proved very remunerative and the old adage was verified that the laborer is worthy of his hire. Preachers do not, as a rule, always have the most pleasant life. So much dissension and fault finding exceptions to their teachings notes in their eyes, and particular, though not least, remunerative wages for their work.

As the years go along and progress and advancement is noticeable along all lines religious sentiment and morality keeps its even pace with scientific arguments, and out broken sins are at a discount.

Public sentiment pours down upon the individual whose moral bearing and behavior is not good. Public opinion is a great moulder when once it sets its powerful influence against an evil, or a practice it will most assuredly be relegated to soar in the onward march of a higher civilization.

HONEST SHOES

More shoes sold in April and May than in four months last year. Scarcely a day passes that we are not asked for a pair of shoes like a pair bought last season. This fully demonstrates that we are selling honest shoes at honest prices.

The fact that we bought our spring shoes before the heavy advance in shoes has placed us in position to sell you shoes at old prices which means a big saving to you. Remember a dollar buys shoes worth a dollar here.

We will be pleased to show you anything in our line and will leave it to your good judgment to decide whether it pays to trade here.
