

LETTER OF ACCEPTANCE.

to the people of such matters as the election of United States Senators, the option, the extraordinary exercise of the police power of the State and other questions of similar general character, would resolve doubts which unsettle the judgment of legislators, and remove important issues from the sphere of pernicious influences.

The triumph of our cause will save Pennsylvania from ever again suffering the humiliation of the taunt that men know to be guilty of robbing the public cannot be punished.

In accepting the standard you have committed to me, I dedicate to the cause of the people what ever talent and energy I possess.

Thirty or more years of my life I have spent in battling for civil rights and for the dignity and honor of the State. If I can bequeath a heritage of duty faithfully performed, if I can strengthen the faith of the rising generation in the honesty and trustworthiness of public servants, if I can help to demonstrate that government by the people is not possible, if I can leave to the State the record of a clean administration, characterized by high ambition to safeguard popular rights and interests, my life will be crowned as I wish it to be crowned.

It will give me pleasure to meet you and the committees of your conventions. I suggest Tuesday the 28th day of August, and the city of Pittsburg, as a time and place that may be convenient for the meeting which you propose; when the issues before the people of Pennsylvania and our opportunities, duties and responsibilities in regard thereto may be discussed.

With great respect and appreciation, I am

Sincerely yours
LEWIS EMERY, JR.

LATEST NOVEL IS

OF NEW JERSEY LIFE.

"Doc. Gordon," by Mary E. Wilkins, to be Published Next Sunday.

The best novel for the reader is the novel that most nearly portrays the people with whom the reader comes in contact. David Harum pictured a homely character and his friends in such a way as to make every reader of the book find in his own community a counterpart of the great philosopher and horse trader.

Mary E. Wilkins Freeman, who has for some years been known as the author who drew true life portraits of the characters of the New England village, has found a new field for her work. She has written a novel, the characters for which she has found in southern New Jersey. Whether the people of that section will enjoy her picture is yet to be seen, but they will surely enjoy the story itself—one of the greatest mystery romances ever written.

The title of the novel is "Doc. Gordon," and the first instalment will be printed in the Sunday North American next Sunday, August 5th. It will be completed during the month of August in the special fiction supplement of that paper before it is allowed to appear in book form.

The demand for the Sunday North American for August is already enormous, and readers who would not miss reading all of the Wilkins novel should make themselves safe by ordering the paper for the full month.

A GUARANTEED CURE FOR PILES.
