much speed for him, Mr. Hess broke into the woods. Mrs. Hess returned to the house with Mr. Shaw and his daughter, and with the constable they soon found part of the contents of the missing telescope. They then went to the home of Mr. Hess's son Charles, about a quarter of a mile distant, and searched his house. Here they found some more of the clothing. Mrs. Charles Hess told the searching party that the clothing had been brought over the evening before by Mrs. James Hess to be washed. While the search was being made, Mrs. James Hess said, "that cape came with the other articles," and the party took the cape along.

On the Monday following the occurrences just mentioned, the constable deputized Levi Hockensmith and Howard Hann, and the three men went to the near vicinity of James Hess's house before daylight, and secreted themselves to await results. Soon after daylight, they saw James approach the house cautiously with his coat on his arm. When he reached the porch, he said to his wife, "Is breakfast ready?" "Yes," she replied, "this long time." James then went into the house and his wife remained on the porch. It was now time for the officers to act, and they closed in on the house. As soon as they were discovered by Mrs. Hess, she cried out, "They're here, Jim," and he at once rushed out from the house. When he reached the gate, he was confronted by Mr. Hockensmith. He then turned quickly aside, and leaped over the fence, only to land squarely into the muscular arms of Howard Hann. In a moment, he was secure in the custody of the officers, who took him to the office of Squire Daniels.

Here he was held until the arrival of the District Attorney, when a new warrant was issued, charging him with having received stolen goods and having stolen goods in his possession. In default of bail, he was committed to jail for trial. The cape to which reference has already been made, was identified as being the property of Mrs. Spade, whereupon a second information was made, and on Tuesday morning, both cases were tried at the same time. After the lawyers were through with it, and the Judge had given his charge, the jury retired, and after a deliberation of twenty minutes, returned with a verdict of guilty on both charges.

TUESDAY AFTERNOON. In case of Mrs. Belle Henry, charged with assault and battery, on oath of Jacob Marlin, grand jury reported "not a true bill," but Jacob Marlin to pay the costs. Commonwealth vs. Jacob Marlin charged with assault and battery on oath of Mrs. Belle Henry, grand jury found "not a true bill," but Belle Henry to pay the costs.

COM. vs. James Hess, charge larceny of caps, property of Mrs. Frank Spade, defendant plead guilty.

Most of the afternoon was spent in the trial of Miller S. Jones, proprietor of the Eagle Hotel, Fort Littleton, charged with selling intoxicating liquor to minors. The evidence showed that Mr. Jones had sold beer to Jesse Clark, 18 years of age. The defense admitted that the beer had been sold to Mr. Clark, but that Mr. Jones had made inquiry and was told that Clark "was all right."

The jury went out, but did not agree upon a verdict until late in the night. This verdict (guilty) was handed to the court on Wednesday morning.

In re Com. vs. Miller S. Jones, charged with shooting John E. Husler the defendant entered into recognizance for his appearance at January court.

WEDNESDAY MORNING.

After receiving the verdict of the jury in the liquor case, the case of the Com. vs. John A. Mellott, charged with assault on oath of George C. Mellott, was heard by the court. This was a trouble arising between the two brothers concerning the sale of the farm of their father to George. The prosecutor having failed to make his case to the satisfaction of the court, and the defendant having been guilty of unbecoming conduct, both on the occasion of the alleged assault and in the court, the costs were imposed on the defendant.

The Ayr township Road Flow case was taken up. As this is the fourth attempt to settle this matter in these courts, it is so well known in this county as not to need any explanation here.

Miller S. Jones, who, by the verdict returned this morning, was found guilty of selling liquor to minors, was sentenced by the court to an imprisonment in the county jail for a period of thirty days, to pay a fine of $200.00, and the costs of prosecution, and have his license revoked.

Can you win? You realize that to win in anything these days, requires strength, with mind and body in tune. A man or woman with disordered digestive organs is not in shape for a day's work or a day's play. How can they expect to win? Kodol for Dyspepsia contains the digestive juices of a healthy stomach and will put your stomach in shape to perform its important function of supplying the body and brain with strength building blood. Digests what you eat, relieves indigestion, dyspepsia, sour stomach, palpitation of the heart and constipation. Sold at Trout's drug store.

One to a New Field. Rev. A. G. Wolf, who had resided in this place during the past six years, during which time he was pastor of the Lutheran church in this place, the one at Big Cove Tannery, and one in Little Cove, left with his family yesterday morning for West Fairview, Pa., where he has accepted a call to the pastorate of the church at that place.

During the six years that Rev. Wolf and family have resided in this place, they have won to themselves lasting friendships, and it is with regret, that we lose them as residents of our town. We trust that the change may be beneficial to Mrs. Wolf, whose health has been poor for some time.
