THE FATE OF AN EASTER BRIDE.

Miss Lillie Davis Stops Work on Her Trousseau to Take a Walk With Her Former Sweetheart-He Declares He Loaned Her His Pistol and That She Committed Suicide.

Bristol, Tenn. (Special). - Ack Hale, 21 years of age, now languishes in a Bristol (Va.) jall and must face the charge of having murdered his former sweetheart, Misa Lillie Davis. $125. a pretty 18-year-old girl. The tragedy occurred in East Hill Cemetery. 36 feet from the Virginia state line. in Tennessee. The police give no credence whatever to Halo's story that he loaned the girl his revolver, at her request, so that she might commit suicide.

The girl was to have been married Sunday, March 31, to J. M. Mc-Roberts, of Georgel, Va. She had been the sweetheart of Ack Hale for two years until some months before the killing, when they separated and she accepted McRoberts. Hale is said to have become very much angered at the time, but apparently his wrath cooled, and, presumably on account of the love affair, he came to the city Tuesday from his home, at Johnson City, as he said, on his way to Colorado. He left Bristol, but at Pulaski.Va., abandoned his proposed trip and returned to Bristol.

He went to the home of the girl's mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Davis, on Hadden Street, late Wednesday evenlng, and took Lillie for a walk. The Davis home adjoins the cemetery They were seen to enter the cemetery about dusk, but, as the day had been very hot and the moon was shining brightly, persons who saw them suspected nothing, presuming that they were going to all down on the benches in the cemetery and rest. Fifteen minutes later a shot rang out clear and Hale ran out of the ceme-tery. He passed the home of the girl's mother and went 200 yards further to another home, where he reported that the girl had committed suicide with his pistol. Miss Davis was found lying on the grass in a private square with a mortal bullet wound above her heart, from which was gushing her life's blood. She regained consciousness, talked incoherently, and frequently cried out: "Oh, Ack, how could you" You are smothering me to death Please quit, for God's sake." She died an hour and a half inter, and Hale was arrested on a warrant charging him with the murder. Miss Davis had gone driving with

Hale in the afternoon before her She returned to her home to assist her mother and sister in working on her wedding trousseau. Hale came and asked her to take a walk. She did so, telling her mother that she would return in time to work an hour to aid in finishing up the clothes that night. Witnesses testified that they saw Hale hold her and pour whiskey down her throat. Be-alde her after the shooting was reported was found an empty whisky Ten feet distant was found the pistol which ended her life. The examination of the girl's body by physicians resulted in the disclosure that she had been criminally as-The theory is that Hale assaulted the girl and while she lay on the grass half unconscious he fired the shot that sent her into

It is also recalled that Miss Davis was the strongest witness against his (Hale's) brother, Roy Hale, who killed her brother, Irby Davis, at Johnson City, Tenn., several months or of the former president's sevago, and for which he is shortly to entieth birthday,

While the Davises are not wealthy people, they are highly thought of, and are closely related to some of the richest people in this section. Hale is in Virginia and refuses to cross the state line. He was locked up in Virginia after the shooting because there was a doubt about juris-diction. It developed later that the killing was on Tennessee soil.

very ill. Inherited Uncle's Wealth.

Mr. Smith, whose fortune was es-timated at $60,000,000 at the time of his death, inherited most of it from his uncle. George Smith, a pioneer of the West, at one time partner of Alexander Mitchell, and heavily interested in Chicago real estate. Mr. Smith came into this fortune in 1899, when he was an inconspicuous but successful broker in Wall Street, then possessed of a fortune of several million dollars. He was well known to his business associates, but had played no role in society.

George Smith was a native of Aberdeen, Scotland, and came as a young man to the Northwest, but for many years before his death he had lived in the retirement of a London club. He had come to the United States in 1833 and brought with him sufficient capital to invest in Chicago and Milwaukee real estate. He sold his holdings three years later at great profit and returned to Scotland, expecting to pass the remainder of his life there. The panic of 1837 compelled him, however, to return and safeguard his interests, and this time he brought Alexander Mitchell with him. They opened a bank and founded the Wisconsin Marine and Fire Insurance Company.

A clause in the charter of this company permitted them to accept deposits and issue certificates. So good was the credit of the bank in the community that these certificates
