Women Who Wear Well.

It is astonishing how great a change a few years of married life often make in the appearance and disposition of many women. The freshness, the charm, the brilliance vanish like the bloom from a peach which is rudely handled. The matron is only a dim shadow, a faint echo of the charming maiden. There are two reasons for this change, ignorance and neglect. Few young women appreciate the shock to the system through the change which comes with marriage and motherhood. Many neglect to deal with the unpleasant pelvic drains and weaknesses which too often come with marringe and motherhood, not understanding that this secret drain is robbing the cheek of its freshness and the form of its fairness. As surely as the general health suffers when there is development of the health of the delicate womants organs, so surely what these organs are stabilished in health the face and off at once witness to the fact in real wed coments. Nearly a million women have found health and ss in the use of Dr. Pierce's Faasppin vorite Prescription. It makes weak women strong and sick women well. A New Bit or Spanish War History

By WILLIAM E. CURTIS.

You will remember perhaps that Great Britain is responsible for our etention of the Philippine Islands. Had it not been for a message Queen Victoria sent to President McKinley on Sunday afternoon Germany would have been bearing that "white man's burden" instead of the United States, and it is entirely probable that Great Britain, whose subjects have more than $200,000,000 invested here, will sooner or later send President Roosevelt a similar message about Cuba. Lord Pauncefote made two visits to the White House during the Mc-Kinley administration to deliver personal messages from Queen Victoria. The first was on the afternoon of the Sunday following McKinley's proclamation calling upon Spain to get out of Cuba. When that good and wise woman read his proclamation, she cabled Lord Pauncefote to tell the President that the British Govern ment would sustain him in every offort he made to carry out the policy foreshadowed by his announcement. No message was ever more welcome, because, just at that time, there were grave doubts whether France, Austria and Germany would permit us to interfere in Spanish colonial affairs. With Great Britain behind us, we knew that there would be no interference, and when the people of Spain heard that news they stoned the British legation in Madrid. And the Spaniards declare to this day that they would have whipped the United States if England had not interfered After the war closed the German Government entered into negotiations with Spain for the purchase of all her and possessions in the Pacific. The price was fixed at $23,000,000, and the contract was practically closed when the facts became known to the British Government. Queen Victoria sent a second message to President McKinley, and, by a singular coincidence, it also came on a Sunday, Lord Pauncefote went to the White House on Sunday afternoon to deliver it.

to protect us.

This time he said that he was instructed by her sovereign majesty to advise the President that the British Government would sincerely deplore any disposition of the Philippine archipelago that removed it from the jurisdiction of the United States. He told the President about the negotiations between Spain and Germany, and explained the reasons why Great Britain and other European powers could not permit the Kalser to obtain such a solid foothold in the

Mr. McKinley immediately cabled the facts and appropriate instructions to the American peace commissioners at Paris, and that is the reason the United States paid $20,-000,000 for an archipelago in the Pacific that it did not want, and cannot get rid of. That "white man's burden" was placed on our shoulders by Great Britain.

"Only A Souse."

Mrs. Auchenheimer of 29 West One Hundred and Nineteenth Street thought she heard a burglar trying to open the front door at 4 A. M. With a broom she tapped on the window of 27, next door, where dwell Dr. Jackes and his son Joseph. Then she peeked from behind a curtain whispered "Burglars!"

Dr. Jackes and Joseph understood. Straightway the latter got his revolver and sent lead through the air.

Windows went up and from house to house there went the word "Burg-Inrs. Half a dozen persons telephoned to police headquarters and 15 policemen were soon running on the double quick. The entire block was surrounded. One of the guardians of the peace tripped over a prostrate form on the floor of the vestibule and he dragged it out on the stoop. "Are you dead?" asked a police-

Business at first hands is more active on forward contracts than for quick delivery, and there is less offering of premiums for spot goods. ### Dutch Women's Headdress.

Women often possessed two headdresses, one for Sundays and the other for week-days. In cold or wet weather a hood was worn stiffened with paper and having two long ribrons, provided with golden hooks, to protect it against the wind.

Above a low silk or satin bodice was worn an elaborately folded kerchief of fine lawn or cambric, which allowed only a little of the throat to be seen, and which was fastened by a brooch or ribbon.

The bodice itself was usually a tight-fitting laced one of white or blue satin. It is said that women of the lower classes frequently only took the trouble of unlacing this cuirasslike garment once a week. The tighter the bodice the more ele gant its wearer was considered, and, as a great number of petticoats were de rigueur, a small waist appeared. less than it actually was .-Girl's Realm.
