A few days ago at Riddlesburg a horse was tied to the neck of a buggy which was standing on the banks of a stream of water. For a cold or a cough take Kennedy's Laxative Cough Syrup. It is better than any other cough remedy because its laxative principle assures a healthy copious action of the bowels, and at the same time it heals irritation of the throat, strengthens the bronchial tubes and allays inflammation of the mucous membrane. Contains Honey and Tar, pleasant to take. Children like it. Conforms to the National Pure Food and Drug Law. Sold by Trout's drug store.

Eulogy on Prof. Barton.

As his means permitted, Brother Barton was in many respects an uncommon man; he had those sterling characteristics—integrity, energy and faithful ness. He never faltered in the proper performance of his duty; his public services were often harassing and difficult, but he always maintained his high reputation for right and justice without and no regard to consequences. He died as he lived, without stain or stigma having smirched his good name. His home and family relations were happy and most affectionate. To all those who were in close bonds of friendship with Brother Barton, his death will be keenly felt. As members of the whole fraternity of FREEMASONS, we mourn his loss and unite in the sad thought that a good, useful, and worthy Christian man and Brother has been too early taken from our midst.

Prof. Barton's services as County Superintendent of Public Instruction cannot be too highly appreciated. His first, as well as the two years of his second term, was marked by a dignified and faithful devotion to its best interests; no sacrifice on his part was too great in the strict and intelligent performance of the duties devolving upon the occupant of that high and responsible position; he was candid, outspoken, faithful, and loyal in every act; he used not lengthy phrases nor flowery rhetoric; his decisions were prompt, just and mindful of the rights and privileges of those affected. His administration of the affairs of his office reflected honor and credit upon himself as a Christian gentleman, as well as upon the fraternal organizations to which he was affiliated.

It is difficult for me to speak under such trying circumstances, when emotion causes the heart to rise and the voice to tremble. Such is my condition as I stand by the casket of my dear dear Friend and Brother to day. We have rejoiced together in the sun shine, and sympathized with each other in the shadow. Standing in the presence of Almighty God, to whom the spirit of our departed Brother has returned, I feel that we should reflect upon the solemnity of Death; and as we contemplate the immortality of the soul, rise to a higher conception of the immensity of God's infinite love in giving man Eternal Life—for the soul never dies, but lives on through the countless ages we call Eternity. "Life, how short; eternity, how long."

How often, after the closing of our Lodge (while many had gone to their homes), the few who lingered to converse, noticed the janitor turning out the lights; then were we, too, reminded that it was time for us to take our departure. Looking down time's vista in this Great Fraternity, I see it narrowing into the year 1896, at which time I was brought into true Masonic Light. Since that time, I have seen Masonic Lights turned out along life's roadside one by one. There were great lights, and lesser lights, but all lights brightening happy homes.

Brother Barton was a dignified gentleman of sterling integrity; "his word was his bond." He was approachable and companionable, but with that reserve which increased rather than diminished his gentlemanly deportment. He moved through life with apparently little friction, commanding the respect and confidence of all who knew him. The sincerity and honesty of his convictions, mingled with a dignity of presence and graciousness of manner commanded the respect and esteem of those who were blessed with his friendship. The home life of our dear Brother Barton was one of ideal devotion to his beloved wife, and two darling boys—George and Charles, whose comforts and interests were ever upon his loving heart.

This dispensation of Providence should teach us the need of coming into close touch with our Brethren in Freemasonry, and draw the bands of fraternal love more firmly during our earthly Pilgrimage, rather than save our flowers to scatter on their graves. "We should strive to practice out of the Lodge those principles of religion and morality we are taught within it; then we will be better enabled to display the beauties of holiness to the honor of God's great name. By serving Him aright, all our doings will tend to His glory and the salvation of our souls."

It was my privilege, and it was most truly a privilege, to be in the inner circle of true and unadulterated friendship with Brother Barton. A little more than a year ago Brother Barton was one of the first to welcome me to the work to which I had been appointed in your community. He assured me at that time of his hearty cooperation in the work of our Divine Workshipful Master. In every good work, looking towards the temporal and spiritual advancement of the church he loved, he gladly and

A SIGNIFICANT PRAYER.

"May the Lord help you make Bucklen's Arnica Salve known to all," writes J. G. Jenkins, of Chapel Hill, N. C. "It quickly took the pain out of a felon for me and cured it in a wonderfully short time." Best on earth for sores, burns and wounds. 25c. at Trout's drug store.

voluntarily lent his assistance. Up to the very last day and the last meal, enjoyed through his characteristic hospitality, he proved to be the true and faithful friend and helper we anticipated he would be at our first meeting. It was not the friendship of a day. His was not the love of a moment; but his was an ever growing friendship, and an ever endearing love. His was not the hand shake of a false Brother, nor that of a hypocritical friend. His was the warm-hearted greeting of sincerity and truth.

Teachers of Fulton County, you have lost a Friend most true. No more shall we visit your schools, as was his duty, and oft expressed pleasure. May his wise counsels and loving admonitions be cherished and ever be followed to your profit. He loved the School Room.

Honored members of the Faculty of the Normal School of my native county, you are here to pay your solemn respects to one who formerly, belonged to your noble and intelligent body. One of whom you might speak at length far more satisfactorily than can I. You, too, knew Prof. Barton to love him.

Nor could I forget that noble body, the triple linked Fraternity to which I am affiliated, and within whose sacred ranks Brother Barton so prominently figured. Even when his physical strength was high exhausted he still, "to help the boys out" (as he would say), faithfully and very profitably instructed new candidates in the principles of friendship, love and truth.

True in his home life, faithful in his public duties, sincere in his lodge affiliations, honest in business, devoted and benevolent in the Methodist Episcopal church, and yet loving all churches; humble and meek in his faith in God and in His son Jesus Christ. Thus would we epitomize the life of this good man, this courteous gentleman, this most beneficent Christian character.

And now, my dear Sister Barton, you whose grief and sorrow is so great because of the severance of this earthly tie, so sacred and holy, look up unto Him who hath promised to be a husband to the widow and a father to the fatherless. You have professed His name; you have learned to believe His Word, and so now leap upon Him whose arm is strong, whose power is Almighty, who has assured us through His servant, that though we be cast down, yet shall we be lifted up.
