NEW YORK DAY BY DAY.

Some of the Things Done Daily in the Metropolis.

John Bell, accused of having killen Dr. Charles Wilmot Townsend at New Brighton, Staten Island, on Jannary 26, was found guilty of murder in the first degree Thursday af-ternoon after the jury had been out two hours and fifty-five minutes. Judge Abbott at once sentenced the man to death and set the time of execution for the first Monday in July. Bell took the verdict and sentence coolly, but his stepmother fainted in the court and his other reintives were much affected. last day of the trial was dramatic Bell was the only one placed on the stand by the defense. He simply tried to establish an alabi by his own testimony. Nearly every one own testimony. Nearly every one who attended the four-day trial wondered why his counsel'had not tried to show that Bell was insone. After the District Attorney had finished his summing up Bell jumped to his feet and made an appeal to the jury in These proceedings have been similar to re-hearsals on the vaudeville stage. You have seen that I have never turned white; that was because of my innocence,"

It was at this point Bell began to talk on wireless telegraphy.

After the verdict Bell asked to be permitted to shake hands with the jurors, but he was led away.

COMMERCIAL COLUMN

Weekly Review of Trade and Latest Market Reports.

New York.—R: G. Dun & Co.'a Weekly Review of Trade says; Seasonable merchandise goes into distribution slowly, which causes accumulation of spring and summer dry goods and millinery in the hands of dealers and retards collections, while making operations for fall and winter much more conservative. At some points the last week of May brought proncunced improvement in commercial activity, but the holiday retarded recovery and progress is slow. Manufacturing plants are producing at full capacity in most industries, orders covering output far into the future, and more New England cotton mill employes have received advanced wages, making the change effect about $5,000 hands. Another evidence of progress in cotton spinning was the increase in quarterly dividends at Fall River to 2.21 per cent., against 1.32 last year, and 2.14 per cent. in 1802, the most prosperous of recent years.

Increased difficulty in securing deliveries is noted in the cotton goods industry, most mills being sold so far ahead that buyers are appre prevents the high level of prices from having the natural effect of producing conservatism.

Seeing the Improvements.

By HAYDEN CARRUTH.

Folks have more time to make it pleasant for one another in small towns than they have in cities. If the court requires any expert evidence on this point, a subpoena may be issued for Mr. S-, of Cleveland.

Says he: "I made a little visit recently to the town where I was born. Every body there knows me, and they all call me 'Charlie,' and slap me on the back, and that sort of thing. I got there in the evening, and the first thing next morning dropped around to Judge Pingtree's office. He got up from his desk and paralyzed my hand with his grasp; then without asking me to sit down, he said: 'I'm sorry, Charlie, but I've got a lot of mail to look over, and must attend to it; but Jim Doolittle is in the next room-you remember Jim-and you just walk out with him and see the Improvements on the west side of town.' So he called Jim in, and we started out. "Jim was a good walker, and he took me to the farthest edge of town. I failed to see many improvements. though there was no lack of signs of decay; but I enjoyed the walk, which must have been over two miles in length, out and back. When we entered the office the Judge was deep in a confidential talk with a client, but after a moment he looked up and said, 'Oh, hello! back, are you?' Then he towered his voice and continued: 'Sorry, old boy, but deucedly important case has just come in, and I can't give you a second now. But it won't make any difference, because you want to see the improvements on the east side of town, of course, and Joe Easy-you remember Joe-was just saying that he'd like to take you over.' At this Joe came up, and we started out.

"The east side of town seemed to show less improvement than the west; but again, on account of old associations, I enjoyed the walk, though it was somewhat longer than the other, and I was beginning to feel a bit tired when we got back. We met the telegraph operator at the office door, and found the Judge intently rending a dispatch. 'Hello!' he cried again. 'Well, here it goes once more-important telegram that needs immediate attention. after that I will be free; and in the meantime you go up and see the improvements on the north side. Here's Tom Dodgetoil-you remember Tom -and he'll go with you. You know, I'm interested in the north side. Sec you later!' came cheerfully as I went off with Tom. On this trip I walked three miles, and saw the shabblest part of town which had yet presented itself. I was beginning to be suspicious, but the Judge had seemed so innocent, and the others had worked so hard to interest me, that I couldn't doubt their sincerity.

"But I was genuinely tired when we got back to the office. This time the Judge met me with radiant face. Well, I'm free at last,' he exclaimed. Visions of an easy-chair and a familfar chat came to me: but he went on: 'Now you just come with me and see the improvements in our best part of town-the south side; you won't know it now.' He took my arm and we started out. On the threshold an excited man met us, seized the Judge by the lapel and led him into a remote corner of his office. After a moment the Judge approached me, his face the picture of woe. man's liberty and perhaps his life depend on my giving him half an hour now. It's most unfortunate-but no matter,' he added, hurriedly, as he saw me advancing toward a chair; 'here's Uncle Asa Pokeabout-you remember Uncle Asa-he'll just take you down and show you the south side as well as I could do it myself -or better.' Uncle Asa grasped my hand with a cackling laugh, and then hopped away along the sidewalk with his cane, calling on me to come. The Judge rushed back to his client There was nothing to do but to follow the old inhabitant, though I was beginning to feel morally certain that the whole thing was a put-up job. 1 was more than ever convinced of it when I saw that the entire south side had tumbled into doddering decay-You might better have looked in Pompeli for improvements. But Uncle Asa toddled resolutely onward, talking to me of incidents which happened before I was born, as if of course I remembered all about them, and I could only follow. Finally we came to the last house, and I paused, expecting he would turn back. Not he; he begged of me that I would go a half-mile out into the country to see Hen Podsworthy's new barn. . I was desperate, and went. The structure was about fifteen by twenty unpainted, and standing on blocks, like a stove in a railroad waiting room. After I had duly gushed over it we started back; and although Uncle Ass appeared to have been born some time in the century before last, he steamed along at the rate of about five knots an hour, while I struggled behind. I was tired enough to drop when we got back to the office, and somewhat excited, too. That scoundrel of a Judge met me with the blandest amile I ever saw. 'I hope you enjoyed seeing the advances that the old south side has made,' he said. Then he went on: 'Now here is Bill Shirker-you remember Bill-I want you to go with Bill up to the northwest side to see the-" 'You dastardly wreich!' I shout ed. 'I won't do it! You've shot me about this time as if I was a croquet ball as much as you are going to!' There was a roar of laughter which shook the windows, and the whole male population of the place crowdel in from an adjoining room, while the Judge collapsed in his chair, and Uncle Asa choked until the doctor had to pound him on the back. The upshot of it was that it cost me four dollars and eighty-five cents to buy cider and cigars for that crowd; but I guess I enjoyed it as much as any of them when I recovered my equilibrium. After all, it's in these small towns that they enjoy life."-Harper's Magazine.

sent me here to return $10 of your money. I have kept it for 40 years." Mr. Smith then explained that one day in 1867 in W. A. Bodine's store at Morristown, he saw Mr. Morrison drop a ten-dollar bill from a roll which he had received from the merchant. Smith picked up the money and on this occasion he came to reall out of order, I turn it .- Indianapolis News,

The Newest Lemon Joke.

Here is the latest! You put out our hand, palm upward and with fingers and thumb extended and say to your friend as you do the trick yourself before his eyes: "Can you "Can you do this? Bend your fingers over slowly and together, like this, until the finger tips touch the palm of your hand without bending your thumb." And he says: "Why, sure, I guess I can do that," and he does it at the first trial triumphantly, and then you say to him: "Well, I guess can squeeze a lemon." York Sun.

Don't Use "Practically

Pure" White Lead There is no other pigment that is "practically" White Lead-no other paint that has the properties of Pure White Lead Paint.

Pure White Lead, good paint that it is, cannot carry adulterants without having its efficiency impaired. To get Pure White Lead durability, see to it that every keg bears the Dutch Boy trade mark—a guarantee that the con-tents are absolutely Pure White Lead made by the Old Dutch Process.
