Beauty as Collateral

BY ALICE HUBBARD.

For the beautiful women whose only bank balance is beauty we must have compassion. Their attractive-ness is their sole legal tender, and they often cultivate it at the expense of the development of brain and

The fabled Syrens of old were represented as women who lured men upon the rocks of death. And these women spent their time, when no sail was in sight, in efforts to enhance their beauty, to cultivate charms and in planning campaigns.

This legend is founded on a very stern fact-women of power who do no useful work, who are made exempt from honest effort, either by choice or circumstance, must and will find some way to give expression to their energy, and they use the means at hand. They use the only ones they have been taught to use, or, in a degree, allowed to become familiar with. So, instead of helping to build industries, to bless the world, to help guide the ship of state, many beautiful women are composing syren songs and playing at life on the fatal rocks, singing their Lorelei where the waves toss at their feet the bones of their victimed dead. Beauty as a business is a bad habit. More than a century ago Mary Wollstonecraft lifted up her voice in a cry of agony for such sacrifice of women and men to cease, and she herself died a martyr to this cause. The remedy she pointed out. And the only remedy known was to make women economically independent, to give them work, side by side with men, make them equal burden-bearers with them-politically, physically, morally, spiritually free. It was the voice of one heard in the wilderness and her "Rights of Women" shows a world yet untried, but one of which we are dreaming dreams. Our own Susan B. Anthony died with the goal of her life's efforts still in the distance, and the cry upon her lips was the regret that she must go out from this life without seeing the political freedom of her sex. "Let no woman die without having done her part for the enfranchisement of women." were her dving words.

Across the sea Mrs. Cobden-Sanderson, true daughter of a great man who gave his life to freedom, with a score of other women, has recently spent four weeks in jail. And the crime charged against these women was that they had asked to have recorded their wishes on certain subjects in which they were personally interested, matters that affected them individually. They simply made the request as men do, and for the same reason—they asked for franchise rights.

And these are noble women who sing no syren songs, whose hearts and lives are consecrated to the cause of the development of the highest and best in humanity. A principal of a large normal school was once speaking of a young and very promising girl. We were adding to her work responsibility upon responsibility because she had power, and we knew it needed expression. The principal agreed with us that the girl was extraordinary, but, he said, "It is of no use; she will never accomplish anything, for she is endowered with the fatal gift of beauty.

But beauty, like ancestry, becomes fatal only when it is considered of value by itself.

Nothing 's of worth over night. Our efforts, our energies, our love, our hope, our joy, must be new every morning and fresh every evening or we die. To-morrow never comes.

Beauty of face and form are accidents for which we have no credit in the bank of immortality. No check of ours will be honored except the voucher of ability and capability for useful effort, of right intent-the beauty of soul and strength of mind which we ourselves, in large degree, can create and control.-From the Damage by Automobiles. Germany has strict laws relative to the numbers displayed by automobiles in order to identify the machines in case they injure anybody. According to a recent consular report from Madgeburg, the German courts deal very sternly with the owners of machines which hurt anybody on the road or damage other people's property. These offenders have been compelled repeatedly to provide for the widows of their victims and also for the support of orphans until the latter are old enough to support themselves. In consequence of the heavy penalties 'attached to such offenses a strange practice has sprung up in Germany. The insurance companies have undertaken not to give the owner of an automobile compensation for injuries to himself, but to bear pecuniary loss in case he is obliged to pay damages to his victims. Those who take out the proper policy pay premiums of $15 or $20 annually, and then the insurance companies agree to assume responsibility up to $10,000, if they are ever convicted.

One would imagine that a man would feel so easy in his mind when thus insured that he would become more reckitss than ever on the road, but it is asserted that serious accidents are less numerous in Germany ### than in France or England. Polishing the Pole.

A handsome young woman all in white was among the first of the cabin passengers who came down the gangplank of the Cunarder Caronia when she docked Wednesday morning. On the pler the young woman looked up and down and very apparently did not see the person she expected. He should have been there, because he had written her a letter that he would be, and she had never been in America before and was feeling very lonesome and much disappointed.

She was, but is not now, Miss Elsie B. Vaughan-Morris, and she was awaiting for John Thornwaite Rigg, an English engineer. They had been engaged nearly three years in England. The engineer wanted to marry her before he came to America, about a year ago, and got a paying job in Toronto. At this point in the young woman's story the engineer himself came running down the pier. The young woman jumped up from the trunk and she and the engineer held each other up for half a minute or so in the fondest embrace ever seen on Dock Department property. Rigg apologized for not being at the foot of the gangplank at the "psyscological moment." He had got wrong information about the time the ship would dock and had supposed that he would have to

Park Payrolls Padded.

A shake-up in the City Park Board is likely to occur in a few days as the result of an investigation ordered by Mayor McClellan. The Mayor received from the Commis-sioners of Accounts the preliminary report of an investigation of labor conditions of the park department in the Borough of the Bronx. The report shows that on November 26 last and on December 3 following 79 skilled laborers for street paving work in the parks of that borough were appointed at wages ranging from $3.84 to $4.96 a day. The inspectors sent out by the Commis-sioners of Accounts found that many of these men did not live at the address given on the payrolls. Some of the men they were unable to find, and a number of others were found to be engaged in private business or private employment, working only one or two days a month for the city in order to keep their names on the payroll.

Market Reports.

New York (Special).-R. G. Dun Co.'s weekly Review of Trade

Adverse weather conditions has made the season another week late, both as to distribution of spring merchandise and progress of the crops. Transactions during the few days of seasonable weather thus far indicate that settled warm weather will bring out much business, but so much time has been lost that few merchants anticipate a normal volume in the aggregate and large stocks will be car-ried over or sacrificed at bargain sales. Wholesale trade in fall and winter goods is brisk, large dupli-cate purchases because of the cold spring having depleted stocks in the hands of retailers. Manufacturing plants operate at full capacity in most industries, cot-ion mills making romarkably favor-able returns in view of the weather and cost of raw materials. Dis-patches from leading cities indicate hat the business situation is much more satisfactory at points in the West than in the East or South, es-pecially favorable conditions prevailing at Seattle and Portland. Few serious labor struggles are now in progress and more advances in New England mill wages will extend the benefits to 200,000 hands.
