EASY TO GET A COLLEGE EDUCATION
Many Lads and Lassies Pay For Their Education By Summer Work.
College Careers Started With Little Capital.

Modern Youth May Be Educated at Leading Colleges For a Ridiculously Low Cost—One College President Offers a Helping Hand.
It is difficult to bring home to the average young man or woman of today, in a way that can be easily understood, the fact that a college education is within the easy grasp of any one who has a mind to lit himself or herself to a position where leadership among one's fellows may be rightfully acquired and consistently held.
Thousands of earnest young people yearn for the elevating and ennobling influence and associations which higher education brings, but in the path of many, the dimly defined dragon of ENORMOUS EXPENSE roars its monstrous bulk, at the first glimpse of and many other brilliant men have spent a century and a quarter in up-building.

President Reed said the other day that he would like to have the privilege of a five-minute talk with every young man or woman who felt the yearning for something higher and better, and that he felt that in that short space of time with each, he could scare away enough false obstacles and supply enough zeal for the growth of ambition to fill the colleges of the country.
Dickinson College, which will in 1908 celebrate the 125th anniversary of her foundation, and which ranks as eleven in point of age among the colleges of the country, furnishes remarkable evidence to show that a college education is almost invariably followed by distinction of some kind. The alumni statistics of the college show that out of a total number of alumni, aggregating 4782, the graduates were 2466 and the non-graduate alumni, 2322.
The annual records of the college show that the high hopes cherished by her illustrious founders have been realized many times over, as the following statistics showing the lines of activity into which her alumni have gone, would indicate:
PROFESSIONAL LIFE—Law, 968; ministry, 845; medicine, 361.
EDUCATORS—College presidents, 41; college professors, 126; superin-

Dear Sir: Every job Devoe is done with less gallons than ever before with any other paint.
S. J. Field, Iodanola, Pa, says: "All houses here are painted Devoe. The hot air is too trying for other paints. One coat Devoe is better than two of any other paint, so far as we know."
Less gallons, less cost.
Yours truly

One of the most remarkable stories we have read recently is "The Little Fear," which is in the September number of "The Ladies' World" (New York). It is a nature story, but so true to nature that it entirely escapes identical condemnation. You should read it. There are several other good stories in this number, and a lot of other matter most interesting to ladies, including the preparation of the school wardrobe, school luncheons, and general hygiene. The magazine is always a marvel at Fifty Cents a Year.

Occasional headache, belching, bad taste in the mouth, lack of appetite and slight nervousness are symptoms of indigestion which, when allowed to go uncorrected, will develop into a case of dyspepsia that will take a long time to get rid of. Don't neglect your stomach. At the first indication of trouble take something that will help it along in its work of digesting the food you eat. Kodol for Indigestion and Dyspepsia will do this. Kodol will make your food do you good and will enable you to enjoy what you eat. Sold by Trout's drug store.

A SENSITIVE DANE.
Hans Christian Andersen's Struggle For Recognition by Denmark.
Hans Christian Andersen was as loving and simple as a child and as sensitive. The first part of his life was blighted by the fact that his native country had failed to recognize him. "How strange," he wrote, "that all my books are flying over the world and that at home I am so little appreciated. There I am still only a poor schoolboy, always in the lowest form. If I am wronged, Denmark, it is thy shame. Still, let me forgive as I wish to be forgiven."

John Peterman, the hornet nest weather prophet of Butler, Pa., predicts a mild winter, from the fact that hornets are building their nests high in the air. The hornets, in some way, get an inkling of the brand of weather to be dealt out during the following winter, and if the signs are for severe cold they build on the ground where the snow drifts cover them and protect the larvae from the cold. If they select a high place for their nest, they prophesy an open winter. This same prognosticator further says: "The corn husks, too, tell of a mild winter, the husks are thin and few."

Misses Carrie and Elsie Greathead and Miss Emma Sloan have gone to Johnstown, Pa., where they will all be engaged in teaching in the public schools of that city during the current school year.

Don't Get Rusty.
I am not going to work myself to death for anybody.

We have heard this foolish expression so very often from peevish, self-pitying men and women that it has come to lose the full force of its contemptible weakness and utter silliness.
Work has killed some men undoubtedly. But the men who killed themselves by work, are not the men who complained that they were doing too much. These suicides had no complaint enough in the time, and with the strength allotted to them.

They get their pull from their push. One poind more pressure on the vast boiler put an immense locomotive into motion. A little extra exertion on the part of an insignificant clerk in a big corporation may lead to gigantic results. Continued and conscientious effort never fails to attract notice.

Don't be afraid of hurting yourself with work. You can't do it. But you can and will hurt yourself by allowing yourself to rust.

It is the lightweight in the world's activity who is heard to whine that he is not going to work his head off for anybody. If he would decrease his pressure, he wouldn't have to do a lick of work for anybody—ave himself. The man who is afraid to do a little more than he was hired to do, is the man who never rises higher than his job. With jealous eyes he sees young, energetic fellows step over him, and asks where they get their pull.

GEORGE EDWARD REED.

which, many a brave heart should finally slink backward to the easy-going and unprofitable ways of ignorance, while a few daring souls advance to the observation hill of INVESTIGATION to find the horrible monster to be nothing more than a stuffed buffalo, a sham, a stage-property, anything but an impassable obstacle, and smilingly proceed to the vantage points which a college education offers.

Investigation of the cost of a modern college education and the means by which the wherewithal might be secured, will open up a boundless field of possibilities for anyone who is fastidiously to state his case fully, and apply to the proper sources for information. Concrete and contrasted illustrations, if pointed enough, bring many people to see the force of arguments of which they would otherwise be heedless, and we believe we state the truth, when we say that the total annual cost of a latter-day college education, including all items, such as board, room rent, light, heat, tuition, text books, laundry, athletics and incidental expenses, is not more in amount than the average cost of the four rubber tires on an automobile. Even in these days of high prices it is hard for a person to realize that all expense at college for a year can be paid with a sum of money ranging from $225 to $275; but the fact remains that there are many ancient and honorable institutions of learning, with facilities of unquestioned distinction, that offer the choice of a classical or scientific education, with all that goes with them, for this paltry amount of money.

The college of the least have thousands upon thousands of students who make enough money at employment during the vacation months to see themselves comfortably through the scholastic term, or who, with the assistance furnished by a good friend, or in many cases the college itself, finance their collegiate career successfully.

There are few colleges in the country that give such earnest and enthusiastic help and advice to prospective students as the ancient college of Dickinson, located at Carlisle, Pennsylvania. The president of Dickinson College, George Edward Reed, is a self-made man of just the type to enthrone the youth without many resources, who feels that he would like to rise above the level of ignorance. President Reed is one of the few modern college presidents who attends in person to every inquiry made for information concerning the wonderful institution which he
