Weekly Review of Trade and Lates! Market Reports

R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade says:

Weather conditions have exercised much influence this week on retail trade in seasonable merchandise and dealings at the leading commodity exchanges. Low temperature checked the demand for light wearing apparel in a market that was already backward and the state of the same of the backward, and heavy rains started reports of damage to the crops, yet there was no evidence of serious injury. Manufacturing conditions show ittle change, much machinery being idle, and new business coming forward slowly. In some industries there is still a disposition to wait for lower prices, although restricted demand during the many disposition. demand during the past six months must render replenishment of stocks almost imperative.

Confidence grows in the textile markets as stocks in the hands of dealers become depressed, and it is known that the time must be near for replenishment. Most interest is naturally shown in quarters where there has been the least response in recent months, but orders are still conservative, although increasing in number and the recovery in raw ma-terfal supplies an element of strength among makers of cotton goods.

Bradstreet's says: Weather, trade and industrial conditions are little changed from last week and farm work, retail and jobbusiness and the movement of crops to market has been restricted by havy rains, low tempera-tures or bad roads. The only notable exceptions to this are found in the Pacific Coast, and at a few Southwestern centers,
