Marco Bozzaris was cheering his band: "Strike, till the last armed foe expires! Strike, for your altars and your fires! Strike, till the green graves of your sires!" "Strike, till the green graves of your sires!" "Out!" yelled the rooters.

A few minutes later, as the published score attests, Marco himself, after making a hit that cleared the bases and won the game, died gloriously at the home plate.—Chicago Tribune.

A Whistler Story.

Artist William M. Chase tells a really new one on Jimmy Whistler. It was at a dinner party, after all the guests had been seated, when Chase gently drew Whistler's attention to the fact that he had forgotten his tie. "Forgotten?" shrieked Whistler. "Nothing of the kind. Why should I spoil the effect of a good linen collar with excellent ties by sticking on a foolish little piece of flimsy lawn?" And the dinner proceeded.—Boston Herald.

THE FIRST TASTE

Learned to Drink Coffee When a Baby

If parents realized the fact that coffee contains a drug—caffeine—which is especially harmful to children, they would doubtless hesitate before giving the babies coffee to drink.

"When I was a child in my mother's arms and first began to nibble things at the table, mother used to give me sips of coffee. As my parents used coffee exclusively at meals I never knew there was anything to drink but coffee and water.

"And so I contracted the coffee habit early. I remember when quite young, the continual use of coffee so affected my parents that they tried roasting wheat and barley, then ground it in the coffee-mill, as a substitute for coffee.

"But it did not taste right and then went back to coffee again. That was long before Postum was ever heard of. I continued to use coffee until I was 27, and when I got into office work, I began to have nervous spells. Especially after breakfast I was so nervous I could scarcely attend to my correspondence.

"At night, after having coffee for supper, I could hardly sleep, and on rising in the morning would feel weak and nervous.

"A friend persuaded me to try Postum. My wife and I did not like it at first, but later when boiled good and strong it was fine. Now we would not give up Postum for the best coffee we ever tasted.

"I can now get good sleep, am free from nervousness and headaches. I recommend Postum to all coffee drinkers.

TO PLAY WAR ON GIGANTIC SCALE

Regulars and Militia Take Part in Big Game This Summer—A Minimum of Ceremony and No Merely Spectacular Exhibitions—Details Provide for Progressive Work and Long Practice Marches.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 15.—Preparations have been completed by the War Department for joint maneuvers during the coming summer of all branches of the regular service and many State militia organizations, for which Congress has appropriated $1,000,000. Instruction camps will be established and maneuvers held for one month at each place, as follows:

Pine Plains, N. Y., June 15 to July 15.

Chickamauga Park, Ga., July.

Leon Springs, Texas, July.

American Lake, Wash., August.

Fort D. A. Russell, Wyo., August.

Fort Benjamin Harrison, Ind., September.

Fort Riley, Kan., September.

Atascadero Ranch, Cal., October.

The army maneuvers, which are to be on a scale never before attempted in the United States, are to be carried out by Major-General Frederick D. Grant with the regulars of the Department of the East and a large force of militia. The operations, says General Grant, will include more men and cover wider territory than any previous, and, as far as can be, they will offer an approximation of war.

The plan of campaign includes two separate series of operations, the first on the coast, the second inland. A series of coast defense maneuvers will be carried on simultaneously at the various fortifications from Baltimore to Boston. After four weeks of this coast defense practice, the commander believes, the troops, both regulars and national guards, will be thoroughly seasoned to powder, while the officers will have gained great familiarity with the particular styles of maneuvers involved, and the chiefs in command will have plenty of valuable records as to the performances of the troops and the efficiency of the individual officers.

A month or more later will come the inland maneuvers. They will be gin with an experiment in concentration. Troops of the department from many points, some as far as Washington, D. C., will be marched so as to arrive at Pine Plains, near Waterbury, N. Y., within three hours of each other. Large evolutions will then be carried out on much the same scale as in modern war.

In introducing his plans General Grant began with a plain word or two on preparation for war.

"We are the most pugnacious nation on earth," he said, "and perhaps the least prepared for real trouble. He does not believe that 'In God We Trust' was a good enough motto to excuse lack of military preparation. He went on to say:

"I am preparing seacoast maneuvers for this summer to show how our big guns could knock out any foreign fleet that might come poking around with evil intentions."

The absence of the battleship squadron in the Pacific has led, it is understood, to the attaching of much more importance in Washington this year to the maneuvers centering about the coast defenses of the Atlantic seaboard.

Orders issued governing details of the maneuvers prescribe a "minimum of formal ceremonies and a total absence of merely spectacular exhibitions." Practice marches have been ordered, in which infantry will cover 200 miles and cavalry 250 miles. The exercises will be carried out in a progressive manner, beginning with small bodies of troops and ending with the entire command. These exercises will comprise periods of attack and defense; periods of advance; rear and flank guards, and control work; periods of outposts and control work, to be followed by general maneuvers. It is understood that the State troops will not be required to do all of the work prescribed for the regular organizations.

HOPES BY CHILD CULTURE TO AID HUMAN RACE

Dr. Landone, Pupil of Herbert Spencer, Will Work Among Mortals as Burbank Does With Plants—Starts $100,000 School on the Pacific Coast.

Los Angeles, Cal.—Dr. Leon Elbert Landone, who has purchased a $100,000 residence property in Hollywood, where he will establish a school in which to accomplish in child culture what Luther Burbank has done in horticulture, has met with the disapproval of many of his admirers, but ignores them. He is about to work out theories regarding child culture that he hopes and intends will result in the material benefit of the human race. To a World correspondent:

"There are four steps in evolutionary development which are true in both the human and plant life. Burbank recognizes the gradations in his plant work, as did Stanford in the breeding of fine horse stock. Even so, I will select ten to twelve children from various parts of the United States for each of the first two or three years, and in these children I will seek to develop the best there is in them.

"The basis of my system of education for these children will be in the reconstruction of structure. The common way of changing a child who has developed some harmful habit or tendency is to quiet that particular region of nervous activity. Then it is easy enough for the child to pick up its old habits, although it may have reformed temporarily.

"With my system the entire structure is changed. The different structure entirely, and the child in order to get back into its old habits must not merely 'backslide,' but build back. Do you catch the essential difference between the two?

"I will have four departments in my school. The first will be in art, with special attention to music and sculpture; the second, therapeutic curing of incurable diseases, like spinal troubles, particularly; the third, remedying backward children who are deficient in some of the senses, as in color perception or in not hearing accurately, while the fourth will be the selection of those dozen children whom I will choose this summer, and the educating of them along the lines given in my special educational system.

"These particular twelve I will educate free of charge; the other pupils I will charge for, as in other institutions of educational character.

Methods Will Be Radical.

"My methods of work with these children will differ radically from the ordinary methods of teaching. For instance, you have observed, doubtless, that those of the man who had more years of school and college training.

"Now, when he was a child that man of little training but of excellent ability would have been the child we would choose for our school.

Dr. Landone has been connected with settlement work in New York City, the South End of Boston, Philadelphia and Chicago. He studied abroad at Padua, the University of Paris, at two or three English institutions of learning and for three months was a companion and pupil of Herbert Spencer.

Eccentric Recluse Left

President Roosevelt $10,000. Boston.—Upon the authenticity of a new will and two codicils, which have just been discovered and which provide for a bequest of $10,000 to President Roosevelt, depends the distribution of the $500,000 estate left by Benjamin Hadley, an eccentric recluse who was found dead in Somerville last December.

If the new documents are genuine all of the estate with the exception of the $10,000 bequest to the President, will be distributed among relatives.

Brief Gleanings by Telegraph.

Washington, D. C.—President Roosevelt, in a letter to Dr. Lawrence F. Flick of Philadelphia, has agreed to preside at the International Congress on Tuberculosis, which will hold its sessions in Washington next October.

Chicago.—The city of Chicago is going out of the electric lighting business. City Electrician Carroll is now engaged in winding up the enterprise. In the future the city will purchase all the current required for the municipal electric lighting system from the Sanitary District.

Chairman Now Allotting Seats

in Republican Convention. Chicago.—Chairman New has assigned seats in the Republican National Convention to the press, the politicians and the people. Five hundred seats have been allotted to the press.

One thousand and fifty seats have been allotted to delegates and the same number to alternates. One extra seat will be given to each delegate and 300 will be held by the committee for distinguished visitors. The capacity of the building is 11,147.

Prominent People.

Cardinal Logue warned Americans against a great armament drive. Hamilton Mable has written an essay on the Short Story, without mentioning Bret Harte.

Marquis Salojit has written the premier an appreciative preface to the Japanese edition of Emile Zola's "Paris."

Senator Borah in his first speech in the Senate declared that no reasonable man could read the testimony in the Brownsville case and fail to be convinced that negro soldiers shot up the town.

COMMERCIAL COLUMN

Weekly Review of Trade and Latest Market Reports.

R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade says:

Encouraging reports predominate, and for the first time in six months the indications of improvement are well distributed throughout all departments. Gains are small in many cases, and unfavorable weather has retarded retail trade at some points, while comparisons with last year still shows decreases, but as compared with preceding months satisfactory exhibits are found everywhere. In all the leading manufacturing industries orders increased and output enlarged.

Lower prices for pig iron brought out a large tonnage of new business, and furnace operators did not find it necessary to make further concessions, although several prominent consumers are waiting for still better terms. Buying was most liberal in foundry iron, and several contracts covered deliveries far into the future. Many duplicate orders are reported for woolen goods, a much healthier situation existing than for many weeks, although some lines are more active than others. Both fancy and staple woads sell freely, some mills running overtime on resist fabrics, but clothiers discriminate against wool goods, except the finer grades.

A TEXAS CYCLONE YARN.

E. F. Turner, of Hamilton County, said: "I was riding horseback across the country Thursday and passed through the town of Meridian, where I took dinner. After dinner I started toward Waco, and had a hard time on account of high water. At about 5.30 P. M. I was a few miles from Clinton, when I found a cyclone chasing me, and I galloped away from it as fast as my horse could carry me. Presently I found that it had passed me, and I sat on the brow of a hill and watched its course. It was carrying along much debris, and when it struck the Bosque River it sucked up all the water, leaving the bed of the river practically empty. It crossed the Bosque obliquely and the water it took out of the bed of the stream was carried upward in a column which appeared to me to be about 500 feet high.

"The most remarkable part of this phenomenon was the fact that it had torn up by the roots a big tree and the tree was on top of the column of water, waving like a plume. When the column of water broke the tree went sailing on and fell about half a mile from where it was taken up."

On The Run.

The judge listened intently to the man's story, says a writer in the Indianapolis News. The man was the plaintiff, and had charged his wife with cruel and abusive treatment. He was a small man, and his wife—well, it was at least evident that the charge rested on a basis of possibility.

After the plaintiff had finished his testimony the judge decided to ask a question.

"Mr. Frouble," said he, "where did you meet your wife, who has treated you this way?"

"Well, judge," returned the man, somewhat meekly, "you see, it's this way. I never did meet her. She just kind of overtook me."

Declined With Regrets.

The blubious citizen was holding high carnival on the street, when an officer approached him and said: "Come with me to the station-house."

The disturber of the peace pulled loose from the officer and began: "Hold on minute, n' friend. 'No, I won't hold on a minute. You come with me."

"Hold on just half minute. I want jus' one word with you."

"All right," replied the officer, impatiently. "Be quick about it. What is it you want to say?"

"All I want to say is jus' this: I 'preateate your invitation, but I just can't go."—Lippincott's.

Well Named.

Mose, the darky cook of a party of surveyors in Eastern Texas, was greatly annoyed by the razor-back hogs that roamed around the camp. One evening, while he was at the spring, a particular ravenous raid of these "piny wood rooters" handed the cook, and ate everything that was edible and some other things that weren't.

For several moments after his return from the spring Mose could find no words to express his feelings.

More Than Quinine.

Quinine is simply one of the products of the Clinchona Bark, and the drug which is used in Grove's Tasteless Chill Tonic contains more of the active principles of Clinchona Bark than ordinary Quinine. Everyone knows that Whole Wheat and Graham Flour contains more nutriment than ordinary white flour, as part of the properties of the wheat are lost in rendering it in the flour white. This same thing is true of Quinine. The standard for 30 years. 50c.

HAD BAD ITCHING HUMOR.

Limbs Below the Knees Were Raw—Feet Swollen—Sleep Broken—Cured in 2 Days by Cuticura.

"Some two months ago I had a humor break out on my limbs below my knees. They came to look like raw beefsteak, all red, and no one knows how they itched and burned. I tried all sorts of ointments, but could not get my shoes on for a week or more. I used five or six different remedies and got no help, only when applying them the burning was worse and the itching less. For two or three weeks the suffering was intense and during that time I did not sleep an hour at a time. Then one morning I tried a bit of Cuticura. From the moment it touched me the itching was gone and I have not felt a bit of it since. The swelling went down and in two days I had my shoes on and was about as usual. George B. That Will Interest All Suffering Women.

Mrs. Della Meane, 228 E. Front St., Mayville, Ky., says: "Seven years ago I began to notice sharp pain in the kidneys and a burning down sensation through the hips, dull headache and dizzy spells. Dropsy appeared and my feet and ankles swelled so I could not get my shoes on. I was in misery and had despaired of ever getting cured, when I decided to try Doan's Kidney Pills. One box helped me so much that I kept on until entirely cured."

The Romantic Woman.

A wise man has pronounced palmistry to be an "absolute absurdity beneath contempt." He has reduced our "lines" of life and love and head to muscular flexures. The action of the four fingers and the thumb respectively produced the first two lines, and all the others can be medically accounted for.

It is disillusioning, of course, especially if one has been assured by some fashionable mysticist that one possesses extraordinary gifts and that good fortune is one's portion. But if we accept what physiologists tell us about one thing we must believe them when they say another. One professor says: "Humanity is daily gullible through its extraordinary ignorance of the elementary facts of physiology."

The "scientific denunciation" of palmistry will probably trouble those who practice the art as little as it will the women who submit their hands that they may learn their fate. The cold light of science is powerless to affect the fluttering hope of every woman holds that there may be pleasanter surprises in life than she believes are in store for her. Nor is her faith shaken when the oracle declares that the sorrows of her past have overshadowed those of all others who have bravely borne the crossing of their line of the Heart.

Caught The Idea.

"Some people," said the Rev. Mr. Goodman, "can never be made to appreciate the value of religion."
