Hints for Preserving.

The first consideration is a preserving kettle of brass polished until lustrous and with no stain of fruit.

This is the sort of vessel used by the old fashioned housewife and the jellies of our grandmothers have never been equalled.

Porcelain kettles should be discarded as soon as they commence to crack and tin; iron or pewter should never be used.

The best jelly bag is a long one made of flannel, which is made in a point at the bottom.

This should never be squeezed in order to hasten the dropping or a discoloration of the fruit will result.

In selecting fruit the greatest care should be taken to see that it is not over ripe.

Berries that have been picked more than 24 hours are too old to make good jellies and preserves.

A cheesecloth bag will be found useful in straining the fruit through the colander.

To keep jelly and jam from molding on top the fruit should be covered with paper dipped in brandy.

Jelly glasses without fitted tin or glass tops can be covered by pieces of writing paper.

These pieces should be dipped in the unbeaten whites of an egg and pasted at once over the glass. Plenty of sugar makes rich and luscious preserves and makes the fruit keep much longer.

To prevent jars from cracking when the hot preserves are poured in them set on cloths dipped in cold water and partly wrung out.

Heart and Lungs.

The heart is a very much overtaxed organ. It is a marvel what strength and vitality it has. It is a muscle which must contract and relax from seventy to eighty times a minute throughout the life of the individual.

A human being cannot live without food, water and air. These are the three essentials. The lungs must be plentifully supplied with pure air, or they cannot give good blood to the body, and every part suffers.
