

Is Pe-ru-na Useful for Catarrh?

Should a list of the ingredients of Pe-ru-na be submitted to any medical expert, of whatever school or nationality, he would be obliged to admit without reserve that the medicinal herbs composing Pe-ru-na are of two kinds. First, standard and well-tried catarrh remedies, second, well-known and generally acknowledged tonic remedies. That in one or the other of these uses they have stood the test of many years' experience by physicians of different schools, there can be no dispute about this, whatever. Pe-ru-na is composed of some of the most efficacious and universally used herbal remedies for catarrhal diseases, and for such conditions of the human system as require a tonic. Each one of the principal ingredients of Pe-ru-na has a reputation of its own in the cure of some phase of catarrh or as a tonic medicine.

The fact is, chronic catarrh is a disease which is very prevalent. Many thousands of people know they have chronic catarrh. They have visited doctors over and over again, and been told that their case is one of chronic catarrh. It may be of the nose, throat, lungs, stomach or some other internal organ. There is no doubt as to the nature of the disease. The only trouble is the remedy. This doctor has tried to cure them. That doctor has tried to prescribe for them.

No other household remedy so universally advertised carries upon the label the principal active constituents, showing that Pe-ru-na invites the full inspection of the critics.

Effects of Lightning.

A widespread belief is that during a thunder storm safety may be found under a beech tree, and that the danger from lightning is 15 times as great under a resinous tree and 50 times as great under an oak. Dr. A. W. Borthwick, the British naturalist, finds the view to be entirely without foundation. The beech is not avoided by lightning, which selects one species as readily as another, but the taller trees in a neighborhood appear to be the ones liable to be struck. The effects of lightning also are commonly misunderstood. The cells of a tree are not ruptured or torn by the formation of steam as so often stated, but they collapse or shrink up without tearing. The roots seem to escape damage.

DIVES FROM TRAIN.

Oxford (Special).—One of the events not on the program of an excursion which a number of Oxfordians took to Atlantic City was an involuntary dive made by John Davern, from the steps of the swiftly moving train into a creek twenty-five feet below. Strange to say, he was not injured by his fall, except for a few slight bruises.

The accident happened just beyond Kennet Square, where the train stopped to take on water. Owing to the crowded cars, Davern was riding on the platform, and when the train stopped he got off to look about. The train crew did not see him, and started off before he was expecting it, compelling him to make a dash for the rear car. By the time he reached it, the train had attained considerable speed and, although he was able to swing himself to the step, he could not maintain his balance, and was hurled off into the air. Just at this moment the car was passing over a culvert and Davern plunged headforemost, twenty-five feet, into a creek. The water was just deep enough to break the force of his fall, and in a minute he had fished himself out and clambered up the bank to meet the excursionists, who had stopped the train and come back to see what had happened to him. His escape is regarded as miraculous.

WOMEN SAVE MAN.

Lancaster (Special).—Prompt action on the part of Mrs. Paul Beck and Miss Carrie Halesch, Miriam Hopp and Katie Hertzler, of Litzitz, saved Joseph Herr, a young man, of the same town, from drowning. The persons were attending a picnic held at Weidler's woods, along the Conestoga River. Herr attempted to swim across the stream at a point where it is sixteen feet deep. He sank in mid-stream and in response to his cries for help the young women put after him in a boat. They covered a distance of fifty yards in exceedingly short time, and Mrs. Beck seized the man by the head as he was sinking for the third time. She succeeded in holding him above water until assistance arrived. He was resuscitated.

COMMERCIAL COLUMN

Weekly Review of Trade and Latest Market Reports.

Bradstreet's says: Trade, crop and industrial developments of the week are mainly favorable. The first of the fall merchants' excursions are reported in leading cities, thereby enlarging sales by jobbers and wholesalers. Industrial reports are generally of increased time for buying crops here and there, and the leading crops have approached a week nearer harvest. There are, however, some features accompanying these developments deserving of note. There are statements from quite a few markets that early fall buying is hardly up to expectations and in the cautious and conservatism govern buyers' actions.

In the industries there is perceptibly more doing in iron and steel, hardware manufacturing, Western coal mining and the lumber trade generally. The railroads are certainly also light and profitable. The holding trade evidently turned the corner in July, but reports of curtailment in output of certain lines of cotton goods are still prominent.

Wheat, including flour exports from the United States and Canada for the week ending August 23, 1907, aggregated 3,696,348 bushels, against 15,923 last week and 3,272,993 this week last year. For the six weeks ending August 23 this year the exports are 15,104,797 bushels, against 15,963,700 in the corresponding period last year. Corn exports for the week are 114,622 bushels, against 119,233 last week and 1,107,621 in 1907. For the six weeks ending August 23 the corn exports are 340,789 bushels, against 9,272,232 in the same period last year.

"Mr. Dooley" Talks on American Diplomacy

By P. FINLEY DUNNE.

"I'm not sure that I'd want to be an ambassador if I ever had to come home again," said Mr. Dooley. "The life is gay, but it unites you 'r home cookin'." A lawyer, a prominent politician, a professor in a college, or a politician who has lost his pull with 'r boys is snt over to ripresent his country. He starts out a sturdy American, full iv 'r Fourth iv July wearin' 'r American flag as a badge of honor. But he hasn't been gone long before he begins to appreciate 'r discomforts iv republican simplicity. He may not have been very much iv a dignitary at home, but here he's a great fellow. Instead iv bein' saluted as 'Say you iv 'r polis, he is addressed as 'Ye'er excellency.' 'r people seem much more polished off 'r they are at home. He learns that a king, though following a detestable thrade, may be a good fellow. 'r country is more finished looking. There are few frame houses. 'r lawns are better trimmed. Hedges surround 'r farms instead iv hog-tight rail fences. 'r peasantry accept 'r proper position instead iv chasin' the landlird off 'r premises with a hoe. 'r body that amounts to anything at all is good to him. He is threatened with consideration due to his rank. If he has been taught to rivivence 'r old wurruld, 's like bein' in Hiven, when he mentions the name iv Shakespeare with bated breath, to hear 'r man settin' next to him say lightly: 'Oh, yes, Shakespeare was a great friend iv me grandfather till he got caught hookin' some iv our deer. But his wife was impossible.' Or, if he speaks iv 'r hook iv Marlborough some way says: 'He married an aunt iv mine.' 'r a man that has been brought up in a land where there are no traditions older 'r 'r Chicago fire, it is wonderful to find himself in a place where he can't open his mouth without trippin' over a tradition. He grinsly succumbs. Before long he sinks softly into his position as an arrystocratic Englishman or Eytalian. He frgets about 'r public opinion iv Cedar Rapids, and begins to wonder whether his conduct is suitable to 'r sovereign. About this time he gets a short, crisp note sayin' that while not wanted at home he is still less wanted abroad. He comes back full iv mystery, avoidin' at 'r dock the reporters who bump him on their way to interview 'r new bally dancer, an' goes to Washington. 'r forty-sixth Assistant Secy iv State who takes him to 'r Secy iv State can't see him that day as he is absorbed in a game iv checkers. What a comedown fr 'r great statesman, reekin' with 'r glorious thraditions iv 'r monarchies iv Europe, to have to go out iv Cedar Rapids an' be greeted with a cry: 'Hello, Smithy, where have you been? I haven't see ye jately.'—American Magazine.

Let A Straggling Life.

The late Marquis di Rudini, the Italian statesman, led the straggling life. At 22 he was one of Garibaldi's lieutenants in wrestling Sicily from the Bourbons, having in the meantime succeeded in evading a capital sentence which the Neapolitan monarch had launched against him. Before he was 30, a master of Palermo he had put down brigandage, suppressed the Mafia, and impressed the Sicilians with the conviction that killing policemen was the same thing as murder. Throughout his life, which has just ended at threescore and ten, he was an exemplar of that tireless energy which was great help to think is monopolized by the Teutonic stock.—Boston Transcript.

BABY CRIED AND SCRATCHED

All the Time—Was Covered with Torturing Eczema—Doctor Said Sores Would Last for Years—Perfect Cure by Cuticura.

"My baby niece was suffering from that terrible torture, eczema. It was all over her body, but the worst was on her face and hands. She cried and scratched all the time and could not sleep night or day from the scratching. I had her under the doctor's care for a year and a half and he seemed to do her no good. I took her to the best doctor in the city and he said that the eczema would last for the rest of her life. But if I had depended on the doctor my baby would have lost her mind and died from the want of aid. But I used Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment and she was cured in three months. Alice L. Dowell, 4709 Easton Ave., St. Louis, Mo., May 2 and 20, 1907."

Miners And Tuberculosis.

A mining journal published at Scranton has been calling attention to the curious fact that in coal mining communities there is a marked deficiency in the mortality from tuberculosis as compared with that of other localities. This is a phenomenon that has also been observed in Great Britain and attention has been drawn to it by B. H. Thwaitte. According to the author, the effects noted may be due to the physiological effects of carbon monoxide, for he finds that men engaged about blast furnaces and gas producers are peculiarly free from tuberculous trouble.

It is suggested that the presence of carbon dust in the lungs may be a cause of production of CO, and that this will serve to explain the immunity of miners from the disease. The tubercle bacillus is a creature of extreme tenacity of life. It is encased in a waxy integument and is proof against even a nitric acid, but gases are so penetrating in their powers of diffusion that it can well be considered that carbon dioxide might reach the tissues of a creature in a subtle manner, for the gas cannot be perceived.—From Mines and Minerals.

SELF DELUSION

Many People Deceived by Coffee.

We like to defend our indulgences and habits even though we may be convinced of their actual harmfulness.

A man can convince himself that whisky is good for him on a cold morning, or beer on a hot summer day—when he wants the whisky or beer.

It's the same with coffee. Thousands of people suffer headache and nervousness year after year but try to persuade themselves the cause is not coffee—because they like coffee.

"While yet a child I commenced using coffee and continued it," writes a Wis. man, "until I was a regular coffee fiend. I drank it every morning and in consequence had a blinding headache in the early afternoon.

"My folks thought it was coffee that ailed me, but I liked it and would not admit it was the cause of my trouble, so I stuck to coffee and the headaches stuck to me.

"Finally, the folks stopped buying coffee and brought home some Postum. They made it right (direction on pkg.) and told me to see what difference it would make with my head, and during that first week on Postum my old affliction did not bother me once. From that day to this we have used nothing but Postum in place of coffee—headaches are a thing of the past and the whole family is in fine health."

"Postum looks good, smells good, tastes good, is good, and does good to the whole body." "There's a Reason."
